TROOP RESOLUTION SURVIVES TEST

Yanks Cross 38th Parallel In Force

Troops, Tanks Advance Along 10-Mile Sector

Allies Encounter Little Resistance

TOKYO, Wednesday, April 4 (AP)—U. S. troops and tanks rammed north of the 38th parallel Tuesday along a 10-mile sector in Western Korea and met little resistance from vanguards of nearly one-half million massing Communist soldiers.

The crossing was made in force. It was the first time this year that U. S. troops had entered North Korea in more than patrol strength.

Today's Eighth Army communique pinpointed one force as "southeast of Yonchon." Yonchon is six miles inside Red Korea and 35 miles north of Seoul on the Seoul-Uijongbu railroad and highway.

But below the parallel 25 miles northwest of Seoul, South Koreans crossed the Imjin River and ran into such fierce resistance from 1,000 Reds that they had to pull back.

MacArthur Visits Front

Across the mountainous peninsula where two Republic of Korea divisions already were north of 38 in force, Gen. MacArthur made a surprise inspection within 500 yards of the front. It was his 15th flying visit to the war zone.

There MacArthur gave what amounted to a reply to the Communist high command which had flatly rejected his March 23 offer to negotiate a truce in the field.

"Our strategy remains unchanged in Korea," he told top air, sea and ground commanders who accompanied him. "It is based on maneuver and not positional warfare."

He made clear that the vastly outnumbered United Nations army has no intention of yielding the initiative it maintains.

By nightfall MacArthur was back at his Tokyo headquarters where he appraised fighting conditions as still favorable.

Earlier, MacArthur's headquarters had estimated the Chinese and North Korean Communist forces had a potential strength of 63 divisions on the battle front — the largest number yet committed.

Nearly 100 Red Jets Sighted

Intelligence officers estimated at least 441,000 rested and battle-tried Chines and North Korean troops were preparing a new offensive.

Perhaps double that number were believed in reserve and ready to support the fourth major communist effort to drive U.N. forces out of Korea.

The Communists made a strong aerial appearance Tuesday and precipitated an air battle involving 84 to 94 jets — thel argest jet encounter yet fought. The fight took place near Sinuiju in the northwest corner of Korea.

Three Russian-built MIG jets were shot down and three more MIGs were damaged by U. S. Sabre jets. There were no immediate reports of American losses, if any.

Auriol Gets Typical Broadway Welcome

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP) — Tens of thousands of cheering New Yorkers gave French President Vincent Auriol a Broadway welcome today amid a swirl of ticker tape.

A few shouted "Vive La France" and drew from Auriol a hearty "merci"—French for "thank you."

Police said about 75,000 persons lined lower Broadway or stood in damp, raw and sunless weather outside City Hall for formal welcoming ceremonies.

It was the first time a president of France ever paid New York a visit.

At City Hall, Auriol planted the traditional French kiss on each cheek of beaming Italian-born Mayor Vincent Impellitteri.

Johnston Drafts Directive Fixing "Fair And Equitable" Industrial Profits Standard

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston is drafting a new price control directive fixing a "fair and equitable" standard of industrial profits, government officials reported today.

Still highly tentative, the directive may be issued in a week or two.

It would rule out any price increase that would bring manufacturers' earnings above 85 per cent of average dollar profits in the three most profitable years from 1946 to 1949 inclusive.

COLLAPSES — Sen. Watkins (R-Utah), above, collapsed on the Senate floor last night during debate on the troops-to-Europe issue. After being assisted from the floor, he was reported recovering. Dr. George W. Calver, congressional physician, described his condition as "nothing serious."

The Johnston formula is intended to guide the Office of Price Stabilization in setting industry-by-industry ceilings for manufacturers who now operate under the general price freeze.

Informants said this formula would not roll back prices which already exceed the 85 per cent limit.

Part Of 3-Way Program

It would, however, require manufacturers to absorb increases in wages, materials and other costs until profits fall below the 85 per cent level. Then upward adjustment would be permitted.

The plan is part of a three-way program envisioned by Johnston to "harden" the anti-inflation program.

Labor and agriculture would be brought into the program by these further proposals.

1—To set June 30, 1951, as the final cut-off date for wage boosts under cost-of-living and other "escalator" clauses in union wage contracts.

2—To curb food prices by "freezing" farm parity at the levels of last Jan. 15. Firm ceilings then could be imposed when farm products reached this fixed level.

Parity Is Shifting Price

Under present law, farm ceilings cannot be lower than parity. But parity is a shifting price, rising with increases in the cost of things that farmers buy. Labor has objected that wages should not be tightly controlled while food prices — a major element, in the cost of living —are free to rise.

It was indicated that Congress will be asked to consider the parity question when President Truman makes his proposals for extending and revising the Defense Production Act. That law expires next June 30. Mr. Truman's recommendations may come within a week or two.

Faith Can Save Free Peoples, Truman Says

Divine Providence Guides Democracies

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — President Truman said today that divine providence guides the nations seeking to prevent Communist aggression from sweeping across the world. He addressed a Presbyterian congregation with whose forebears Abraham Lincoln once worshipped.

A biting wind swept the crowd gathered in the street to hear the President say that though the future is "full of uncertainties and sacrifices," the American "need not be afraid, if we have the faith."

Clad in a topcoat, but with his gray head bared to the chill, the President spoke from an improvised wooden platform erected alongside the new building of 150-year-old New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, now nearing completion.

Mr. Truman told the congregation it is his belief God intended this country to cooperate with other nations "to help create peace and preserve peace in the world."

"It is given to us to defend the spiritual values—the moral code—against the vast forces of evil that seek to destroy them," he said.

Mr. Truman said we must carry religion "as a burning faith" through the trials ahead.

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — President Truman expressed confidence tonight that the United States and its allies will go forward "with speed and vigor" in building defenses against Communism.

He issued a statement one day after the administration suffered a setback in the Senate on the troops-for-Europe issue. The Senate approved an amendment saying that no more than four additional American divisions should be sent to Europe without the approval of Congress.

The President made no mention of that reverse in a statement he issued to mark the second anniversary of the signing of the North Atlantic Treaty, pledging mutual defense against Communism. The treaty was signed two years ago tomorrow.

Inter-American Group Approves Defense Buildup

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — A recommendation that all the American republics strengthen their armed forces, for instant use in the event of aggression against any of them, was approved today by a subcommittee of the Inter-American Foreign Ministers Conference.

This was the first of several actions planned by the conference to build up Western Hemisphere defenses.

The recommendation calls on the Inter-American Defense Board to keep a common defense plan up to date, working "as vigorously as possible and in close liaison with the governments through their respective delegations."

Separate action was planned by the subcommittee on another proposal that the American republics maintain specially trained units for support of United Nations actions.

In another conference development, John Foster Dulles said Soviet bloc vetoes on admission of new members to the United Nations are becoming "increasingly intolerable."

"I believe that the United Nations Assembly should at an early date give consideration to how this problem can be practically solved," he said.

Dulles, Republican adviser to the State Department, made it plain that he expects a Red bloc effort to keep Japan out of the U. N. after a Japanese peace treaty is signed. This would make it difficult, he said, to develop a real security system for the Pacific.

Crime Probe Missing Witness List Is Cut

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—The Senate Crime Investigating Committee's list of missing witnesses was reduced to two names tonight by the surrender of Murray L. (The Camel) Humphreys. Charles and Rocco Fischetti, Chicago brothers, came in last night.

All three had been tagged by the committee as leaders in the syndicate which has taken over much of the underworld empire of the late Al Capone.

Chairman Kefauver (D-Tenn.) of the investigating group told reporters he regards the Fischettis as "very important witnesses."

Truman, ULPC Will Discuss Mobilization

President Moves In On Labor Boycott

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — President Truman is moving in personally on labor's boycott of mobilization agencies.

The White House announced late today that the President will meet Thursday afternoon with the United Labor Policy Committee. That is the group, representing most of the big unions, which pulled union spokesmen out of the emergency program.

The announcement coincided with a statement by the CIO's top lawyer, Arthur J. Goldberg, that the President has inherent power to set up a new Wage Stabilization Board without full agreement of labor and management groups.

Whether the two developments were immediately related was not made clear. The timing, however, gave new force to speculation that Mr. Truman may be about to create such a board on his own, perhaps with only members representing the public.

A walkout by union men from the WSB Feb. 16, in protest against a policy limiting pay raises to 10 per cent above the levels of January, 1950, set off the withdrawal of unionists from the other mobilization agencies. The labor groups charged "big business" domination of the defense program and demanded a strong voice in formation of basic policy.

There was no details at the White House on just what are the Truman plans.

A press secretary would not add anything to this brief announcement which he handed out in the press room:

"The President is having a meeting with the United Labor Policy Committee Thursday afternoon to discuss with them his national advisory board of mobilization policy."

Such a discussion, however, could cover a lot of ground, including the boycott of the emergency setup.

The plan for the advisory board was announced by Mr. Truman in Key West, Fla., last month.

The board is planned to include four labor men, four from industry, four from agriculture and four representing the general public.

The President has repeatedly expressed confidence that labor union men return to the mobilization agencies and has refused to go along with those who have called their action a strike against the program.

Holmes Guilty On Three Counts

BALTIMORE, April (AP) — Joseph (Digger) Holmes today was convicted on three charges growing out of his sensational escape from the Maryland Penitentiary.

A criminal court jury found him guilty of armed robbery and purse snatching on his return to Baltimore after fleeing prison, assault with intent to kill a policeman, and possession of a deadly weapon.

Holmes had pleaded guilty to the escape charge and asked for jury trial on the other counts.

Judge Sherbow said he would impose sentence at a later date.

The 39-year-old negro convict revealed today he used an electric hand drill to start the 70-foot tunnel.

In earlier statements, Holmes said he used a small drill embedded in the end of a stick to cut a series of tiny holes in the two-inch slate floor of his cell.

Today, he said he had the use of an electric hand drill for about two days and rebuilt the fuse box in his cell so it would carry the current necessary to run the motor.

I paid $7 for someone to steal it for me," Holmes told Judge Joseph Sherbow.

"Then you had help in getting out?" the judge asked.

"Yes, I did; but I wouldn't want to name any names."

Holmes said he worked 11 months on his tunnel, which dipped down almost 20 feet under the prison walls and came up in a grass plot between the prison and a downtown Baltimore street.

Earlier, he had said the job took some 19 months of secret activity.

BURBANK, Calif., April 3 (AP) — Actress Doris Day celebrated her 27th birthday today by getting married to her agent, Marty Melcher, 35.

Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, presents Medals of Honor to relatives of four Army enlisted men who died in Korea. Left to right are Bradley; John Jecelin, Baltimore, father of Sgt. William R. Jecelin; Mrs. Mildred L. Craig, Elmwood, Mass., mother of Cpl. Gordon M. Craig; Mrs. Nellie Red Cloud, Friendship, Wis., mother of Cpl. Mitchell Red Cloud, Jr., and Mrs. Rose B. Ouellette, Lowell, Mass., mother of Pfc. Joseph R. Ouellette.

Missing British Explorer's Bones Reported Found

Fawcett Disappeared In Brazil In 1926

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, April 3. (AP)—Orlando Vilasboas, leader of a government expedition, reported today he believes he has found the bones of the long-missing British explorer, Col. P. H. Fawcett, in the Brazilian jungle.

Vilasboas' report, which may solve a 26-year mystery, was forwarded to the government's Central Brazil Foundation.

Fawcett, famous for his Amazon explorations, dropped from sight in 1925. He had set out with his 20-year-old son Jack and friend Raleigh Rimmel, lured by hopes of finding gold and diamonds in a fabulous city of a lost civilization in the Mato Grosso jungle. He believed the Mato Grosso was the original Garden of Eden.

Vilasboas said the Kalapagos Indians killed the three explorers near the Rio Das Mortes (river of death). They threw two of the bodies in a lagoon and buried the oldest, whom he believed to be Fawcett.

His message said the Indians, "after five years of reluctance," finally led him today to the burial spot, where he dug up a skull in perfect condition and other bones.

The skeleton, he added, has been removed to his base at Xavantina. But contrary to previous reports by the National News Agency, he said the other two skeletons were not recovered because of the "strong desire of the Indians to leave the location."

The National News Agency said some belongings of Fawcett also had been recovered among the Indians, although the expedition leader's message did not mention this.

Vilasboas said he had hopes of making further discoveries, however.

Curbs On German Industry Eased

BONN, Germany, April 3 (AP)—The Allied High Commission eased controls on war potential industries of West Germany today to permit increased production for Western defense.

All limits were removed on the size and speed of German merchant ships. The Germans were authorized to resume the production of synthetic oil and rubber. German manufacture of synthetic ammonia, chlorine and styrene, a liquid used in plastics and synthetic rubber, is again permitted.

The Germans are still forbidden to make arms, aircraft or warships. But they are permitted to make certain machine tools, electronic tubes and primary aluminum.

The high commissioners of the United States, Britain and France also promised to waive the existing limit of 11,100,000 tons yearly on steel output "where such production will facilitate steel being provided for the common defense effort."

Mayor Of Chicago Wins Reelection

CHICAGO, April 3 (AP)—Mayor Martin H. Kennelly won reelection today — starting the Democratic Party on its third unbroken decade of City Hall rule.

Kennelly, Democrat businessman-mayor, defeated Republican Robert L. Hunter to give his party at least four more years of City Hall control that started in 1931.

Returns from 3,799 of the city's 4,297 precincts showed: Kennelly 615,734, Hunter 488,343.

Democratic candidates for the other three city offices at stake—city clerk, city treasurer and municipal court judge—also led near the half way mark in the counting of returns.

Views Collide As House Opens Debate On UMT

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) of the Armed Services Committee told the House today that universal military training is the only answer to the Russia threat that America can pay for and the Reds will heed.

Rep. Werdel (R-Calif) promptly came back with the suggestion that UMT is part of a Pentagon "blueprint for power, how to acquire it and how to keep it in time of peace."

That clash of views set the House off on two weeks of debate, certain to be filled with similar fireworks, on the combined bill to extend the draft, lower the induction age to 18½ years and set up UMT when the emergency draft for fighting ends.

Vinson, as chief sponsor of the measure, trained his main battery on the move to cut the training features out of the bill.

That, Vinson told the House, would "force on the backs of the American people the necessity for maintaining for an indefinite period a large standing force which x x x will eventually jeopardize and possible ruin the economic stability of this nation."

"For the forseeable future and perhaps beyond," he said, "this nation has no alternative but to be ready for any form of aggression that may be forced upon us."

The Soviet Union "listens only to a nation whose voice is backed by steel," he said.

Werdel accused the nation's military leaders of wanting to take charge of "every phase of our national life in time of war."

Two Leaders Of UE Acquitted Of Contempt

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—Two more defendants in contempt of Congress cases were freed today.

In acquitting two leaders of the left-wing United Electrical Workers, Federal Judge James W. Morris told Congress how it can get information it needs without imparing the constitutional rights of witness.

This can be done, Judge Morris said, by providing "complete immunity" to a witness when the information sought is considered relatively more important in the public interest than the punishment of the witness for a crime.

Acquitted by Judge Morris were Thomas Fitzpatrick of Pittsburgh and Talmadge Raley of Cincinnati.

Taxpayers Given More Cheering News By Snyder

New Levies In 1952 Depend On Two "Ifs"

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Snyder gave the taxpayers some cheering news today: They may not be asked for more billions in new taxes next year after all.

But this will be possible, he added quickly, only if (1) Congress votes a $10,000,000,000 tax increase soon, and (2) defense costs in the months ahead stay at the presently estimated level.

Both of these looked like pretty big "ifs."

Republican lawmakers predicted new taxes this year would not exceed $7,500,000,000 and might be much less. They said government spending can be cut enough to balance the 1951-53 budget with some such amount.

"Situation Changes Hourly"

And Snyder himself emphasized that there's no guarantee defense costs won't rise sharply if the world situation worsens.

As a World War One artillery captain, he said, he learned the maxim: "In a war of movement, the tactical situation changes hourly." ly."

Nevertheless his well-hedged forecast today, made at a news conference, was even more optimistic than the one he gave yesterday to the House Ways and Means Committee.

He told the House group the administration would be satisfied now with a $10,000,000,000 tax rise instead of the $16,500,000,000 it was talking about only last January. He said consideration of a "second round" increase could be postponed until next January.

Revenues Exceed Estimates

Today Snyder said he will ask for this "second round" only if the budget picture changes so much that higher revenues will have to be sought to keep the government out of the red.

He gave two reasons for the brighter tax outlook: Government revenues have been higher than expected while military spending has been less than expected. Instead of a $2,700,000,000 deficit at the end of the present fiscal year, he now expects a $3,000,000,000 surplus.

Senate Spurns Move To Bind Truman Hands

Bricker's Plan Is Rejected, 56 To 31

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — The Senate defeated tonight, 56 to 31, a Republican move to command the President to consult Congress before sending more than four divisions of U. S. troops to Europe.

Administration forces rallied to beat down a motion by Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) which had that aim. He proposed to send a pending troops resolution back to committee with instructions to return it in the form of a bill which would become law.

The resolution, as it stands, is only an advisory expression of the Senate's views.

The administration victory apparently cleared away the last major barrier to Senate approval of the resolution. Its adoption would put senators on record as favoring the dispatch of four U. S. divisions to join the two in Europe already assigned to the North Atlantic defense force.

Senate Works Until 9 P. M.

The resolution—not binding on the President—also would have the Senate say that no more than the four divisions should be sent in peacetime "without further congressional approval."

President Truman has said he has full power to deploy troops as he sees fit and will consult Congress only out of politeness.

In mid-evening, the Senate, by a 52 to 29 vote, rejected an amendment by Sen. Mundt (R-SD) which would have advised the President to obtain congressional approval before sending even the four divisions to Western Europe.

Then, shortly after 9 p. m., EST, the Senate knocked off work until noon tomorrow. The original plan had been to pass the resolution tonight but leaders decided too much debate remained.

Administration men fought hard against the Bricker plan to send the resolution back to committee.

Majority Leader McFarland of Arizona declared abandonment of the resolution at this stage would be hailed "as a victory for the Kremlin in its policies of isolating the United States from the rest of the world."

Resolution Termed "Pious Hope"

If the Senate fails to make a decision now, after weeks of debate, "we would be taking a fearful gamble with our country and the security of the free world," the Democratic leader asserted.

But Bricker contended the pending resolution, which he said merely expresses the sense of the Senate, "is nothing but a pious hope."

"It does not bind the President of the United States to do anything," he said.

"It is a sham, a fraud, a hoax on the American people to pass a resolution of this character. It will have no more effect on the President than if we write him a letter and tell him our desires."

Gromyko Criticizes Western Redraft

PARIS, April 3. (AP)—Andrei Gromyko insisted today that any agenda for a Big Four foreign ministers meeting should include the questions of the North Atlantic Pact, the United States' foreign military bases and Trieste.

The Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister cold-shouldered a Western redraft, offered yesterday, which touched on none of the three topics he had advanced recently.

Gromyko did not turn down the redraft, but his critical remarks drew a lecture from French Deputy Alexandre Parodi.

"After four weeks, I thought we had finally put all our cards on the table," Parodi said. "Now the Soviets want to reshuffle them all again."

Mrs. Ruth McCormick Miller, Times-Herald Editor, Quits

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—Mrs. Ruth McCormick Miller resigned tonight as editor in charge of the Washington Times-Herald.

Mrs. Miller—known as "Bazy" to her friends — is a niece of Col. Robert R. McCormick, president and publisher of the Chicago Tribune, which owns the Times-Herald.

She had a notice posted on the Times-Herald bulletin board saying:

"To all staff members:

"I resigned from the Times-Herald today. I tried to buy the paper but was unsuccessful.

"Ruth McCormick Miller."

Other executives of the paper said they had no further detail of the events leading up to the resignation.

The Chicago Tribune bought the Times-Herald in August, 1949, for $4,500,000. Mrs. Miller, then 28, was put in charge at the time.

The purchase was from seven executives of the newspaper, to whom it had been willed by Mrs. Eleanor (Cissie) Patterson upon her death the year before.

Mrs. Patterson was a cousin of Col. McCormick.

The former Ruth Elizabeth McCormick, Mrs Miller is the daughter of the late Sen. Medill McCormick of Illinois and the late Rep. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms. She is a granddaughter of the late Sen. Mark Hanna.

Remove 'Liver' From Little Pills, U. S. Orders Carter's

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—The government has ordered Carter's to knock the word "liver" out of Carter's little liver pills.

Furthermore, the Federal Trade Commission said today, Carter's must stop saying without qualification that its pills are what you need when you're down-and-out, blue, listless, fagged out, down-in-the-dumps, irritable, bilious or sullen.

The FTC conclusion, as summed up in an accompanying statement by Commissioner John Carson:

"Carter's little liver pills were and are, as the findings of fact show, nothing more than an irritative laxative compound."

The company, officially known as Carter's Products, Inc.—has 60 days in which to comply or appeal. In New York, Carter's lawyer, William L. Hannaway, said the company will test the decision in one of the U. S. courts of appeal.

The FTC duling is the climax to a study that has been dragging on for years. The government went all over the country, rounding up experts to test Carter's little liver pills. So also did Carter's.

The result: 47 doctors testified yes, no or maybe. The hearings, spread over a considerable period of time, took 142 days. There were 2,209 exhibits.

Crime Probe Missing Witness List Is Cut

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—The Senate Crime Investigating Committee's list of missing witnesses was reduced to two names tonight by the surrender of Murray L. (The Camel) Humphreys. Charles and Rocco Fischetti, Chicago brothers, came in last night.

All three had been tagged by the committee as leaders in the syndicate which has taken over much of the underworld empire of the late Al Capone.

Chairman Kefauver (D-Tenn.) of the investigating group told reporters he regards the Fischettis as "very important witnesses."

Truman, ULPC Will Discuss Mobilization

President Moves In On Labor Boycott

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — President Truman is moving in personally on labor's boycott of mobilization agencies.

The White House announced late today that the President will meet Thursday afternoon with the United Labor Policy Committee. That is the group, representing most of the big unions, which pulled union spokesmen out of the emergency program.

The announcement coincided with a statement by the CIO's top lawyer, Arthur J. Goldberg, that the President has inherent power to set up a new Wage Stabilization Board without full agreement of labor and management groups.

Whether the two developments were immediately related was not made clear. The timing, however, gave new force to speculation that Mr. Truman may be about to create such a board on his own, perhaps with only members representing the public.

A walkout by union men from the WSB Feb. 16, in protest against a policy limiting pay raises to 10 per cent above the levels of January, 1950, set off the withdrawal of unionists from the other mobilization agencies. The labor groups charged "big business" domination of the defense program and demanded a strong voice in formation of basic policy.

There was no details at the White House on just what are the Truman plans.

A press secretary would not add anything to this brief announcement which he handed out in the press room:

"The President is having a meeting with the United Labor Policy Committee Thursday afternoon to discuss with them his national advisory board of mobilization policy."

Such a discussion, however, could cover a lot of ground, including the boycott of the emergency setup.

The plan for the advisory board was announced by Mr. Truman in Key West, Fla., last month.

The board is planned to include four labor men, four from industry, four from agriculture and four representing the general public.

The President has repeatedly expressed confidence that labor union men return to the mobilization agencies and has refused to go along with those who have called their action a strike against the program.

Holmes Guilty On Three Counts

BALTIMORE, April (AP) — Joseph (Digger) Holmes today was convicted on three charges growing out of his sensational escape from the Maryland Penitentiary.

A criminal court jury found him guilty of armed robbery and purse snatching on his return to Baltimore after fleeing prison, assault with intent to kill a policeman, and possession of a deadly weapon.

Holmes had pleaded guilty to the escape charge and asked for jury trial on the other counts.

Judge Sherbow said he would impose sentence at a later date.

The 39-year-old negro convict revealed today he used an electric hand drill to start the 70-foot tunnel.

In earlier statements, Holmes said he used a small drill embedded in the end of a stick to cut a series of tiny holes in the two-inch slate floor of his cell.

Today, he said he had the use of an electric hand drill for about two days and rebuilt the fuse box in his cell so it would carry the current necessary to run the motor.

I paid $7 for someone to steal it for me," Holmes told Judge Joseph Sherbow.

"Then you had help in getting out?" the judge asked.

"Yes, I did; but I wouldn't want to name any names."

Holmes said he worked 11 months on his tunnel, which dipped down almost 20 feet under the prison walls and came up in a grass plot between the prison and a downtown Baltimore street.

Earlier, he had said the job took some 19 months of secret activity.

Fawcett Disappeared In Brazil In 1926

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, April 3. (AP)—Orlando Vilasboas, leader of a government expedition, reported today he believes he has found the bones of the long-missing British explorer, Col. P. H. Fawcett, in the Brazilian jungle.

Vilasboas' report, which may solve a 26-year mystery, was forwarded to the government's Central Brazil Foundation.

Fawcett, famous for his Amazon explorations, dropped from sight in 1925. He had set out with his 20-year-old son Jack and friend Raleigh Rimmel, lured by hopes of finding gold and diamonds in a fabulous city of a lost civilization in the Mato Grosso jungle. He believed the Mato Grosso was the original Garden of Eden.

Vilasboas said the Kalapagos Indians killed the three explorers near the Rio Das Mortes (river of death). They threw two of the bodies in a lagoon and buried the oldest, whom he believed to be Fawcett.

His message said the Indians, "after five years of reluctance," finally led him today to the burial spot, where he dug up a skull in perfect condition and other bones.

The skeleton, he added, has been removed to his base at Xavantina. But contrary to previous reports by the National News Agency, he said the other two skeletons were not recovered because of the "strong desire of the Indians to leave the location."

The National News Agency said some belongings of Fawcett also had been recovered among the Indians, although the expedition leader's message did not mention this.

Vilasboas said he had hopes of making further discoveries, however.

Curbs On German Industry Eased

BONN, Germany, April 3 (AP)—The Allied High Commission eased controls on war potential industries of West Germany today to permit increased production for Western defense.

All limits were removed on the size and speed of German merchant ships. The Germans were authorized to resume the production of synthetic oil and rubber. German manufacture of synthetic ammonia, chlorine and styrene, a liquid used in plastics and synthetic rubber, is again permitted.

The Germans are still forbidden to make arms, aircraft or warships. But they are permitted to make certain machine tools, electronic tubes and primary aluminum.

The high commissioners of the United States, Britain and France also promised to waive the existing limit of 11,100,000 tons yearly on steel output "where such production will facilitate steel being provided for the common defense effort."

Mayor Of Chicago Wins Reelection

CHICAGO, April 3 (AP)—Mayor Martin H. Kennelly won reelection today — starting the Democratic Party on its third unbroken decade of City Hall rule.

Kennelly, Democrat businessman-mayor, defeated Republican Robert L. Hunter to give his party at least four more years of City Hall control that started in 1931.

Returns from 3,799 of the city's 4,297 precincts showed: Kennelly 615,734, Hunter 488,343.

Democratic candidates for the other three city offices at stake—city clerk, city treasurer and municipal court judge—also led near the half way mark in the counting of returns.

Views Collide As House Opens Debate On UMT

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) of the Armed Services Committee told the House today that universal military training is the only answer to the Russia threat that America can pay for and the Reds will heed.

Rep. Werdel (R-Calif) promptly came back with the suggestion that UMT is part of a Pentagon "blueprint for power, how to acquire it and how to keep it in time of peace."

That clash of views set the House off on two weeks of debate, certain to be filled with similar fireworks, on the combined bill to extend the draft, lower the induction age to 18½ years and set up UMT when the emergency draft for fighting ends.

Vinson, as chief sponsor of the measure, trained his main battery on the move to cut the training features out of the bill.

That, Vinson told the House, would "force on the backs of the American people the necessity for maintaining for an indefinite period a large standing force which x x x will eventually jeopardize and possible ruin the economic stability of this nation."

"For the forseeable future and perhaps beyond," he said, "this nation has no alternative but to be ready for any form of aggression that may be forced upon us."

The Soviet Union "listens only to a nation whose voice is backed by steel," he said.

Werdel accused the nation's military leaders of wanting to take charge of "every phase of our national life in time of war."

Two Leaders Of UE Acquitted Of Contempt

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—Two more defendants in contempt of Congress cases were freed today.

In acquitting two leaders of the left-wing United Electrical Workers, Federal Judge James W. Morris told Congress how it can get information it needs without imparing the constitutional rights of witness.

This can be done, Judge Morris said, by providing "complete immunity" to a witness when the information sought is considered relatively more important in the public interest than the punishment of the witness for a crime.

Acquitted by Judge Morris were Thomas Fitzpatrick of Pittsburgh and Talmadge Raley of Cincinnati.

Taxpayers Given More Cheering News By Snyder

New Levies In 1952 Depend On Two "Ifs"

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Snyder gave the taxpayers some cheering news today: They may not be asked for more billions in new taxes next year after all.

But this will be possible, he added quickly, only if (1) Congress votes a $10,000,000,000 tax increase soon, and (2) defense costs in the months ahead stay at the presently estimated level.

Both of these looked like pretty big "ifs."

Republican lawmakers predicted new taxes this year would not exceed $7,500,000,000 and might be much less. They said government spending can be cut enough to balance the 1951-53 budget with some such amount.

"Situation Changes Hourly"

And Snyder himself emphasized that there's no guarantee defense costs won't rise sharply if the world situation worsens.

As a World War One artillery captain, he said, he learned the maxim: "In a war of movement, the tactical situation changes hourly."

Nevertheless his well-hedged forecast today, made at a news conference, was even more optimistic than the one he gave yesterday to the House Ways and Means Committee.

He told the House group the administration would be satisfied now with a $10,000,000,000 tax rise instead of the $16,500,000,000 it was talking about only last January. He said consideration of a "second round" increase could be postponed until next January.

Revenues Exceed Estimates

Today Snyder said he will ask for this "second round" only if the budget picture changes so much that higher revenues will have to be sought to keep the government out of the red.

He gave two reasons for the brighter tax outlook: Government revenues have been higher than expected while military spending has been less than expected. Instead of a $2,700,000,000 deficit at the end of the present fiscal year, he now expects a $3,000,000,000 surplus.

Senate Spurns Move To Bind Truman Hands

Bricker's Plan Is Rejected, 56 To 31

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — The Senate defeated tonight, 56 to 31, a Republican move to command the President to consult Congress before sending more than four divisions of U. S. troops to Europe.

Administration forces rallied to beat down a motion by Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) which had that aim. He proposed to send a pending troops resolution back to committee with instructions to return it in the form of a bill which would become law.

The resolution, as it stands, is only an advisory expression of the Senate's views.

The administration victory apparently cleared away the last major barrier to Senate approval of the resolution. Its adoption would put senators on record as favoring the dispatch of four U. S. divisions to join the two in Europe already assigned to the North Atlantic defense force.

Senate Works Until 9 P. M.

The resolution—not binding on the President—also would have the Senate say that no more than the four divisions should be sent in peacetime "without further congressional approval."

President Truman has said he has full power to deploy troops as he sees fit and will consult Congress only out of politeness.

In mid-evening, the Senate, by a 52 to 29 vote, rejected an amendment by Sen. Mundt (R-SD) which would have advised the President to obtain congressional approval before sending even the four divisions to Western Europe.

Then, shortly after 9 p. m., EST, the Senate knocked off work until noon tomorrow. The original plan had been to pass the resolution tonight but leaders decided too much debate remained.

Administration men fought hard against the Bricker plan to send the resolution back to committee.

Majority Leader McFarland of Arizona declared abandonment of the resolution at this stage would be hailed "as a victory for the Kremlin in its policies of isolating the United States from the rest of the world."

Resolution Termed "Pious Hope"

If the Senate fails to make a decision now, after weeks of debate, "we would be taking a fearful gamble with our country and the security of the free world," the Democratic leader asserted.

But Bricker contended the pending resolution, which he said merely expresses the sense of the Senate, "is nothing but a pious hope."

"It does not bind the President of the United States to do anything," he said.

"It is a sham, a fraud, a hoax on the American people to pass a resolution of this character. It will have no more effect on the President than if we write him a letter and tell him our desires."

Gromyko Criticizes Western Redraft

PARIS, April 3. (AP)—Andrei Gromyko insisted today that any agenda for a Big Four foreign ministers meeting should include the questions of the North Atlantic Pact, the United States' foreign military bases and Trieste.

The Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister cold-shouldered a Western redraft, offered yesterday, which touched on none of the three topics he had advanced recently.

Gromyko did not turn down the redraft, but his critical remarks drew a lecture from French Deputy Alexandre Parodi.

"After four weeks, I thought we had finally put all our cards on the table," Parodi said. "Now the Soviets want to reshuffle them all again."

Mrs. Ruth McCormick Miller, Times-Herald Editor, Quits

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—Mrs. Ruth McCormick Miller resigned tonight as editor in charge of the Washington Times-Herald.

Mrs. Miller—known as "Bazy" to her friends — is a niece of Col. Robert R. McCormick, president and publisher of the Chicago Tribune, which owns the Times-Herald.

She had a notice posted on the Times-Herald bulletin board saying:

"To all staff members:

"I resigned from the Times-Herald today. I tried to buy the paper but was unsuccessful.

"Ruth McCormick Miller."

Other executives of the paper said they had no further detail of the events leading up to the resignation.

The Chicago Tribune bought the Times-Herald in August, 1949, for $4,500,000. Mrs. Miller, then 28, was put in charge at the time.

The purchase was from seven executives of the newspaper, to whom it had been willed by Mrs. Eleanor (Cissie) Patterson upon her death the year before.

Mrs. Patterson was a cousin of Col. McCormick.

The former Ruth Elizabeth McCormick, Mrs Miller is the daughter of the late Sen. Medill McCormick of Illinois and the late Rep. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms. She is a granddaughter of the late Sen. Mark Hanna.

Remove 'Liver' From Little Pills, U. S. Orders Carter's

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—The government has ordered Carter's to knock the word "liver" out of Carter's little liver pills.

Furthermore, the Federal Trade Commission said today, Carter's must stop saying without qualification that its pills are what you need when you're down-and-out, blue, listless, fagged out, down-in-the-dumps, irritable, bilious or sullen.

The FTC conclusion, as summed up in an accompanying statement by Commissioner John Carson:

"Carter's little liver pills were and are, as the findings of fact show, nothing more than an irritative laxative compound."

The company, officially known as Carter's Products, Inc.—has 60 days in which to comply or appeal. In New York, Carter's lawyer, William L. Hannaway, said the company will test the decision in one of the U. S. courts of appeal.

The FTC duling is the climax to a study that has been dragging on for years. The government went all over the country, rounding up experts to test Carter's little liver pills. So also did Carter's.

The result: 47 doctors testified yes, no or maybe. The hearings, spread over a considerable period of time, took 142 days. There were 2,209 exhibits.

Weather Forecast
Partly cloudy and continued cool today; tomorrow fair and warmer.

Yanks Cross 38th Parallel In Force

Troops, Tanks Advance Along 10-Mile Sector

Allies Encounter Little Resistance

TOKYO, Wednesday, April 4 (AP)—U. S. troops and tanks rammed north of the 38th parallel Tuesday along a 10-mile sector in Western Korea and met little resistance from vanguards of nearly one-half million massing Communist soldiers.

The crossing was made in force. It was the first time this year that U. S. troops had entered North Korea in more than patrol strength.

Today's Eighth Army communique pinpointed one force as "southeast of Yonchon." Yonchon is six miles inside Red Korea and 35 miles north of Seoul on the Seoul-Uijongbu railroad and highway.

But below the parallel 25 miles northwest of Seoul, South Koreans crossed the Imjin River and ran into such fierce resistance from 1,000 Reds that they had to pull back.

MacArthur Visits Front

Across the mountainous peninsula where two Republic of Korea divisions already were north of 38 in force, Gen. MacArthur made a surprise inspection within 500 yards of the front. It was his 15th flying visit to the war zone.

There MacArthur gave what amounted to a reply to the Communist high command which had flatly rejected his March 23 offer to negotiate a truce in the field.

"Our strategy remains unchanged in Korea," he told top air, sea and ground commanders who accompanied him. "It is based on maneuver and not positional warfare."

He made clear that the vastly outnumbered United Nations army has no intention of yielding the initiative it maintains.

By nightfall MacArthur was back at his Tokyo headquarters where he appraised fighting conditions as still favorable.

Earlier, MacArthur's headquarters had estimated the Chinese and North Korean Communist forces had a potential strength of 63 divisions on the battle front — the largest number yet committed.

Nearly 100 Red Jets Sighted

Intelligence officers estimated at least 441,000 rested and battle-tried Chines and North Korean troops were preparing a new offensive.

Perhaps double that number were believed in reserve and ready to support the fourth major communist effort to drive U.N. forces out of Korea.

The Communists made a strong aerial appearance Tuesday and precipitated an air battle involving 84 to 94 jets — thel argest jet encounter yet fought. The fight took place near Sinuiju in the northwest corner of Korea.

Three Russian-built MIG jets were shot down and three more MIGs were damaged by U. S. Sabre jets. There were no immediate reports of American losses, if any.

Auriol Gets Typical Broadway Welcome

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP) — Tens of thousands of cheering New Yorkers gave French President Vincent Auriol a Broadway welcome today amid a swirl of ticker tape.

A few shouted "Vive La France" and drew from Auriol a hearty "merci"—French for "thank you."

Police said about 75,000 persons lined lower Broadway or stood in damp, raw and sunless weather outside City Hall for formal welcoming ceremonies.

It was the first time a president of France ever paid New York a visit.

At City Hall, Auriol planted the traditional French kiss on each cheek of beaming Italian-born Mayor Vincent Impellitteri.

Johnston Drafts Directive Fixing "Fair And Equitable" Industrial Profits Standard

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston is drafting a new price control directive fixing a "fair and equitable" standard of industrial profits, government officials reported today.

Still highly tentative, the directive may be issued in a week or two.

It would rule out any price increase that would bring manufacturers' earnings above 85 per cent of average dollar profits in the three most profitable years from 1946 to 1949 inclusive.

COLLAPSES — Sen. Watkins (R-Utah), above, collapsed on the Senate floor last night during debate on the troops-to-Europe issue. After being assisted from the floor, he was reported recovering. Dr. George W. Calver, congressional physician, described his condition as "nothing serious."

The Johnston formula is intended to guide the Office of Price Stabilization in setting industry-by-industry ceilings for manufacturers who now operate under the general price freeze.

Informants said this formula would not roll back prices which already exceed the 85 per cent limit.

Part Of 3-Way Program

It would, however, require manufacturers to absorb increases in wages, materials and other costs until profits fall below the 85 per cent level. Then upward adjustment would be permitted.

The plan is part of a three-way program envisioned by Johnston to "harden" the anti-inflation program.

Labor and agriculture would be brought into the program by these further proposals.

1—To set June 30, 1951, as the final cut-off date for wage boosts under cost-of-living and other "escalator" clauses in union wage contracts.

2—To curb food prices by "freezing" farm parity at the levels of last Jan. 15. Firm ceilings then could be imposed when farm products reached this fixed level.

Parity Is Shifting Price

Under present law, farm ceilings cannot be lower than parity. But parity is a shifting price, rising with increases in the cost of things that farmers buy. Labor has objected that wages should not be tightly controlled while food prices — a major element, in the cost of living —are free to rise.

It was indicated that Congress will be asked to consider the parity question when President Truman makes his proposals for extending and revising the Defense Production Act. That law expires next June 30. Mr. Truman's recommendations may come within a week or two.

Faith Can Save Free Peoples, Truman Says

Divine Providence Guides Democracies

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — President Truman said today that divine providence guides the nations seeking to prevent Communist aggression from sweeping across the world. He addressed a Presbyterian congregation with whose forebears Abraham Lincoln once worshipped.

A biting wind swept the crowd gathered in the street to hear the President say that though the future is "full of uncertainties and sacrifices," the American "need not be afraid, if we have the faith."

Clad in a topcoat, but with his gray head bared to the chill, the President spoke from an improvised wooden platform erected alongside the new building of 150-year-old New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, now nearing completion.

Mr. Truman told the congregation it is his belief God intended this country to cooperate with other nations "to help create peace and preserve peace in the world."

"It is given to us to defend the spiritual values—the moral code—against the vast forces of evil that seek to destroy them," he said.

Mr. Truman said we must carry religion "as a burning faith" through the trials ahead.

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — President Truman expressed confidence tonight that the United States and its allies will go forward "with speed and vigor" in building defenses against Communism.

He issued a statement one day after the administration suffered a setback in the Senate on the troops-for-Europe issue. The Senate approved an amendment saying that no more than four additional American divisions should be sent to Europe without the approval of Congress.

The President made no mention of that reverse in a statement he issued to mark the second anniversary of the signing of the North Atlantic Treaty, pledging mutual defense against Communism. The treaty was signed two years ago tomorrow.

Inter-American Group Approves Defense Buildup

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — A recommendation that all the American republics strengthen their armed forces, for instant use in the event of aggression against any of them, was approved today by a subcommittee of the Inter-American Foreign Ministers Conference.

This was the first of several actions planned by the conference to build up Western Hemisphere defenses.

The recommendation calls on the Inter-American Defense Board to keep a common defense plan up to date, working "as vigorously as possible and in close liaison with the governments through their respective delegations."

Separate action was planned by the subcommittee on another proposal that the American republics maintain specially trained units for support of United Nations actions.

In another conference development, John Foster Dulles said Soviet bloc vetoes on admission of new members to the United Nations are becoming "increasingly intolerable."

"I believe that the United Nations Assembly should at an early date give consideration to how this problem can be practically solved," he said.

Dulles, Republican adviser to the State Department, made it plain that he expects a Red bloc effort to keep Japan out of the U. N. after a Japanese peace treaty is signed. This would make it difficult, he said, to develop a real security system for the Pacific.

That, Vinson told the House, would "force on the backs of the American people the necessity for maintaining for an indefinite period a large standing force which x x x will eventually jeopardize and possible ruin the economic stability of this nation."

"For the forseeable future and perhaps beyond," he said, "this nation has no alternative but to be ready for any form of aggression that may be forced upon us."

The Soviet Union "listens only to a nation whose voice is backed by steel," he said.

Werdel accused the nation's military leaders of wanting to take charge of "every phase of our national life in time of war."

Two Leaders Of UE Acquitted Of Contempt

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—Two more defendants in contempt of Congress cases were freed today.

In acquitting two leaders of the left-wing United Electrical Workers, Federal Judge James W. Morris told Congress how it can get information it needs without imparing the constitutional rights of witness.

This can be done, Judge Morris said, by providing "complete immunity" to a witness when the information sought is considered relatively more important in the public interest than the punishment of the witness for a crime.

Acquitted by Judge Morris were Thomas Fitzpatrick of Pittsburgh and Talmadge Raley of Cincinnati.

Taxpayers Given More Cheering News By Snyder

New Levies In 1952 Depend On Two "Ifs"

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Snyder gave the taxpayers some cheering news today: They may not be asked for more billions in new taxes next year after all.

But this will be possible, he added quickly, only if (1) Congress votes a $10,000,000,000 tax increase soon, and (2) defense costs in the months ahead stay at the presently estimated level.

Both of these looked like pretty big "ifs."

Republican lawmakers predicted new taxes this year would not exceed $7,500,000,000 and might be much less. They said government spending can be cut enough to balance the 1951-53 budget with some such amount.

"Situation Changes Hourly"

And Snyder himself emphasized that there's no guarantee defense costs won't rise sharply if the world situation worsens.

As a World War One artillery captain, he said, he learned the maxim: "In a war of movement, the tactical situation changes hourly." ly."

Nevertheless his well-hedged forecast today, made at a news conference, was even more optimistic than the one he gave yesterday to the House Ways and Means Committee.

He told the House group the administration would be satisfied now with a $10,000,000,000 tax rise instead of the $16,500,000,000 it was talking about only last January. He said consideration of a "second round" increase could be postponed until next January.

Revenues Exceed Estimates

Today Snyder said he will ask for this "second round" only if the budget picture changes so much that higher revenues will have to be sought to keep the government out of the red.

He gave two reasons for the brighter tax outlook: Government revenues have been higher than expected while military spending has been less than expected. Instead of a $2,700,000,000 deficit at the end of the present fiscal year, he now expects a $3,000,000,000 surplus.

Senate Spurns Move To Bind Truman Hands

Bricker's Plan Is Rejected, 56 To 31

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — The Senate defeated tonight, 56 to 31, a Republican move to command the President to consult Congress before sending more than four divisions of U. S. troops to Europe.

Administration forces rallied to beat down a motion by Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) which had that aim. He proposed to send a pending troops resolution back to committee with instructions to return it in the form of a bill which would become law.

The resolution, as it stands, is only an advisory expression of the Senate's views.

The administration victory apparently cleared away the last major barrier to Senate approval of the resolution. Its adoption would put senators on record as favoring the dispatch of four U. S. divisions to join the two in Europe already assigned to the North Atlantic defense force.

Senate Works Until 9 P. M.

The resolution—not binding on the President—also would have the Senate say that no more than the four divisions should be sent in peacetime "without further congressional approval."

President Truman has said he has full power to deploy troops as he sees fit and will consult Congress only out of politeness.

In mid-evening, the Senate, by a 52 to 29 vote, rejected an amendment by Sen. Mundt (R-SD) which would have advised the President to obtain congressional approval before sending even the four divisions to Western Europe.

Then, shortly after 9 p. m., EST, the Senate knocked off work until noon tomorrow. The original plan had been to pass the resolution tonight but leaders decided too much debate remained.

Administration men fought hard against the Bricker plan to send the resolution back to committee.

Majority Leader McFarland of Arizona declared abandonment of the resolution at this stage would be hailed "as a victory for the Kremlin in its policies of isolating the United States from the rest of the world."

Resolution Termed "Pious Hope"

If the Senate fails to make a decision now, after weeks of debate, "we would be taking a fearful gamble with our country and the security of the free world," the Democratic leader asserted.

But Bricker contended the pending resolution, which he said merely expresses the sense of the Senate, "is nothing but a pious hope."

"It does not bind the President of the United States to do anything," he said.

"It is a sham, a fraud, a hoax on the American people to pass a resolution of this character. It will have no more effect on the President than if we write him a letter and tell him our desires."

Gromyko Criticizes Western Redraft

PARIS, April 3. (AP)—Andrei Gromyko insisted today that any agenda for a Big Four foreign ministers meeting should include the questions of the North Atlantic Pact, the United States' foreign military bases and Trieste.

The Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister cold-shouldered a Western redraft, offered yesterday, which touched on none of the three topics he had advanced recently.

Gromyko did not turn down the redraft, but his critical remarks drew a lecture from French Deputy Alexandre Parodi.

"After four weeks, I thought we had finally put all our cards on the table," Parodi said. "Now the Soviets want to reshuffle them all again."

Mrs. Ruth McCormick Miller, Times-Herald Editor, Quits

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—Mrs. Ruth McCormick Miller resigned tonight as editor in charge of the Washington Times-Herald.

Mrs. Miller—known as "Bazy" to her friends — is a niece of Col. Robert R. McCormick, president and publisher of the Chicago Tribune, which owns the Times-Herald.

She had a notice posted on the Times-Herald bulletin board saying:

"To all staff members:

"I resigned from the Times-Herald today. I tried to buy the paper but was unsuccessful.

"Ruth McCormick Miller."

Other executives of the paper said they had no further detail of the events leading up to the resignation.

The Chicago Tribune bought the Times-Herald in August, 1949, for $4,500,000. Mrs. Miller, then 28, was put in charge at the time.

The purchase was from seven executives of the newspaper, to whom it had been willed by Mrs. Eleanor (Cissie) Patterson upon her death the year before.

Mrs. Patterson was a cousin of Col. McCormick.

The former Ruth Elizabeth McCormick, Mrs Miller is the daughter of the late Sen. Medill McCormick of Illinois and the late Rep. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms. She is a granddaughter of the late Sen. Mark Hanna.

Remove 'Liver' From Little Pills, U. S. Orders Carter's

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—The government has ordered Carter's to knock the word "liver" out of Carter's little liver pills.

Furthermore, the Federal Trade Commission said today, Carter's must stop saying without qualification that its pills are what you need when you're down-and-out, blue, listless, fagged out, down-in-the-dumps, irritable, bilious or sullen.

The FTC conclusion, as summed up in an accompanying statement by Commissioner John Carson:

"Carter's little liver pills were and are, as the findings of fact show, nothing more than an irritative laxative compound."

The company, officially known as Carter's Products, Inc.—has 60 days in which to comply or appeal. In New York, Carter's lawyer, William L. Hannaway, said the company will test the decision in one of the U. S. courts of appeal.

The FTC duling is the climax to a study that has been dragging on for years. The government went all over the country, rounding up experts to test Carter's little liver pills. So also did Carter's.

The result: 47 doctors testified yes, no or maybe. The hearings, spread over a considerable period of time, took 142 days. There were 2,209 exhibits.

Prober Backs Save-RFC Plan

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark), whose investigating committee charged favoritism and "influence" in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, urged today that the RFC be kept in business—but under new management.

Fulbright endorsed President Truman's proposal to abolish the present five-man board of directors of the multi-billion-dollar lending agency and replace it with a single administrator.

The Arkansas Democrat thus sought to check the "kill the RFC" drive touched off in Congress by the allegations of the Banking subcommittee which he heads. The committee developed in public hearings its contention that RFC loans have been influenced by a pressure group reaching into the White House.

Fulbright and Sen. Capehart (R-Ind) were the final witnesses in the Senate Expenditures Committee's hearings on Mr. Truman's RFC reorganization plan, which already has survived House attacks and will go into effect April 20 unless the Senate turns it down.

Battlefield Vies In Experimental

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP)—Battlefield, the champion two-year old of last season, and ten other Kentucky Derby eligibles were among the 17 three-year-olds named today to start in the $20,000 added Experimental Handicap No. 1, at Jamaica tomorrow.

Battlefield will be making his first start since he romped home a winner in the rich Belmont Futurity on Sept. 30. The chestnut son of War Relic set a record for two-year-old colts in winning $198,677. He never finished out of the money in 13 races, winning ten. Hhe was second twice and third once.

O'Neill Suffers Neuritis Attack

SARASOTA, Fla., April 3 (AP)—Manager Steve O'Neill of the Boston Red Sox suffered a painful neuritis attack in his right elbow today as wet grounds caused cancellation of the club's final practice before breaking camp.

Although confined to his room all morning, O'Neill planned to leave with the team later in the day for Jacksonville, first stop on the homeward trip. The Sox boss suffered a similar attack in his knee this spring during a visit of major leaguers to GI occupation forces in Germany.

The Sockers meet Jacksonville of the Class A Sally League tomorrow.

Pitcher Bill Wight also is on the sidelines with a touch of "flu."

Ferrier Is Favored In Masters Tourney

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 3 (AP)—Towering Jim Ferrier checked in at the Masters Golf Tournament today with his aluminum-plated putter still smoking from a series of winter successes.

If he was surprised to find he is the people's choice to take this 15th annual battle of golf's goliaths, beginning Saturday, he failed to show it.

"The man who can putt will win this tournament," the transplanted Australian said as he rammed home a 40-foot practice nudge on the seventh green without batting an eyelash.

Ferrier has finished 1-1-1-2-2 in the last five tournaments, winning at St. Petersburg, Miami Beach and Jacksonville and finishing a fast-closing second at Greensboro and Wilmington, N. C.

West Va. Lad, Leg Broken, Hobbles And Hitches 15 Miles To Hospital

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., April 3 (AP)—Jimmy Sloan, a tobacco-chewing lad of 13, lay in his hospital bed tonight and told a story of hobbling and hitching more than 15 miles on homemade crutches for treatment of a neglected broken leg.

The youngster suffered a fractured right leg about three and a half weeks ago while staying at the farm of relatives near Stiltner in neighboring Wayne County. He fell from his uncle's horse while working on the farm.

After about three weeks of intense pain and sleepless nights, Jimmy decided he should see a doctor.

He and a buddy made a pair of crutches out of four bean-poles and sawed-off lengths of a broom handle. With this makeshift apparatus under his arms, a pair of heavy Army combat boots on his feet, and a supply of tobacco in his pocket, Jimmy headed for Wayne.

He hobbled seven miles from the isolated farm to the paved highway. A motorist picked him up and took him within a mile of Wayne. He pulled himself the rest of the way into town.

There Jimmy found a doctor, and another new friend, Mrs. Charles W. Ferguson, wife of a circuit judge who arranged for his admission to an orthopedic hospital here.

He entered the hospital and was put in traction. Tomorrow, he'll undergo surgery for correction of the fracture.

More Austerity Facing Britons

LONDON, April 3. (AP)—The Labor government laid before Britons today the prospect of doing without many things they need so the nation can build enough guns, tanks and planes to defend itself.

Blame for this was laid on Soviet Russia, whose armies were declared "a menace to us all."

The forecasts were made in a 25,000-word economic suvey published by the Treasury. It was the fifth such annual survey.

The nation will be walking an economic tightrope as long as the arms program continues, the survey said. The present program is for three years, but "we cannot foretell how long" the nation must keep on bearing the burden of guns, it said.

This picture of further austerity was drawn by Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Gaitskell, who succeeded the ailing Sir Stafford Cripps as the nation's economic leader last October.

The survey pointed out these troubles:

Domestic prices will rise considerably because of rising world prices and shortages caused by use of materials for arms and exports instead of for home consumption goods. This will "present us with a grave problem in maintaining stability at home."

Despite rising prices "there should be no unreasonable increases in wages, salaries or profits," which, the survey said, would just increase demands for scarce goods and make inflation worse.

More women must go to work. The survey called for an increase in working women of 168,000 during the next two years, while male manpower falls by 91,000, largely because of increases in the armed forces.

HOLLYWOOD, April 3 (INS) — Actor Spencer Tracy was named America's "Father of the Year" today after a nationwide poll by members of the American florists who singled him out for his portrayal of fathers in two motion pictures last year.

Woman, 84, Hangs By Four Fingers For Eight Hours

MONTICELLO, N. Y., April 3 (AP) —An 84-year-old woman was reported by state police today to have hung by four fingers from an attic trap door for eight hours yesterday with apparently only minor injuries resulting.

State police at nearby Wurtsboro said Mrs. Elsie Henye, who lives alone at Yankee Lake near Monticello, climbed a ladder leading to the attic of her home at 7 a. m. The ladder fell as she was opening the trap door and the door closed tightly on four fingers of her right hand, the police said.

Later a neighbor, William Yeoman, came to visit and heard Mrs. Henye's creams. Yeoman rescued her and took her to a hospital.

Tydings Claims New Evidence In Probe

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — Former Sen. Tydings came forward today with a claim of "new evidence" which may delay conclusion of the Senate's investigation of the 1950 Maryland senatorial campaign another week or more.

The veteran Democrat who was defeated last November by Republican John M. Butler appeared in a closed session of the four-member hearing committee and asked that his additional information be investigated.

Chairman Monroney (D-Okla) told reporters the information was "important enough to check" and called another executive session for tomorrow.

Political Kitty Grows

CLEVELAND, April 3 (AP) — The CIO United Auto Workers union multiplied its political action kitty tenfold today .

By allocating ten cents of a new $2.50 monthly dues rate to a "citizenship fund," the UAW convention assured the union of an estimated $1,500,000 a year to help elect the candidates it likes.

Maryland Demos Have Rough Time

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 3 (AP)—Maryland Democratic Party leaders have been having a rough time of it.

No one party figure or group of leaders can lay claim to state-wide dominance, and intra-party factionalism has hampered all efforts to present a solid front.

All of which is not hurting Republican Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin a bit.

Those facts became very apparent during the 90-day General Assembly session which ended early today.

House Majority Leader Boone (D-Baltimore County) admitted in a floor speech a few days ago his party "has reached a low ebb."

Almost every top party leader received at least one rebuff at the hands of the Legislature or his fellow Democrats during the Assembly session.

O'Neill Suffers Neuritis Attack

SARASOTA, Fla., April 3 (AP)—Manager Steve O'Neill of the Boston Red Sox suffered a painful neuritis attack in his right elbow today as wet grounds caused cancellation of the club's final practice before breaking camp.

Although confined to his room all morning, O'Neill planned to leave with the team later in the day for Jacksonville, first stop on the homeward trip. The Sox boss suffered a similar attack in his knee this spring during a visit of major leaguers to GI occupation forces in Germany.

The Sockers meet Jacksonville of the Class A Sally League tomorrow.

Pitcher Bill Wight also is on the sidelines with a touch of "flu."

Ferrier Is Favored In Masters Tourney

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 3 (AP)—Towering Jim Ferrier checked in at the Masters Golf Tournament today with his aluminum-plated putter still smoking from a series of winter successes.

If he was surprised to find he is the people's choice to take this 15th annual battle of golf's goliaths, beginning Saturday, he failed to show it.

"The man who can putt will win this tournament," the transplanted Australian said as he rammed home a 40-foot practice nudge on the seventh green without batting an eyelash.

Ferrier has finished 1-1-1-2-2 in the last five tournaments, winning at St. Petersburg, Miami Beach and Jacksonville and finishing a fast-closing second at Greensboro and Wilmington, N. C.

Actress Seeks Divorce

West Va. Lad, Leg Broken, Hobbles And Hitches 15 Miles To Hospital

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., April 3 (AP)—Jimmy Sloan, a tobacco-chewing lad of 13, lay in his hospital bed tonight and told a story of hobbling and hitching more than 15 miles on homemade crutches for treatment of a neglected broken leg.

The youngster suffered a fractured right leg about three and a half weeks ago while staying at the farm of relatives near Stiltner in neighboring Wayne County. He fell from his uncle's horse while working on the farm.

After about three weeks of intense pain and sleepless nights, Jimmy decided he should see a doctor.

He and a buddy made a pair of crutches out of four bean-poles and sawed-off lengths of a broom handle. With this makeshift apparatus under his arms, a pair of heavy Army combat boots on his feet, and a supply of tobacco in his pocket, Jimmy headed for Wayne.

He hobbled seven miles from the isolated farm to the paved highway. A motorist picked him up and took him within a mile of Wayne. He pulled himself the rest of the way into town.

There Jimmy found a doctor, and another new friend, Mrs. Charles W. Ferguson, wife of a circuit judge who arranged for his admission to an orthopedic hospital here.

He entered the hospital and was put in traction. Tomorrow, he'll undergo surgery for correction of the fracture.

Whale Pot Roast

NEWARK, N. J., April 3 (AP) — Some 1,000 employes of the New Jersey Bell Telephone Co. ate whale pot roast today and most of them said they liked it.

The whale meat was served in the company cafeteria as an experiment in adding variety to the menu, the firm said.

More Austerity Facing Britons

LONDON, April 3. (AP)—The Labor government laid before Britons today the prospect of doing without many things they need so the nation can build enough guns, tanks and planes to defend itself.

Blame for this was laid on Soviet Russia, whose armies were declared "a menace to us all."

The forecasts were made in a 25,000-word economic suvey published by the Treasury. It was the fifth such annual survey.

The nation will be walking an economic tightrope as long as the arms program continues, the survey said. The present program is for three years, but "we cannot foretell how long" the nation must keep on bearing the burden of guns, it said.

This picture of further austerity was drawn by Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Gaitskell, who succeeded the ailing Sir Stafford Cripps as the nation's economic leader last October.

The survey pointed out these troubles:

Domestic prices will rise considerably because of rising world prices and shortages caused by use of materials for arms and exports instead of for home consumption goods. This will "present us with a grave problem in maintaining stability at home."

Despite rising prices "there should be no unreasonable increases in wages, salaries or profits," which, the survey said, would just increase demands for scarce goods and make inflation worse.

More women must go to work. The survey called for an increase in working women of 168,000 during the next two years, while male manpower falls by 91,000, largely because of increases in the armed forces.

Tracy "Father Of Year"

Woman, 84, Hangs By Four Fingers For Eight Hours

MONTICELLO, N. Y., April 3 (AP) —An 84-year-old woman was reported by state police today to have hung by four fingers from an attic trap door for eight hours yesterday with apparently only minor injuries resulting.

State police at nearby Wurtsboro said Mrs. Elsie Henye, who lives alone at Yankee Lake near Monticello, climbed a ladder leading to the attic of her home at 7 a. m. The ladder fell as she was opening the trap door and the door closed tightly on four fingers of her right hand, the police said.

Later a neighbor, William Yeoman, came to visit and heard Mrs. Henye's creams. Yeoman rescued her and took her to a hospital.

Tydings Claims New Evidence In Probe

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — Former Sen. Tydings came forward today with a claim of "new evidence" which may delay conclusion of the Senate's investigation of the 1950 Maryland senatorial campaign another week or more.

The veteran Democrat who was defeated last November by Republican John M. Butler appeared in a closed session of the four-member hearing committee and asked that his additional information be investigated.

Chairman Monroney (D-Okla) told reporters the information was "important enough to check" and called another executive session for tomorrow.

Political Kitty Grows

CLEVELAND, April 3 (AP) — The CIO United Auto Workers union multiplied its political action kitty tenfold today.

By allocating ten cents of a new $2.50 monthly dues rate to a "citizenship fund," the UAW convention assured the union of an estimated $1,500,000 a year to help elect the candidates it likes.

Maryland Demos Have Rough Time

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 3 (AP)—Maryland Democratic Party leaders have been having a rough time of it.

No one party figure or group of leaders can lay claim to state-wide dominance, and intra-party factionalism has hampered all efforts to present a solid front.

All of which is not hurting Republican Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin a bit.

Those facts became very apparent during the 90-day General Assembly session which ended early today.

House Majority Leader Boone (D-Baltimore County) admitted in a floor speech a few days ago his party "has reached a low ebb."

Almost every top party leader received at least one rebuff at the hands of the Legislature or his fellow Democrats during the Assembly session.

'Big Operator' Made Attempt To 'Buy' Him, Kefauver Says

NEW YORK — (AP) — Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) says that a "big business operator" attempted to "buy" him during the investigation by the Senate Crime Committee.

The committee chairman did not name the man or make clear why the attempt was made.

Writing in the Saturday Evening Post, the Senator said the business man offered, among other things, a six-figure contribution to the Democratic National Committee.

Sen. Kefauver said he would not name the individual "because as yet, so far as the law is concerned, there is nothing against him, except for some very shabby publicity."

The Senator said the man's name had been brought before the committee "in a collateral fashion." Beyond that, he did not identify him.

He said the man was introduced to him by a former Tennessee constituent, who had moved to another state. Telling the story, Sen. Kefauver referred to the business man as "Mr. X." The Senator reported:

"Mr. X was very persuasive. Item 1: He told me he wanted to make 'a substantial contribution' to the Democratic National Committee—'in six figures,' he said—but 'only on the condition that they know I'm doing it on account of you.' All he wanted was an O.K. from me to go to the committee and tell them he was my boy. I told him I didn't think the national committee would care for that and that he was not to appear as 'my boy' under any circumstances.

"Item 2: He'd been looking around my office and thought my staff was terribly overworked. Couldn't he send me two expert secretaries from his own office—'I'll pay them and nobody has to know anything about it'—to help me out? No, he couldn't.

"Item 3: Well, he said, I must have a lot of 'literature' to mail out. Why not let his big staff of office workers handle that for me? Again, no sale.

"One would think that three strikes would spell 'out,' even to an unperceptive man. But Mr. X was persistent. If he couldn't give the contribution 'in six figures' in my name; if he couuldn't buy me two secretaries; if he couldn't even have his girls address envelopes for me, could he at least give 'a big cocktail party for you and Mrs. Kefauver, or for any of your friends, and invite a lot of important people in Washington?'

"Mr. X, I am sure, is going to continue to make a lot of money—at least for a while. But . . . I still wonder just how cheap do these fellows think their public representatives are? The shame of it, of course, is that the responsibility rests upon the heads of certain public servants who have let these Mr. X's come to believe that anyone and every one can be bought, like a chattel, for a price ranging anywhere from 'six figures' down to a cocktail party."

Speaking more broadly under the title, "What I Found In The Underworld," Sen. Kefauver said America has come close to "the saturation point of criminal and political corruption which may pull us down entirely."

He recalled other nations where the "infection of criminal and political corruption set in and progressed to the point where democracy and national strength were utterly lost."

"I say," Sen. Kefauver continued, "that we are dangerously close to that ruination point. However . . . we can beat organized crime if all good citizens will open their eyes to the danger we are in."

Twain's Library To Be Auctioned

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Mark Twain's 3,000-book library, together with many of his autographed papers and house furnishings, are being auctioned off next week.

The auction was announced by Mrs. Clara Samossoud, 57, the only surviving daughter of the humorist. She displayed several of his letters, including one declining an invitation to attend a funeral. "I can't attend the Senator's funeral, but I heartily approve," it reads.

The wife of Jacques Samossoud 60, a symphony orchestra conductor, said "I'm disposing of everything. Jacques and I are going to become Gypsies."

She said some items will be kept, others will be given to museums and colleges, including the Hannibal, Mo., Mark Twain Museum in the home where the writer lived as a boy.

The 12-room two story Samossoud home in a five-acre estate in Hollywood Hills also will be sold.

Mrs. Samossoud, widow of famed Pianist Ossip Gabrilowitsch, explains the auction with the question "why wait until I die to dispose of them?"

'Big Operator' Made Attempt To 'Buy' Him, Kefauver Says

NEW YORK — (AP) — Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) says that a "big business operator" attempted to "buy" him during the investigation by the Senate Crime Committee.

The committee chairman did not name the man or make clear why the attempt was made.

Writing in the Saturday Evening Post, the Senator said the business man offered, among other things, a six-figure contribution to the Democratic National Committee.

Sen. Kefauver said he would not name the individual "because as yet, so far as the law is concerned, there is nothing against him, except for some very shabby publicity."

The Senator said the man's name had been brought before the committee "in a collateral fashion." Beyond that, he did not identify him.

He said the man was introduced to him by a former Tennessee constituent, who had moved to another state. Telling the story, Sen. Kefauver referred to the business man as "Mr. X." The Senator reported:

"Mr. X was very persuasive. Item 1: He told me he wanted to make 'a substantial contribution' to the Democratic National Committee—'in six figures,' he said—but 'only on the condition that they know I'm doing it on account of you.' All he wanted was an O.K. from me to go to the committee and tell them he was my boy. I told him I didn't think the national committee would care for that and that he was not to appear as 'my boy' under any circumstances.

"Item 2: He'd been looking around my office and thought my staff was terribly overworked. Couldn't he send me two expert secretaries from his own office—'I'll pay them and nobody has to know anything about it'—to help me out? No, he couldn't.

"Item 3: Well, he said, I must have a lot of 'literature' to mail out. Why not let his big staff of office workers handle that for me? Again, no sale.

"One would think that three strikes would spell 'out,' even to an unperceptive man. But Mr. X was persistent. If he couldn't give the contribution 'in six figures' in my name; if he couuldn't buy me two secretaries; if he couldn't even have his girls address envelopes for me, could he at least give 'a big cocktail party for you and Mrs. Kefauver, or for any of your friends, and invite a lot of important people in Washington?'

"Mr. X, I am sure, is going to continue to make a lot of money—at least for a while. But . . . I still wonder just how cheap do these fellows think their public representatives are? The shame of it, of course, is that the responsibility rests upon the heads of certain public servants who have let these Mr. X's come to believe that anyone and every one can be bought, like a chattel, for a price ranging anywhere from 'six figures' down to a cocktail party."

Speaking more broadly under the title, "What I Found In The Underworld," Sen. Kefauver said America has come close to "the saturation point of criminal and political corruption which may pull us down entirely."

He recalled other nations where the "infection of criminal and political corruption set in and progressed to the point where democracy and national strength were utterly lost."

"I say," Sen. Kefauver continued, "that we are dangerously close to that ruination point. However . . . we can beat organized crime if all good citizens will open their eyes to the danger we are in."

Twain's Library To Be Auctioned

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Mark Twain's 3,000-book library, together with many of his autographed papers and house furnishings, are being auctioned off next week.

The auction was announced by Mrs. Clara Samossoud, 57, the only surviving daughter of the humorist. She displayed several of his letters, including one declining an invitation to attend a funeral. "I can't attend the Senator's funeral, but I heartily approve," it reads.

The wife of Jacques Samossoud 60, a symphony orchestra conductor, said "I'm disposing of everything. Jacques and I are going to become Gypsies."

She said some items will be kept, others will be given to museums and colleges, including the Hannibal, Mo., Mark Twain Museum in the home where the writer lived as a boy.

The 12-room two story Samossoud home in a five-acre estate in Hollywood Hills also will be sold.

Mrs. Samossoud, widow of famed Pianist Ossip Gabrilowitsch, explains the auction with the question "why wait until I die to dispose of them?"

Turning an automobile's front wheels into a curbing at an angle of about 45 degrees when parking on a hill is a good safety measure.

Copper Import Tax

A bill to suspend the import tax on copper has been unanimously approved by the House Ways and Means committee, and will probably be passed by the House soon. The nation needs for its defense program all the copper it can get, and domestic production is meeting only about two-thirds of the present consumption.

The one-third imported comes chiefly from Chile, where U.S. copper companies, especially Anaconda and Kennecott, have large holdings. Opponents of the copper import tax say its chief effect at present is to make the U.S. Government and all U.S. users pay more for the copper they buy.

Copper ranks only behind steel as a raw material for American industry, and the copper price affects most American families directly or indirectly. The metal goes particularly into electrical appliances—telephones, radios, mechanical refrigerators, automobile accessories, etc.—as well as into wire and plumbing and other household equipment.

An import tax of four cents a pound was levied on copper in 1932, later was cut in half by reciprocal tariff agreements. The two-cents impost was suspended for imports for the Government during the war and in 1947 for all copper imports, but went back into force last July 1.

The pending House bill would suspend the import tax until February 15, 1953, but only while the domestic price was at least 24 cents a pound. The New York price of electrolytic copper was down to 17½ cents in May, 1949, was up to 22½ cents at the outbreak of the Korean War, is two cents higher than that, 24½ cents, at the present time.

What Makes Him Tick

There is a character named Tik-Tok in one of the Oz books—a clank-jointed mechanical figure, who had to be wound up occasionally. And a recent movie cartoon introduced an amusing lad named Billy Boing-Boing, or something like that, who could not speak words but could reproduce perfectly any other sound whatever, including the ticking of a clock. These are fictional characters. But there really is a man who ticks.

He is Jack Husband, 21, of Hollis, Okla., who has just been accepted by the armed forces despite his idiosyncrasy. He ticks all the time, just like a clock, and he doesn't need winding up.

Jack isn't sure whether he has always ticked, and took it for granted, or whether it started around the time he was nine. That, at any rate, is when somebody else first noticed it. He was wrestling with another kid, who suddenly asked: "What's that?" Only then did Jack realize that other people didn't tick, too.

Apparently it is inside his head, somewhere. Other people can hear it clearly when they get within six inches of Jack's left ear. It doesn't bother Jack, and Army doctors passed him readily. It has bothered more than 200 other doctors, though, who have examined Jack and cannot explain what makes him tick.

Jack himself is bothered only when he stops ticking, which seems to happen at high altitudes. Then the silence nearly drives him crazy, he says. He would like to be in the Air Force, but he doesn't know whether he may crack up if he stops ticking every time he flies. It's all a matter of what a person is used to.

Dividends For Veterans

The Government begins in a few days to mail out checks for dividends accrued on the Government insurance policies kept up by servicemen of World War II. The checks go first for policies with anniversary date in January, then for those with a February date. It is not necessary for the policy-holder to apply; he should get his check not later than 90 days after the month listed in his policy.

The checks will average $85, but naturally will vary considerably by differences in policies. About 8,000,000 policies are eligible, including any allowed to lapse within the last three years. The payments have been ruled exempt from the federal income tax.

The dividends are available because the premiums charged were based on life expectancy tables that have proved too pessimistic. It should be noted that the government insurance payments for death in or from war service have been paid directly from the Treasury, not out of the reserves built up by the insurance policies.

The present payments represent surplus accumulated since 1948. In 1950 payments averaging $175 per policy were paid for the surplus that had accumulated up to 1948, with holders of lapsed policies entitled to something. Hereafter dividend checks are to go out annually for such surplus as has accumulated during the preceding year.

These dividend payments are not to be confused with the ones being paid this year on the government insurance of World War I. The average 1951 dividend on those policies is around $35, with half a million participating. The mortality tables used for the World War I insurance also underestimated life expectancy.

Cherry Blossom Time

The nation's capital opens on Friday its festival on the blossoming of its Japanese cherry trees. It has been held annually since 1934, except during the war years. The date naturally must be fixed in advance, although there is no telling if the weather will bring out the blossoms early or late. The trees are now sprayed with synthetic plant hormones to prolong the life of the blossoms.

The first Japanese cherry trees in Washington were set out along the main drive of Potomac Park in 1909 at the suggestion of the wife of President Taft. Then hundreds more were shipped from Japan as a gift from the Japanese people, only to be destroyed on arrival because infested with insects and fungus disease. The Japanese ambassador is said to have commented: "Oh, well, your first President set an example of destroying cherry trees."

In 1912 several thousand healthy trees, of both the single-blossom and the double-blossom variety, arrived as another gift from Japan and were planted, most of them around the Tidal Basin. A number were uprooted in 1938, over some protest, in landscaping the new Jefferson Memorial. A few were hacked down by "patriots" three days after the attack on Pearl Harbor, and during the war the trees were officially called "Oriental" instead of "Japanese." The double blossoms near the Tidal Basin come out later than the single blossoms around it, as do the single blossoms in a luxuriant display in Kenwood, a Washington suburb.

How To Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Rigidity And Tremor In Parkinson's

PARALYSIS agitans, or Parkinson's disease, is a disorder of the declining years of life. It may occur earlier but the majority of suffers are between 50 and 70. Men are twice as susceptible as women.

The condition begins so insidiously that most afflicted individuals hardly know when it started. Stiffness of the muscles is one of the first signs; those in the face, neck, and trunk bear the brunt initially. Later, the limbs are involved. When the facial muscles are affected the expression is altered and face assumes a fixed, anxious, mournful, masklike appearance. Rigidity of the neck muscles accentuates the picture. The majority never raise or lower the head to look at anything; they turn the whole trunk. Stiffness of the limbs influences the gait as well as the dexterity of the hands.

As the malady progresses, tremor develops, which accounts for the popular name of the disorder—shaking palsy. The head moves up and down at the rate of two to four times per second. The hands do likewise but the most characteristic feature of the tremor is noted in the fingers; the thumb and fingers rub together as tho rolling a pill or cigaret or crumbling bread. While this goes on, the arms usually are flexed at the elbows and the shoulders are stooped. Rigidity and tremor lead to bodily discomfort, restlessness, and fatigue. The victim has difficulty turning over in bed and may encounter dull, aching pain in the muscles of the trunk and limbs. Speech becomes slurred and chewing is difficult; drooling is common. There is extreme sensitivity to changes in temperature and discomfort increases when the room is too cold or too hot. Meanwhile the mind remains keen altho periods of anxiety and depression arise.

The course of the disease is variable. It does not shorten life and the majority live their normal life expectancy. In some instances the condition is progressive; in others it remains stationary after reaching a certain stage. Medical science has remedies to control many of the unpleasant symptoms but to date no cure is available. This is to be expected because the exact cause is not known, and even today we have no idea why the disease affects 100,000 but not the remainder of the population. Because it is a disease of later life, we suspect degeneration of the nerve tissue incident to changes in circulation. Its occurrence in younger persons generally follows severe influenze which is capable of damaging the brain.

Gentle exercise, massage, and passive motion help relieve rigidity. A well balanced diet, rest, and freedom from worry aid in easing mental tension. Care must be taken not to fall lest a confining injury occur. In medication we have the old standbys—stramonium, belladonna, and hyoscine. In a recent survey of 80 advanced cases, various antihistaminics and anticonvulsants were tried. All the products were helpful, but the best results were obtained with combinations of thephorin and artane or scopolamine hydrobromide and benadryl and scopolamine hydrobromide.

TOMORROW: Dr. Van Dellen discusses healing of surgical incisions.

PLANT DERMATITIS

Mrs. N. writes: I broke out in a rash after buying and hanging a philodendron. Does this mean that I am allergic to the plant and will have to give it away?

REPLY

This is a good possibility but to eliminate the outside chance that it is a coincidence, why not be tested for sensitivity? A piece of the plant or an extract of it may be incorporated into a patch and secured to the skin with adhesive tape. If you are sensitive the area will become red in a day or two.

METABOLIC RATE

L. P. writes: Is a plus 15 metabolism considered serious?

REPLY

No, it is within normal limits. Tests of this nature should never be interpreted on their face value. The physician also takes into consideration the individual's complaints and the findings on physical examination.

BLADDER INFLAMMATION

B.T. writes: Is penicillin helpful in cystitis?

REPLY

Yes and so are the newer antibiotics—aureomycin, chloromycetin, and terramycin. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on cystitis.

HABIT

Mrs. R. writes: Can itching of the skin become a habit; that is, after the cause of the original condition has been cured?

REPLY

Yes, and it may be difficult to overcome.

BLIND CAN'T SEE

REPLY

Total blindness screens out all light including colors.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Marshall Works Harder Than Most Executives; Cattle Feed Shortage Behind Trigg's Dismissal; Presidential Pique Has Held Up Price Controls

WASHINGTON—The Washington rumor factory is probably the most active and the most irresponsible in the world. Tales cooked up in Capitol Hill lobbies, the drawing rooms of high society or in a taxicab conversation are spread as fact within a matter of hours.

The story that the late Franklin Roosevelt was insane and had to be chained to his bed at night was a good example. One confidential news agency believed it to the extent of relaying it to its many thousand customers.

Latest Washington canard is that Secretary of Defense George Marshall is in his dotage and unable to come to his office more than half a week.

On the contrary, I can state that Marshall, though 70, is probably in better health than before his kidney operation, gets to the office before 8 a. m., has the papers read and sent out of his office by around 8:20 a. m., and puts in a full six-day week, working even on Saturday.

This is a lot more than most executives do in Washington, New York, or anywhere else.

Marshall is alert, his memory is amazing, and he seems completely on the ball. Furthermore, Marshall has put the old uniform aside and is trying to run the Defense Department as a civilian. This writer had some skepticism about this phase of Marshall's new job when first appointed Secretary of Defense, but the skepticism appears not to have been justified.

Cattle-Feed Shortage

Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan had been at daggers' points over government farm policies for some time with the man he fired last week, Ralph Trigg, chief of production and marketing.

Main reason the ax fell was that the production of certain vital farm crops—chiefly cattle feed—is desperately behind our defense goals.

About 127,000,000 tons of grain will be needed to feed our greatly expanded population of beef cattle and hogs this year. However, farmers have planted or scheduled for planting only enough acres to produce 117,000,000 tons of feed grain.

Corn will be about 5,000,000 acres short of the 90,000,000-acre production goal fixed by Brannan—which Trigg was supposed to deliver. Plantings of barley are 1,600,000 acres behind schedule and sorghum grain about 500,000 acres short.

At the same time we have 4,000,000 more beef cattle and over 5,000,000 more hogs to feed this year than in 1950. The pinch may not be felt this year because of feed-grain reserves. However, with these reserves exhausted, we will face a serious cutback in cattle production for defense needs—and therefore a meat shortage—in 1952.

Manpower shortage on the farms is one reason—perhaps the chief one—for the failure to divert more grasslands to planting feed grain. Knowing that their sons and younger hired hands would be drafted, farmers have held back from planting too much corn, which takes a lot of labor to harvest. However, Trigg did little about importing labor from Mexico and elsewhere to fill the gap.

NOTE—While we have been suffering from a farm-labor shortage, British troops have had to put down riots in the British West Indies because of unemployment.

Washington Pipeline

Illustrating the Washington canard factory here is another I heard recently: "Drew Pearson has now sold out to Pan American Airways. He got a free trip to Europe with Pan American and is now in their pocket." . . . Real fact is that I paid my way to Europe on Pan American as I have on every other airline—unlike Roy Howard, publisher of a great newspaper chain, who has been a Pan American "guest" all over the world. However, I do not hesitate to pay tribute to Pan American's efficient operation across the Atlantic. If its Washington lobbying were on as clean a basis as its overseas operation, I could find no fault with Pan Am. . . . The Senate Small Business Committee will investigate the Civil Aeronautics Board for trying to regulate small, unchartered airlines out of business . . . Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston has recommended tighter controls on farm prices and wages. He wants to freeze farm parity prices at the January 15 level, then abolish the wage escalator clause which permits wages to rise with prices. His proposal is to plug the wage loophole after June 30, 1951.

Presidential Pique

President Truman's pique and an economist's desire to throw off his new deal label are back of the Administration's tragic failure to clamp on price controls six months ago.

This never-told story starts last

Farm Crop Immunity

By MARK SULLIVAN

COMPLAINING bitterly about rising cost of living, Republican Congresswoman St. George of New York declared that "the Truman Administration . . . has deliberately sponsored inflation." To some the accusation may seem shocking, because at this time the Administration is striving to check inflation, has set up an immense governmental mechanism for that purpose.

Yet it is a fact that the thing the Administration is striving to check was not merely sponsored by it but in large part created by it. The sum of several Administration policies has resulted in "an unbeatable mechanism of built-in inflation"—the apt and vivid phrase is in a recent report by a Congressional committee headed by Sen. O'Mahoney. A similar phrase, used foresightedly and warningly by Mr. Bernard M. Baruch some two years ago was "a perpetual inflation machine."

What the people seek anxiously to learn now is whether Mr. Truman will be able to destroy the Frankenstein he created. To do so he must go counter to groups he in the past has favored and depended upon politically. In his speech accepting the Presidential nomination in 1948 he flagrantly reminded farmers and labor of being under obligation of gratitude to the Democratic party; by strong implication he promised those groups occasion for still more gratitude, and in his campaign speeches made the promises specific and glaring. He got the gratitude, conspicuously from the farm vote, and he won the election.

Leader Or Prisoner

Policies and attitudes of the Truman Administration that gave advantage to farmers and labor have been the dynamic parts of the inflation mechanism. Labor got round after round of wage raises. These were followed by increases in prices of manufactured goods. The increased prices of manufactured and other goods that farmers buy was used by the Department of Agriculture as the basis of higher official support figures for farm prices. These led to higher cost of living, and higher cost of living became the basis of demands by labor for still further wage raises. That was the spiral mechanism of inflation.

Now President Truman faces the need of turning the spiral back. In attempting this he had an experience familiar in politics. When a President or political leader builds up a relationship with a group, solicits and receives their votes and in turn shows favor to them, the relationship not infrequently comes to an ambiguous stage. It becomes uncertain whether the leader leads the group or is prisoner to them, whether the attitude of the group will be one of gratitude or truculence, whether it will defer to him or bully him.

Mr. Truman is at this stage now. He has set up an organization for combating inflation and otherwise bringing about economic mobilization. Toward this organization the attitude of labor leaders is one of harsh excoriation. Much of their attitude is familiar to the public, they proclaim it in radio addresses and otherwise.

As to Mr. Truman there is strongly implied evidence of their attitude in a statement by one whom he appointed to a head place in the organization, Economic Stabilizer Alan H. Valentine. After serving a few weeks Mr. Valentine resigned, and later stated the circumstances. With obvious reference to his own case he spoke a generalization: "Any man not supported by organized labor, or by the White House secretariat, or by the Democratic National Committee, needs to watch his step, and I was unpopular with all three." Mr. Valentine added, "The president gave me no support for some weeks against heavy odds. . ."

Recognizing Problem

As to the farm group, favor toward them and toward price support of farm crops, largely for a political motive without much doubt, was shown in Congress when it was writing the statute in which the organization for checking inflation was authorized. There was inserted in the statute a provision which forbade the putting of any ceilings on farm crops that had not reached the parity standards fixed by the department of Agriculture (or an equivalent standard). Persons responsible for checking inflation have implied strongly though guardedly that the checking of inflation cannot be accomplished so long as this immunity is enjoyed by a large proportion of farm crops. It is difficult if not vain to put limitations on the prices of food in retail shops when no limitations are put on the farm crops from which the food is derived.

The impediment to successfully checking inflation that lies in immunity of many farm crops is beginning to be recognized by some leaders of farm groups and some farm spokesmen in Congress. There is a tentative beginning toward action looking to modification of price support.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—Congress is up against a tough decision that it must make before long—whether, in the face of a rising income from taxes already levied, it should go ahead and increase the tax rates just the same.

The last time a new tax law was passed—in the autumn of 1950—the psychology of war and tension was in the air. Korea had been a reverse for us and the rearmament program was being blueprinted with all sorts of fantastic guesses as to the billions it would cost.

Today the defense figures are more definite and there is a better idea of how much money is actually being produced on the revenue side.

Will Need Explaining

What is changing the picture, of course, and affecting the congressional problem is the psychology of surplus. The present fiscal year, which ends June 30 next, will not show a deficit of $2,700,000,000 as President Truman and the Treasury experts predicted several months ago, but there will be a surplus of at least $2,000,000,000. Receipts are better than heretofore estimated.

It's a difficult thing to raise tax rates in the face of a psychology of surplus. The country will not understand it without a lot of explaining. Also the country will demand that the expenditure side be carefully re-examined to see if next year's expenses need be as high as planned.

What brings to some extent the surplus in the present fiscal year—apart from added receipts—is the fact that expenditures are not yet running at the rate anticipated or at the rate they will attain in the next fiscal year. There's always a lag between the time when money is appropriated and the time it is actually spent. An interval of unavoidable delay occurs as contracts have to be carefully allocated and specifications written.

Thus, in the fiscal year which starts July 1 next the rate of spending will be higher for the full 12 months than it has been this fiscal year. The armament program will get into full swing in 1952. By the end of 1953 it should have reached its peak and begun to taper off somewhat.

The question is how to get over the hump—how to meet this accelerated rate of armament building without imposing on the nation a high tax system that could impair incentive and perhaps fasten on the country for many years a method of extracting taxes that would not promote a healthy economy.

The other side of the argument is that, unless taxes are increased and a lot of purchasing power siphoned off, the inflationary spiral will continue. Thus the biggest total of purchasing power is among the persons who earn less than $3,000 a year. The tax rates, relatively speaking, are light on that group. Union-labor spokesmen keep on urging that the tax rates be increased severely on the groups above $3,000 a year—as if that would take care of the Treasury's needs. But there is a point at which the higher the tax rates go, the lower the return—that's an old rule. Also the total amount of earnings of those making more than $3,000 would have to be dipped into heavily in order to avoid taxing the groups under $3,000 a year. There isn't enough in the above-$3,000 group to meet a big treasury deficit.

Some Increases Inevitable

What ought to happen, of course, is the passage of some form of sales tax which would affect all groups and yet not become too damaging in its impact on any. Congress is a bit fearful that a sales tax would prove a political boomerang. The Democratic party, on the other hand, does not know what's in store for it if it raises the taxes during the calendar year 1951 and the country goes into a national election campaign in 1952 with tax rates higher than or equal to those we had during World War II.

Meanwhile, the pressure to cut expenditures has been steadily growing, but Congress has never really been up against the political gun on that one. If the dangers politically of increasing tax rates become apparent, the country may see at least some drastic cutting of expenses.

Yet some increases in tax rates this year will be inevitable. The prospect of carrying a $12,000,000,000 deficit in the next fiscal year will not be relished by any school of economic thought. Still, taxes are not likely to be raised this year to the point forecast a few months ago. Incidentally, Congress will take its time about enacting a new bill. The new rates will probably become effective in the latter half of this year, thus cutting the effect of the increases in half and in some categories to a fourth because of the belated passage of the law.

It could happen that the Congress which meets next January will have the real political battle on its hands and that the Republicans will not aid in any drive for heavy taxes during 1951, preferring to pass a moderate bill and let the majority party take it on the chin in the January session. Whichever way the tax problem is viewed, it is going to provoke unprecedented repercussions in a political sense. In the end, there may be a decision by Congress to increase taxes moderately this year and do some borrowing next year while waiting to see ... the tax rates in 1952—a year of greatly stimulated armament building—actually bring in more receipts than anybody has yet calculated.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

"Neither Five Nor Three"

I DO NOT HAVE many opportunities to read novels, but once I started Helen MacInnes' "Neither Five nor Three," I could not put it down.

This is a story that in a quiet, easy manner produces the process of the corruption of fine people by Communist conspirators who know what they are doing—and are really the only ones in the group who know what they are doing. They naturally go after youth, which is romantic, and after college boys and girls who have potentialities of trained usefulness.

I was most fascinated by the character of Thelma because I know her so well. She is the rich girl who lives on Park Avenue and sells her soul for another thrill. All her life she has been seeking thrills. She does not really contribute anything to life, except what money will buy, which, of course, is not too much.

Happiness she never finds. She is too active ever to be happy. She lacks the courage to stop chasing her tail, as the expression goes. If she stopped, she might have to look at herself, to become acquainted with herself, and to discover that there is nothing to her life but such biological activities which she pursues without knowing why. The thrills she seeks never satisfy her because she is only a spectator in an act, never a true participant.

I know such women. They usually possess inherited wealth, earned by decent, hard-working parents or grandparents of whom they are ashamed because they were not intellectuals. They often call themselves liberals and belong to everything. They join movements on the left and some of them have even become deeply involved in such obscenities as the theft of the atom bomb, by giving dinner parties at which the thieves met, their filthy plots to unfold.

They are not evil women; they are dupes and often dopes, although their parents sent them to the best universities where they came to know the insides of books but little of the cultivation of the spirit. They move from husband to husband, for men grow tired of wives whose minds have become so global that they do not recognize the dust on their own window sills. Their children are abandoned to progressive educational methods which tend to distort their personalities by overemphasizing their faults.

In the end, such women grow wearisome, and even their many movements and societies and clubs seek younger blood. Their liberalism turns to communism, because when their minds are sufficiently dulled, they seek an orthodoxy different from the one they deserted in their youth. They want to be told what to believe and they accept the dictates of fools while rejecting the experience of ages. They accept disciplines from conspirators which they denied when counseled by their parents for good reasons.

Curious, I started discussing Miss MacInnes' novel, "Neither Five nor Three," and wandered into a discussion of the so-called liberal woman who has become a pest in most communities, injecting alien ideas, projecting queer individuals and insisting upon her way or no way, often smearing and attacking those who differ, employing cliches to bring to heel those who thwart her will or ambitions, and always paying money for admission into the company she keeps.

Thelma plays only a short bit in this novel, but it held me and I considered a list of names to see if I could find the one Miss MacInnes meant. But they are a type, and I cannot help wondering how our colleges came to produce these unhappy women. I meet them everywhere, but they proliferate best, I think, in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

Perhaps it is because having divorced themselves from God, they have filled the void with nothing. And nature abhors a vacuum even more than the abnormalities of a cancerous growth. Thus, they become not only miserable, but reflect the ugliness of a degenerative spirit. They dare not know of the ministry of God; nor can a psychiatrist fill the void of their own making.

They are really tortured souls who in the end can only destroy everything about them as they have destroyed themselves. Their tastes become increasingly vulgar; their ideas increasingly sordid. For a while, sex is a refuge, but not for long. Then their souls die.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

Edgar Kemler is the author of an excellent biography of Henry L. Mencken called, with good reason, The Irreverent Mr. Mencken. To the delight of Mencken's friends—and Mr. M. himself—the title was erroneously included on the approved list of the Army Chaplains' Corps as The REVERENT Mr. Mencken.

Interviewed on the subject, Mr. Mencken admitted, "I have always been in favor of the Lord, and am spending considerable time on my knees, preparing for the life to come."

Authors who have suffered from caustic criticisms by the master can be heard murmuring, "This we would like to see."

When George Dingwell, one of the last of the G.A.R., reached nniety, a neighbor asked, "Don't you hate to grow old?" Dingwell answered, "Shucks, no. If I wasn't old, I'd be dead."

Copper Import Tax

A bill to suspend the import tax on copper has been unanimously approved by the House Ways and Means committee, and will probably be passed by the House soon. The nation needs for its defense program all the copper it can get, and domestic production is meeting only about two-thirds of the present consumption.

The one-third imported comes chiefly from Chile, where U.S. copper companies, especially Anaconda and Kennecott, have large holdings. Opponents of the copper import tax say its chief effect at present is to make the U.S. Government and all U.S. users pay more for the copper they buy.

Copper ranks only behind steel as a raw material for American industry, and the copper price affects most American families directly or indirectly. The metal goes particularly into electrical appliances—telephones, radios, mechanical refrigerators, automobile accessories, etc.—as well as into wire and plumbing and other household equipment.

An import tax of four cents a pound was levied on copper in 1932, later was cut in half by reciprocal tariff agreements. The two-cents impost was suspended for imports for the Government during the war and in 1947 for all copper imports, but went back into force last July 1.

The pending House bill would suspend the import tax until February 15, 1953, but only while the domestic price was at least 24 cents a pound. The New York price of electrolytic copper was down to 17½ cents in May, 1949, was up to 22½ cents at the outbreak of the Korean War, is two cents higher than that, 24½ cents, at the present time.

What Makes Him Tick

There is a character named Tik-Tok in one of the Oz books—a clank-jointed mechanical figure, who had to be wound up occasionally. And a recent movie cartoon introduced an amusing lad named Billy Boing-Boing, or something like that, who could not speak words but could reproduce perfectly any other sound whatever, including the ticking of a clock. These are fictional characters. But there really is a man who ticks.

He is Jack Husband, 21, of Hollis, Okla., who has just been accepted by the armed forces despite his idiosyncrasy. He ticks all the time, just like a clock, and he doesn't need winding up.

Jack isn't sure whether he has always ticked, and took it for granted, or whether it started around the time he was nine. That, at any rate, is when somebody else first noticed it. He was wrestling with another kid, who suddenly asked: "What's that?" Only then did Jack realize that other people didn't tick, too.

Apparently it is inside his head, somewhere. Other people can hear it clearly when they get within six inches of Jack's left ear. It doesn't bother Jack, and Army doctors passed him readily. It has bothered more than 200 other doctors, though, who have examined Jack and cannot explain what makes him tick.

Jack himself is bothered only when he stops ticking, which seems to happen at high altitudes. Then the silence nearly drives him crazy, he says. He would like to be in the Air Force, but he doesn't know whether he may crack up if he stops ticking every time he flies. It's all a matter of what a person is used to.

Dividends For Veterans

The Government begins in a few days to mail out checks for dividends accrued on the Government insurance policies kept up by servicemen of World War II. The checks go first for policies with anniversary date in January, then for those with a February date. It is not necessary for the policy-holder to apply; he should get his check not later than 90 days after the month listed in his policy.

The checks will average $85, but naturally will vary considerably by differences in policies. About 8,000,000 policies are eligible, including any allowed to lapse within the last three years. The payments have been ruled exempt from the federal income tax.

The dividends are available because the premiums charged were based on life expectancy tables that have proved too pessimistic. It should be noted that the government insurance payments for death in or from war service have been paid directly from the Treasury, not out of the reserves built up by the insurance policies.

The present payments represent surplus accumulated since 1948. In 1950 payments averaging $175 per policy were paid for the surplus that had accumulated up to 1948, with holders of lapsed policies entitled to something. Hereafter dividend checks are to go out annually for such surplus as has accumulated during the preceding year.

These dividend payments are not to be confused with the ones being paid this year on the government insurance of World War I. The average 1951 dividend on those policies is around $35, with half a million participating. The mortality tables used for the World War I insurance also underestimated life expectancy.

Cherry Blossom Time

The nation's capital opens on Friday its festival on the blossoming of its Japanese cherry trees. It has been held annually since 1934, except during the war years. The date naturally must be fixed in advance, although there is no telling if the weather will bring out the blossoms early or late. The trees are now sprayed with synthetic plant hormones to prolong the life of the blossoms.

The first Japanese cherry trees in Washington were set out along the main drive of Potomac Park in 1909 at the suggestion of the wife of President Taft. Then hundreds more were shipped from Japan as a gift from the Japanese people, only to be destroyed on arrival because infested with insects and fungus disease. The Japanese ambassador is said to have commented: "Oh, well, your first President set an example of destroying cherry trees."

In 1912 several thousand healthy trees, of both the single-blossom and the double-blossom variety, arrived as another gift from Japan and were planted, most of them around the Tidal Basin. A number were uprooted in 1938, over some protest, in landscaping the new Jefferson Memorial. A few were hacked down by "patriots" three days after the attack on Pearl Harbor, and during the war the trees were officially called "Oriental" instead of "Japanese." The double blossoms near the Tidal Basin come out later than the single blossoms around it, as do the single blossoms in a luxuriant display in Kenwood, a Washington suburb.

How To Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Rigidity And Tremor In Parkinson's

PARALYSIS agitans, or Parkinson's disease, is a disorder of the declining years of life. It may occur earlier but the majority of suffers are between 50 and 70. Men are twice as susceptible as women.

The condition begins so insidiously that most afflicted individuals hardly know when it started. Stiffness of the muscles is one of the first signs; those in the face, neck, and trunk bear the brunt initially. Later, the limbs are involved. When the facial muscles are affected the expression is altered and face assumes a fixed, anxious, mournful, masklike appearance. Rigidity of the neck muscles accentuates the picture. The majority never raise or lower the head to look at anything; they turn the whole trunk. Stiffness of the limbs influences the gait as well as the dexterity of the hands.

As the malady progresses, tremor develops, which accounts for the popular name of the disorder—shaking palsy. The head moves up and down at the rate of two to four times per second. The hands do likewise but the most characteristic feature of the tremor is noted in the fingers; the thumb and fingers rub together as tho rolling a pill or cigaret or crumbling bread. While this goes on, the arms usually are flexed at the elbows and the shoulders are stooped. Rigidity and tremor lead to bodily discomfort, restlessness, and fatigue. The victim has difficulty turning over in bed and may encounter dull, aching pain in the muscles of the trunk and limbs. Speech becomes slurred and chewing is difficult; drooling is common. There is extreme sensitivity to changes in temperature and discomfort increases when the room is too cold or too hot. Meanwhile the mind remains keen altho periods of anxiety and depression arise.

The course of the disease is variable. It does not shorten life and the majority live their normal life expectancy. In some instances the condition is progressive; in others it remains stationary after reaching a certain stage. Medical science has remedies to control many of the unpleasant symptoms but to date no cure is available. This is to be expected because the exact cause is not known, and even today we have no idea why the disease affects 100,000 but not the remainder of the population. Because it is a disease of later life, we suspect degeneration of the nerve tissue incident to changes in circulation. Its occurrence in younger persons generally follows severe influenze which is capable of damaging the brain.

Gentle exercise, massage, and passive motion help relieve rigidity. A well balanced diet, rest, and freedom from worry aid in easing mental tension. Care must be taken not to fall lest a confining injury occur. In medication we have the old standbys—stramonium, belladonna, and hyoscine. In a recent survey of 80 advanced cases, various antihistaminics and anticonvulsants were tried. All the products were helpful, but the best results were obtained with combinations of thephorin and artane or scopolamine hydrobromide and benadryl and scopolamine hydrobromide.

TOMORROW: Dr. Van Dellen discusses healing of surgical incisions.

PLANT DERMATITIS

Mrs. N. writes: I broke out in a rash after buying and hanging a philodendron. Does this mean that I am allergic to the plant and will have to give it away?

REPLY

This is a good possibility but to eliminate the outside chance that it is a coincidence, why not be tested for sensitivity? A piece of the plant or an extract of it may be incorporated into a patch and secured to the skin with adhesive tape. If you are sensitive the area will become red in a day or two.

METABOLIC RATE

No, it is within normal limits. Tests of this nature should never be interpreted on their face value. The physician also takes into consideration the individual's complaints and the findings on physical examination.

DREW PEARSON on—

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Marshall Works Harder Than Most Executives; Cattle Feed Shortage Behind Trigg's Dismissal; Presidential Pique Has Held Up Price Controls

WASHINGTON—The Washington rumor factory is probably the most active and the most irresponsible in the world. Tales cooked up in Capitol Hill lobbies, the drawing rooms of high society or in a taxicab conversation are spread as fact within a matter of hours.

The story that the late Franklin Roosevelt was insane and had to be chained to his bed at night was a good example. One confidential news agency believed it to the extent of relaying it to its many thousand customers.

Latest Washington canard is that Secretary of Defense George Marshall is in his dotage and unable to come to his office more than half a week.

On the contrary, I can state that Marshall, though 70, is probably in better health than before his kidney operation, gets to the office before 8 a. m., has the papers read and sent out of his office by around 8:20 a. m., and puts in a full six-day week, working even on Saturday.

This is a lot more than most executives do in Washington, New York, or anywhere else.

Marshall is alert, his memory is amazing, and he seems completely on the ball. Furthermore, Marshall has put the old uniform aside and is trying to run the Defense Department as a civilian. This writer had some skepticism about this phase of Marshall's new job when first appointed Secretary of Defense, but the skepticism appears not to have been justified.

Cattle-Feed Shortage

Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan had been at daggers' points over government farm policies for some time with the man he fired last week, Ralph Trigg, chief of production and marketing.

Main reason the ax fell was that the production of certain vital farm crops—chiefly cattle feed—is desperately behind our defense goals.

About 127,000,000 tons of grain will be needed to feed our greatly expanded population of beef cattle and hogs this year. However, farmers have planted or scheduled for planting only enough acres to produce 117,000,000 tons of feed grain.

Corn will be about 5,000,000 acres short of the 90,000,000-acre production goal fixed by Brannan—which Trigg was supposed to deliver. Plantings of barley are 1,600,000 acres behind schedule and sorghum grain about 500,000 acres short.

At the same time we have 4,000,000 more beef cattle and over 5,000,000 more hogs to feed this year than in 1950. The pinch may not be felt this year because of feed-grain reserves. However, with these reserves exhausted, we will face a serious cutback in cattle production for defense needs—and therefore a meat shortage—in 1952.

Manpower shortage on the farms is one reason—perhaps the chief one—for the failure to divert more grasslands to planting feed grain. Knowing that their sons and younger hired hands would be drafted, farmers have held back from planting too much corn, which takes a lot of labor to harvest. However, Trigg did little about importing labor from Mexico and elsewhere to fill the gap.

NOTE—While we have been suffering from a farm-labor shortage, British troops have had to put down riots in the British West Indies because of unemployment.

Washington Pipeline

Illustrating the Washington canard factory here is another I heard recently: "Drew Pearson has now sold out to Pan American Airways. He got a free trip to Europe with Pan American and is now in their pocket." . . . Real fact is that I paid my way to Europe on Pan American as I have on every other airline—unlike Roy Howard, publisher of a great newspaper chain, who has been a Pan American "guest" all over the world. However, I do not hesitate to pay tribute to Pan American's efficient operation across the Atlantic. If its Washington lobbying were on as clean a basis as its overseas operation, I could find no fault with Pan Am. . . . The Senate Small Business Committee will investigate the Civil Aeronautics Board for trying to regulate small, unchartered airlines out of business . . . Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston has recommended tighter controls on farm prices and wages. He wants to freeze farm parity prices at the January 15 level, then abolish the wage escalator clause which permits wages to rise with prices. His proposal is to plug the wage loophole after June 30, 1951.

Presidential Pique

President Truman's pique and an economist's desire to throw off his new deal label are back of the Administration's tragic failure to clamp on price controls six months ago.

This never-told story starts last

By MARK SULLIVAN

COMPLAINING bitterly about rising cost of living, Republican Congresswoman St. George of New York declared that "the Truman Administration . . . has deliberately sponsored inflation." To some the accusation may seem shocking, because at this time the Administration is striving to check inflation, has set up an immense governmental mechanism for that purpose.

Yet it is a fact that the thing the Administration is striving to check was not merely sponsored by it but in large part created by it. The sum of several Administration policies has resulted in "an unbeatable mechanism of built-in inflation"—the apt and vivid phrase is in a recent report by a Congressional committee headed by Sen. O'Mahoney. A similar phrase, used foresightedly and warningly by Mr. Bernard M. Baruch some two years ago was "a perpetual inflation machine."

What the people seek anxiously to learn now is whether Mr. Truman will be able to destroy the Frankenstein he created. To do so he must go counter to groups he in the past has favored and depended upon politically. In his speech accepting the Presidential nomination in 1948 he flagrantly reminded farmers and labor of being under obligation of gratitude to the Democratic party; by strong implication he promised those groups occasion for still more gratitude, and in his campaign speeches made the promises specific and glaring. He got the gratitude, conspicuously from the farm vote, and he won the election.

Leader Or Prisoner

Policies and attitudes of the Truman Administration that gave advantage to farmers and labor have been the dynamic parts of the inflation mechanism. Labor got round after round of wage raises. These were followed by increases in prices of manufactured goods. The increased prices of manufactured and other goods that farmers buy was used by the Department of Agriculture as the basis of higher official support figures for farm prices. These led to higher cost of living, and higher cost of living became the basis of demands by labor for still further wage raises. That was the spiral mechanism of inflation.

Now President Truman faces the need of turning the spiral back. In attempting this he had an experience familiar in politics. When a President or political leader builds up a relationship with a group, solicits and receives their votes and in turn shows favor to them, the relationship not infrequently comes to an ambiguous stage. It becomes uncertain whether the leader leads the group or is prisoner to them, whether the attitude of the group will be one of gratitude or truculence, whether it will defer to him or bully him.

Mr. Truman is at this stage now. He has set up an organization for combating inflation and otherwise bringing about economic mobilization. Toward this organization the attitude of labor leaders is one of harsh excoriation. Much of their attitude is familiar to the public, they proclaim it in radio addresses and otherwise.

As to Mr. Truman there is strongly implied evidence of their attitude in a statement by one whom he appointed to a head place in the organization, Economic Stabilizer Alan H. Valentine. After serving a few weeks Mr. Valentine resigned, and later stated the circumstances. With obvious reference to his own case he spoke a generalization: "Any man not supported by organized labor, or by the White House secretariat, or by the Democratic National Committee, needs to watch his step, and I was unpopular with all three." Mr. Valentine added, "The president gave me no support for some weeks against heavy odds. . ."

Recognizing Problem

As to the farm group, favor toward them and toward price support of farm crops, largely for a political motive without much doubt, was shown in Congress when it was writing the statute in which the organization for checking inflation was authorized. There was inserted in the statute a provision which forbade the putting of any ceilings on farm crops that had not reached the parity standards fixed by the department of Agriculture (or an equivalent standard). Persons responsible for checking inflation have implied strongly though guardedly that the checking of inflation cannot be accomplished so long as this immunity is enjoyed by a large proportion of farm crops. It is difficult if not vain to put limitations on the prices of food in retail shops when no limitations are put on the farm crops from which the food is derived.

The impediment to successfully checking inflation that lies in immunity of many farm crops is beginning to be recognized by some leaders of farm groups and some farm spokesmen in Congress. There is a tentative beginning toward action looking to modification of price support.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—Congress is up against a tough decision that it must make before long—whether, in the face of a rising income from taxes already levied, it should go ahead and increase the tax rates just the same.

The last time a new tax law was passed—in the autumn of 1950—the psychology of war and tension was in the air. Korea had been a reverse for us and the rearmament program was being blueprinted with all sorts of fantastic guesses as to the billions it would cost.

Today the defense figures are more definite and there is a better idea of how much money is actually being produced on the revenue side.

Will Need Explaining

What is changing the picture, of course, and affecting the congressional problem is the psychology of surplus. The present fiscal year, which ends June 30 next, will not show a deficit of $2,700,000,000 as President Truman and the Treasury experts predicted several months ago, but there will be a surplus of at least $2,000,000,000. Receipts are better than heretofore estimated.

It's a difficult thing to raise tax rates in the face of a psychology of surplus. The country will not understand it without a lot of explaining. Also the country will demand that the expenditure side be carefully re-examined to see if next year's expenses need be as high as planned.

What brings to some extent the surplus in the present fiscal year—apart from added receipts—is the fact that expenditures are not yet running at the rate anticipated or at the rate they will attain in the next fiscal year. There's always a lag between the time when money is appropriated and the time it is actually spent. An interval of unavoidable delay occurs as contracts have to be carefully allocated and specifications written.

Thus, in the fiscal year which starts July 1 next the rate of spending will be higher for the full 12 months than it has been this fiscal year. The armament program will get into full swing in 1952. By the end of 1953 it should have reached its peak and begun to taper off somewhat.

The question is how to get over the hump—how to meet this accelerated rate of armament building without imposing on the nation a high tax system that could impair incentive and perhaps fasten on the country for many years a method of extracting taxes that would not promote a healthy economy.

The other side of the argument is that, unless taxes are increased and a lot of purchasing power siphoned off, the inflationary spiral will continue. Thus the biggest total of purchasing power is among the persons who earn less than $3,000 a year. The tax rates, relatively speaking, are light on that group. Union-labor spokesmen keep on urging that the tax rates be increased severely on the groups above $3,000 a year—as if that would take care of the Treasury's needs. But there is a point at which the higher the tax rates go, the lower the return—that's an old rule. Also the total amount of earnings of those making more than $3,000 would have to be dipped into heavily in order to avoid taxing the groups under $3,000 a year. There isn't enough in the above-$3,000 group to meet a big treasury deficit.

Some Increases Inevitable

What ought to happen, of course, is the passage of some form of sales tax which would affect all groups and yet not become too damaging in its impact on any. Congress is a bit fearful that a sales tax would prove a political boomerang. The Democratic party, on the other hand, does not know what's in store for it if it raises the taxes during the calendar year 1951 and the country goes into a national election campaign in 1952 with tax rates higher than or equal to those we had during World War II.

Meanwhile, the pressure to cut expenditures has been steadily growing, but Congress has never really been up against the political gun on that one. If the dangers politically of increasing tax rates become apparent, the country may see at least some drastic cutting of expenses.

Yet some increases in tax rates this year will be inevitable. The prospect of carrying a $12,000,000,000 deficit in the next fiscal year will not be relished by any school of economic thought. Still, taxes are not likely to be raised this year to the point forecast a few months ago. Incidentally, Congress will take its time about enacting a new bill. The new rates will probably become effective in the latter half of this year, thus cutting the effect of the increases in half and in some categories to a fourth because of the belated passage of the law.

It could happen that the Congress which meets next January will have the real political battle on its hands and that the Republicans will not aid in any drive for heavy taxes during 1951, preferring to pass a moderate bill and let the majority party take it on the chin in the January session. Whichever way the tax problem is viewed, it is going to provoke unprecedented repercussions in a political sense. In the end, there may be a decision by Congress to increase taxes moderately this year and do some borrowing next year while waiting to see the tax rates in 1952—a year of greatly stimulated armament building—actually bring in more receipts than anybody has yet calculated.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

"Neither Five Nor Three"

I DO NOT HAVE many opportunities to read novels, but once I started Helen MacInnes' "Neither Five nor Three," I could not put it down.

This is a story that in a quiet, easy manner produces the process of the corruption of fine people by Communist conspirators who know what they are doing—and are really the only ones in the group who know what they are doing. They naturally go after youth, which is romantic, and after college boys and girls who have potentialities of trained usefulness.

I was most fascinated by the character of Thelma because I know her so well. She is the rich girl who lives on Park Avenue and sells her soul for another thrill. All her life she has been seeking thrills. She does not really contribute anything to life, except what money will buy, which, of course, is not too much.

Happiness she never finds. She is too active ever to be happy. She lacks the courage to stop chasing her tail, as the expression goes. If she stopped, she might have to look at herself, to become acquainted with herself, and to discover that there is nothing to her life but such biological activities which she pursues without knowing why. The thrills she seeks never satisfy her because she is only a spectator in an act, never a true participant.

I know such women. They usually possess inherited wealth, earned by decent, hard-working parents or grandparents of whom they are ashamed because they were not intellectuals. They often call themselves liberals and belong to everything. They join movements on the left and some of them have even become deeply involved in such obscenities as the theft of the atom bomb, by giving dinner parties at which the thieves met, their filthy plots to unfold.

They are not evil women; they are dupes and often dopes, although their parents sent them to the best universities where they came to know the insides of books but little of the cultivation of the spirit. They move from husband to husband, for men grow tired of wives whose minds have become so global that they do not recognize the dust on their own window sills. Their children are abandoned to progressive educational methods which tend to distort their personalities by overemphasizing their faults.

In the end, such women grow wearisome, and even their many movements and societies and clubs seek younger blood. Their liberalism turns to communism, because when their minds are sufficiently dulled, they seek an orthodoxy different from the one they deserted in their youth. They want to be told what to believe and they accept the dictates of fools while rejecting the experience of ages. They accept disciplines from conspirators which they denied when counseled by their parents for good reasons.

Curious, I started discussing Miss MacInnes' novel, "Neither Five nor Three," and wandered into a discussion of the so-called liberal woman who has become a pest in most communities, injecting alien ideas, projecting queer individuals and insisting upon her way or no way, often smearing and attacking those who differ, employing cliches to bring to heel those who thwart her will or ambitions, and always paying money for admission into the company she keeps.

Thelma plays only a short bit in this novel, but it held me and I considered a list of names to see if I could find the one Miss MacInnes meant. But they are a type, and I cannot help wondering how our colleges came to produce these unhappy women. I meet them everywhere, but they proliferate best, I think, in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

Perhaps it is because having divorced themselves from God, they have filled the void with nothing. And nature abhors a vacuum even more than the abnormalities of a cancerous growth. Thus, they become not only miserable, but reflect the ugliness of a degenerative spirit. They dare not know of the ministry of God; nor can a psychiatrist fill the void of their own making.

They are really tortured souls who in the end can only destroy everything about them as they have destroyed themselves. Their tastes become increasingly vulgar; their ideas increasingly sordid. For a while, sex is a refuge, but not for long. Then their souls die.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

Edgar Kemler is the author of an excellent biography of Henry L. Mencken called, with good reason, The Irreverent Mr. Mencken. To the delight of Mencken's friends—and Mr. M. himself—the title was erroneously included on the approved list of the Army Chaplains' Corps as The REVERENT Mr. Mencken.

Interviewed on the subject, Mr. Mencken admitted, "I have always been in favor of the Lord, and am spending considerable time on my knees, preparing for the life to come."

Authors who have suffered from caustic criticisms by the master can be heard murmuring, "This we would like to see."

When George Dingwell, one of the last of the G.A.R., reached nniety, a neighbor asked, "Don't you hate to grow old?" Dingwell answered, "Shucks, no. If I wasn't old, I'd be dead."

Copper Import Tax

A bill to suspend the import tax on copper has been unanimously approved by the House Ways and Means committee, and will probably be passed by the House soon. The nation needs for its defense program all the copper it can get, and domestic production is meeting only about two-thirds of the present consumption.

The one-third imported comes chiefly from Chile, where U.S. copper companies, especially Anaconda and Kennecott, have large holdings. Opponents of the copper import tax say its chief effect at present is to make the U.S. Government and all U.S. users pay more for the copper they buy.

Copper ranks only behind steel as a raw material for American industry, and the copper price affects most American families directly or indirectly. The metal goes particularly into electrical appliances—telephones, radios, mechanical refrigerators, automobile accessories, etc.—as well as into wire and plumbing and other household equipment.

An import tax of four cents a pound was levied on copper in 1932, later was cut in half by reciprocal tariff agreements. The two-cents impost was suspended for imports for the Government during the war and in 1947 for all copper imports, but went back into force last July 1.

The pending House bill would suspend the import tax until February 15, 1953, but only while the domestic price was at least 24 cents a pound. The New York price of electrolytic copper was down to 17½ cents in May, 1949, was up to 22½ cents at the outbreak of the Korean War, is two cents higher than that, 24½ cents, at the present time.

What Makes Him Tick

There is a character named Tik-Tok in one of the Oz books—a clank-jointed mechanical figure, who had to be wound up occasionally. And a recent movie cartoon introduced an amusing lad named Billy Boing-Boing, or something like that, who could not speak words but could reproduce perfectly any other sound whatever, including the ticking of a clock. These are fictional characters. But there really is a man who ticks.

He is Jack Husband, 21, of Hollis, Okla., who has just been accepted by the armed forces despite his idiosyncrasy. He ticks all the time, just like a clock, and he doesn't need winding up.

Jack isn't sure whether he has always ticked, and took it for granted, or whether it started around the time he was nine. That, at any rate, is when somebody else first noticed it. He was wrestling with another kid, who suddenly asked: "What's that?" Only then did Jack realize that other people didn't tick, too.

Apparently it is inside his head, somewhere. Other people can hear it clearly when they get within six inches of Jack's left ear. It doesn't bother Jack, and Army doctors passed him readily. It has bothered more than 200 other doctors, though, who have examined Jack and cannot explain what makes him tick.

Jack himself is bothered only when he stops ticking, which seems to happen at high altitudes. Then the silence nearly drives him crazy, he says. He would like to be in the Air Force, but he doesn't know whether he may crack up if he stops ticking every time he flies. It's all a matter of what a person is used to.

Dividends For Veterans

The Government begins in a few days to mail out checks for dividends accrued on the Government insurance policies kept up by servicemen of World War II. The checks go first for policies with anniversary date in January, then for those with a February date. It is not necessary for the policy-holder to apply; he should get his check not later than 90 days after the month listed in his policy.

The checks will average $85, but naturally will vary considerably by differences in policies. About 8,000,000 policies are eligible, including any allowed to lapse within the last three years. The payments have been ruled exempt from the federal income tax.

The dividends are available because the premiums charged were based on life expectancy tables that have proved too pessimistic. It should be noted that the government insurance payments for death in or from war service have been paid directly from the Treasury, not out of the reserves built up by the insurance policies.

The present payments represent surplus accumulated since 1948. In 1950 payments averaging $175 per policy were paid for the surplus that had accumulated up to 1948, with holders of lapsed policies entitled to something. Hereafter dividend checks are to go out annually for such surplus as has accumulated during the preceding year.

These dividend payments are not to be confused with the ones being paid this year on the government insurance of World War I. The average 1951 dividend on those policies is around $35, with half a million participating. The mortality tables used for the World War I insurance also underestimated life expectancy.

Cherry Blossom Time

The nation's capital opens on Friday its festival on the blossoming of its Japanese cherry trees. It has been held annually since 1934, except during the war years. The date naturally must be fixed in advance, although there is no telling if the weather will bring out the blossoms early or late. The trees are now sprayed with synthetic plant hormones to prolong the life of the blossoms.

The first Japanese cherry trees in Washington were set out along the main drive of Potomac Park in 1909 at the suggestion of the wife of President Taft. Then hundreds more were shipped from Japan as a gift from the Japanese people, only to be destroyed on arrival because infested with insects and fungus disease. The Japanese ambassador is said to have commented: "Oh, well, your first President set an example of destroying cherry trees."

In 1912 several thousand healthy trees, of both the single-blossom and the double-blossom variety, arrived as another gift from Japan and were planted, most of them around the Tidal Basin. A number were uprooted in 1938, over some protest, in landscaping the new Jefferson Memorial. A few were hacked down by "patriots" three days after the attack on Pearl Harbor, and during the war the trees were officially called "Oriental" instead of "Japanese." The double blossoms near the Tidal Basin come out later than the single blossoms around it, as do the single blossoms in a luxuriant display in Kenwood, a Washington suburb.

How To Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Rigidity And Tremor In Parkinson's

PARALYSIS agitans, or Parkinson's disease, is a disorder of the declining years of life. It may occur earlier but the majority of suffers are between 50 and 70. Men are twice as susceptible as women.

The condition begins so insidiously that most afflicted individuals hardly know when it started. Stiffness of the muscles is one of the first signs; those in the face, neck, and trunk bear the brunt initially. Later, the limbs are involved. When the facial muscles are affected the expression is altered and face assumes a fixed, anxious, mournful, masklike appearance. Rigidity of the neck muscles accentuates the picture. The majority never raise or lower the head to look at anything; they turn the whole trunk. Stiffness of the limbs influences the gait as well as the dexterity of the hands.

As the malady progresses, tremor develops, which accounts for the popular name of the disorder—shaking palsy. The head moves up and down at the rate of two to four times per second. The hands do likewise but the most characteristic feature of the tremor is noted in the fingers; the thumb and fingers rub together as tho rolling a pill or cigaret or crumbling bread. While this goes on, the arms usually are flexed at the elbows and the shoulders are stooped. Rigidity and tremor lead to bodily discomfort, restlessness, and fatigue. The victim has difficulty turning over in bed and may encounter dull, aching pain in the muscles of the trunk and limbs. Speech becomes slurred and chewing is difficult; drooling is common. There is extreme sensitivity to changes in temperature and discomfort increases when the room is too cold or too hot. Meanwhile the mind remains keen altho periods of anxiety and depression arise.

The course of the disease is variable. It does not shorten life and the majority live their normal life expectancy. In some instances the condition is progressive; in others it remains stationary after reaching a certain stage. Medical science has remedies to control many of the unpleasant symptoms but to date no cure is available. This is to be expected because the exact cause is not known, and even today we have no idea why the disease affects 100,000 but not the remainder of the population. Because it is a disease of later life, we suspect degeneration of the nerve tissue incident to changes in circulation. Its occurrence in younger persons generally follows severe influenze which is capable of damaging the brain.

Gentle exercise, massage, and passive motion help relieve rigidity. A well balanced diet, rest, and freedom from worry aid in easing mental tension. Care must be taken not to fall lest a confining injury occur. In medication we have the old standbys—stramonium, belladonna, and hyoscine. In a recent survey of 80 advanced cases, various antihistaminics and anticonvulsants were tried. All the products were helpful, but the best results were obtained with combinations of thephorin and artane or scopolamine hydrobromide and benadryl and scopolamine hydrobromide.

TOMORROW: Dr. Van Dellen discusses healing of surgical incisions.

PLANT DERMATITIS

Mrs. N. writes: I broke out in a rash after buying and hanging a philodendron. Does this mean that I am allergic to the plant and will have to give it away?

REPLY

This is a good possibility but to eliminate the outside chance that it is a coincidence, why not be tested for sensitivity? A piece of the plant or an extract of it may be incorporated into a patch and secured to the skin with adhesive tape. If you are sensitive the area will become red in a day or two.

METABOLIC RATE

L. P. writes: Is a plus 15 metabolism considered serious?

REPLY

No, it is within normal limits. Tests of this nature should never be interpreted on their face value. The physician also takes into consideration the individual's complaints and the findings on physical examination.

BLADDER INFLAMMATION

B.T. writes: Is penicillin helpful in cystitis?

REPLY

Yes and so are the newer antibiotics—aureomycin, chloromycetin, and terramycin. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on cystitis.

HABIT

Mrs. R. writes: Can itching of the skin become a habit; that is, after the cause of the original condition has been cured?

REPLY

Yes, and it may be difficult to overcome.

BLIND CAN'T SEE

REPLY

Total blindness screens out all light including colors.

DREW PEARSON on—

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Marshall Works Harder Than Most Executives; Cattle Feed Shortage Behind Trigg's Dismissal; Presidential Pique Has Held Up Price Controls

WASHINGTON—The Washington rumor factory is probably the most active and the most irresponsible in the world. Tales cooked up in Capitol Hill lobbies, the drawing rooms of high society or in a taxicab conversation are spread as fact within a matter of hours.

The story that the late Franklin Roosevelt was insane and had to be chained to his bed at night was a good example. One confidential news agency believed it to the extent of relaying it to its many thousand customers.

Latest Washington canard is that Secretary of Defense George Marshall is in his dotage and unable to come to his office more than half a week.

On the contrary, I can state that Marshall, though 70, is probably in better health than before his kidney operation, gets to the office before 8 a. m., has the papers read and sent out of his office by around 8:20 a. m., and puts in a full six-day week, working even on Saturday.

This is a lot more than most executives do in Washington, New York, or anywhere else.

Marshall is alert, his memory is amazing, and he seems completely on the ball. Furthermore, Marshall has put the old uniform aside and is trying to run the Defense Department as a civilian. This writer had some skepticism about this phase of Marshall's new job when first appointed Secretary of Defense, but the skepticism appears not to have been justified.

Cattle-Feed Shortage

Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan had been at daggers' points over government farm policies for some time with the man he fired last week, Ralph Trigg, chief of production and marketing.

Main reason the ax fell was that the production of certain vital farm crops—chiefly cattle feed—is desperately behind our defense goals.

About 127,000,000 tons of grain will be needed to feed our greatly expanded population of beef cattle and hogs this year. However, farmers have planted or scheduled for planting only enough acres to produce 117,000,000 tons of feed grain.

Corn will be about 5,000,000 acres short of the 90,000,000-acre production goal fixed by Brannan—which Trigg was supposed to deliver. Plantings of barley are 1,600,000 acres behind schedule and sorghum grain about 500,000 acres short.

At the same time we have 4,000,000 more beef cattle and over 5,000,000 more hogs to feed this year than in 1950. The pinch may not be felt this year because of feed-grain reserves. However, with these reserves exhausted, we will face a serious cutback in cattle production for defense needs—and therefore a meat shortage—in 1952.

Manpower shortage on the farms is one reason—perhaps the chief one—for the failure to divert more grasslands to planting feed grain. Knowing that their sons and younger hired hands would be drafted, farmers have held back from planting too much corn, which takes a lot of labor to harvest. However, Trigg did little about importing labor from Mexico and elsewhere to fill the gap.

NOTE—While we have been suffering from a farm-labor shortage, British troops have had to put down riots in the British West Indies because of unemployment.

Washington Pipeline

Illustrating the Washington canard factory here is another I heard recently: "Drew Pearson has now sold out to Pan American Airways. He got a free trip to Europe with Pan American and is now in their pocket." . . . Real fact is that I paid my way to Europe on Pan American as I have on every other airline—unlike Roy Howard, publisher of a great newspaper chain, who has been a Pan American "guest" all over the world. However, I do not hesitate to pay tribute to Pan American's efficient operation across the Atlantic. If its Washington lobbying were on as clean a basis as its overseas operation, I could find no fault with Pan Am. . . . The Senate Small Business Committee will investigate the Civil Aeronautics Board for trying to regulate small, unchartered airlines out of business . . . Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston has recommended tighter controls on farm prices and wages. He wants to freeze farm parity prices at the January 15 level, then abolish the wage escalator clause which permits wages to rise with prices. His proposal is to plug the wage loophole after June 30, 1951.

Presidential Pique

President Truman's pique and an economist's desire to throw off his new deal label are back of the Administration's tragic failure to clamp on price controls six months ago.

This never-told story starts last

By MARK SULLIVAN

COMPLAINING bitterly about rising cost of living, Republican Congresswoman St. George of New York declared that "the Truman Administration . . . has deliberately sponsored inflation." To some the accusation may seem shocking, because at this time the Administration is striving to check inflation, has set up an immense governmental mechanism for that purpose.

Yet it is a fact that the thing the Administration is striving to check was not merely sponsored by it but in large part created by it. The sum of several Administration policies has resulted in "an unbeatable mechanism of built-in inflation"—the apt and vivid phrase is in a recent report by a Congressional committee headed by Sen. O'Mahoney. A similar phrase, used foresightedly and warningly by Mr. Bernard M. Baruch some two years ago was "a perpetual inflation machine."

What the people seek anxiously to learn now is whether Mr. Truman will be able to destroy the Frankenstein he created. To do so he must go counter to groups he in the past has favored and depended upon politically. In his speech accepting the Presidential nomination in 1948 he flagrantly reminded farmers and labor of being under obligation of gratitude to the Democratic party; by strong implication he promised those groups occasion for still more gratitude, and in his campaign speeches made the promises specific and glaring. He got the gratitude, conspicuously from the farm vote, and he won the election.

Leader Or Prisoner

Policies and attitudes of the Truman Administration that gave advantage to farmers and labor have been the dynamic parts of the inflation mechanism. Labor got round after round of wage raises. These were followed by increases in prices of manufactured goods. The increased prices of manufactured and other goods that farmers buy was used by the Department of Agriculture as the basis of higher official support figures for farm prices. These led to higher cost of living, and higher cost of living became the basis of demands by labor for still further wage raises. That was the spiral mechanism of inflation.

Now President Truman faces the need of turning the spiral back. In attempting this he had an experience familiar in politics. When a President or political leader builds up a relationship with a group, solicits and receives their votes and in turn shows favor to them, the relationship not infrequently comes to an ambiguous stage. It becomes uncertain whether the leader leads the group or is prisoner to them, whether the attitude of the group will be one of gratitude or truculence, whether it will defer to him or bully him.

Mr. Truman is at this stage now. He has set up an organization for combating inflation and otherwise bringing about economic mobilization. Toward this organization the attitude of labor leaders is one of harsh excoriation. Much of their attitude is familiar to the public, they proclaim it in radio addresses and otherwise.

As to Mr. Truman there is strongly implied evidence of their attitude in a statement by one whom he appointed to a head place in the organization, Economic Stabilizer Alan H. Valentine. After serving a few weeks Mr. Valentine resigned, and later stated the circumstances. With obvious reference to his own case he spoke a generalization: "Any man not supported by organized labor, or by the White House secretariat, or by the Democratic National Committee, needs to watch his step, and I was unpopular with all three." Mr. Valentine added, "The president gave me no support for some weeks against heavy odds. . ."

Recognizing Problem

As to the farm group, favor toward them and toward price support of farm crops, largely for a political motive without much doubt, was shown in Congress when it was writing the statute in which the organization for checking inflation was authorized. There was inserted in the statute a provision which forbade the putting of any ceilings on farm crops that had not reached the parity standards fixed by the department of Agriculture (or an equivalent standard). Persons responsible for checking inflation have implied strongly though guardedly that the checking of inflation cannot be accomplished so long as this immunity is enjoyed by a large proportion of farm crops. It is difficult if not vain to put limitations on the prices of food in retail shops when no limitations are put on the farm crops from which the food is derived.

The impediment to successfully checking inflation that lies in immunity of many farm crops is beginning to be recognized by some leaders of farm groups and some farm spokesmen in Congress. There is a tentative beginning toward action looking to modification of price support.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—Congress is up against a tough decision that it must make before long—whether, in the face of a rising income from taxes already levied, it should go ahead and increase the tax rates just the same.

The last time a new tax law was passed—in the autumn of 1950—the psychology of war and tension was in the air. Korea had been a reverse for us and the rearmament program was being blueprinted with all sorts of fantastic guesses as to the billions it would cost.

Today the defense figures are more definite and there is a better idea of how much money is actually being produced on the revenue side.

Will Need Explaining

What is changing the picture, of course, and affecting the congressional problem is the psychology of surplus. The present fiscal year, which ends June 30 next, will not show a deficit of $2,700,000,000 as President Truman and the Treasury experts predicted several months ago, but there will be a surplus of at least $2,000,000,000. Receipts are better than heretofore estimated.

It's a difficult thing to raise tax rates in the face of a psychology of surplus. The country will not understand it without a lot of explaining. Also the country will demand that the expenditure side be carefully re-examined to see if next year's expenses need be as high as planned.

What brings to some extent the surplus in the present fiscal year—apart from added receipts—is the fact that expenditures are not yet running at the rate anticipated or at the rate they will attain in the next fiscal year. There's always a lag between the time when money is appropriated and the time it is actually spent. An interval of unavoidable delay occurs as contracts have to be carefully allocated and specifications written.

Thus, in the fiscal year which starts July 1 next the rate of spending will be higher for the full 12 months than it has been this fiscal year. The armament program will get into full swing in 1952. By the end of 1953 it should have reached its peak and begun to taper off somewhat.

The question is how to get over the hump—how to meet this accelerated rate of armament building without imposing on the nation a high tax system that could impair incentive and perhaps fasten on the country for many years a method of extracting taxes that would not promote a healthy economy.

The other side of the argument is that, unless taxes are increased and a lot of purchasing power siphoned off, the inflationary spiral will continue. Thus the biggest total of purchasing power is among the persons who earn less than $3,000 a year. The tax rates, relatively speaking, are light on that group. Union-labor spokesmen keep on urging that the tax rates be increased severely on the groups above $3,000 a year—as if that would take care of the Treasury's needs. But there is a point at which the higher the tax rates go, the lower the return—that's an old rule. Also the total amount of earnings of those making more than $3,000 would have to be dipped into heavily in order to avoid taxing the groups under $3,000 a year. There isn't enough in the above-$3,000 group to meet a big treasury deficit.

Some Increases Inevitable

What ought to happen, of course, is the passage of some form of sales tax which would affect all groups and yet not become too damaging in its impact on any. Congress is a bit fearful that a sales tax would prove a political boomerang. The Democratic party, on the other hand, does not know what's in store for it if it raises the taxes during the calendar year 1951 and the country goes into a national election campaign in 1952 with tax rates higher than or equal to those we had during World War II.

Meanwhile, the pressure to cut expenditures has been steadily growing, but Congress has never really been up against the political gun on that one. If the dangers politically of increasing tax rates become apparent, the country may see at least some drastic cutting of expenses.

Yet some increases in tax rates this year will be inevitable. The prospect of carrying a $12,000,000,000 deficit in the next fiscal year will not be relished by any school of economic thought. Still, taxes are not likely to be raised this year to the point forecast a few months ago. Incidentally, Congress will take its time about enacting a new bill. The new rates will probably become effective in the latter half of this year, thus cutting the effect of the increases in half and in some categories to a fourth because of the belated passage of the law.

It could happen that the Congress which meets next January will have the real political battle on its hands and that the Republicans will not aid in any drive for heavy taxes during 1951, preferring to pass a moderate bill and let the majority party take it on the chin in the January session. Whichever way the tax problem is viewed, it is going to provoke unprecedented repercussions in a political sense. In the end, there may be a decision by Congress to increase taxes moderately this year and do some borrowing next year while waiting to see the tax rates in 1952—a year of greatly stimulated armament building—actually bring in more receipts than anybody has yet calculated.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

"Neither Five Nor Three"

I DO NOT HAVE many opportunities to read novels, but once I started Helen MacInnes' "Neither Five nor Three," I could not put it down.

This is a story that in a quiet, easy manner produces the process of the corruption of fine people by Communist conspirators who know what they are doing—and are really the only ones in the group who know what they are doing. They naturally go after youth, which is romantic, and after college boys and girls who have potentialities of trained usefulness.

I was most fascinated by the character of Thelma because I know her so well. She is the rich girl who lives on Park Avenue and sells her soul for another thrill. All her life she has been seeking thrills. She does not really contribute anything to life, except what money will buy, which, of course, is not too much.

Happiness she never finds. She is too active ever to be happy. She lacks the courage to stop chasing her tail, as the expression goes. If she stopped, she might have to look at herself, and to discover that there is nothing to her life but such biological activities which she pursues without knowing why. The thrills she seeks never satisfy her because she is only a spectator in an act, never a true participant.

I know such women. They usually possess inherited wealth, earned by decent, hard-working parents or grandparents of whom they are ashamed because they were not intellectuals. They often call themselves liberals and belong to everything. They join movements on the left and some of them have even become deeply involved in such obscenities as the theft of the atom bomb, by giving dinner parties at which the thieves met, their filthy plots to unfold.

They are not evil women; they are dupes and often dopes, although their parents sent them to the best universities where they came to know the insides of books but little of the cultivation of the spirit. They move from husband to husband, for men grow tired of wives whose minds have become so global that they do not recognize the dust on their own window sills. Their children are abandoned to progressive educational methods which tend to distort their personalities by overemphasizing their faults.

In the end, such women grow wearisome, and even their many movements and societies and clubs seek younger blood. Their liberalism turns to communism, because when their minds are sufficiently dulled, they seek an orthodoxy different from the one they deserted in their youth. They want to be told what to believe and they accept the dictates of fools while rejecting the experience of ages. They accept disciplines from conspirators which they denied when counseled by their parents for good reasons.

Curious, I started discussing Miss MacInnes' novel, "Neither Five nor Three," and wandered into a discussion of the so-called liberal woman who has become a pest in most communities, injecting alien ideas, projecting queer individuals and insisting upon her way or no way, often smearing and attacking those who differ, employing cliches to bring to heel those who thwart her will or ambitions, and always paying money for admission into the company she keeps.

Thelma plays only a short bit in this novel, but it held me and I considered a list of names to see if I could find the one Miss MacInnes meant. But they are a type, and I cannot help wondering how our colleges came to produce these unhappy women. I meet them everywhere, but they proliferate best, I think, in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

Perhaps it is because having divorced themselves from God, they have filled the void with nothing. And nature abhors a vacuum even more than the abnormalities of a cancerous growth. Thus, they become not only miserable, but reflect the ugliness of a degenerative spirit. They dare not know of the ministry of God; nor can a psychiatrist fill the void of their own making.

They are really tortured souls who in the end can only destroy everything about them as they have destroyed themselves. Their tastes become increasingly vulgar; their ideas increasingly sordid. For a while, sex is a refuge, but not for long. Then their souls die.

The Old Second Guesser

Crabb—The "Honest" Valet

GENE Buck told friends at the Lambs Club one day several years ago.

"Ring Lardner and I are going to write a show together."

Later someone asked Ring,

"What has Buck got to do with it?"

Lardner answered,

"Oh, he said, 'Let's write a show together.'"

Recently I had lunch at the Wall Street Club with A. Charles Schwartz, and Glen Acheson, both partners in the banking firm of Bache and Company. It turned out all right, because Mr. Acheson paid for the victuals, and Mr. Schwartz gave me a column, so I had nothing to do but listen. Here is the story:

A big-going horse named Jack Horner won the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree in 1926. He had been bought by Mr. Schwartz from Kenneth MacKay, who later became Lord Inchcape. So much did the new owner like the chances of the racer he made a substantial bet in London at what the British describe as first call odds and we sports here as the winter book. The price was 28 to 1.

Attached to Mr. Schwartz was a trusted English valet, named Sidney Crabb who had been in his service for several years and was depended upon to take care of all sorts of responsible jobs from answering the telephone and saying his boss was out to making bets at the race track. The bookmakers recognized him as the alter ego of his master, and the gentleman's gentleman soon began to dress the part. He was a hot shot at all the big meetings, wearing binoculars slung over his shoulder as part of his costume and dishing out tips to any of his friends who cared to listen.

As the date of the race approached, Mr. Schwartz, a thorough-going horseman, devoted most of his time to preparing his entry, although he had a trainer, named Harvey Leader. The outlook brightened daily, as the workouts were clocked, and soon the owner began to get mash notes from friends he hadn't seen in years, enclosing checks ranging from ten to a hundred pounds and asking him to bet for them. In those good old days, the British pound was worth nearly five dollars.

The money, a good-sized amount, was turned over to Crabb.

"I want you to bet it all at the starting price, so there will be no misunderstanding," instructed Mr. Schwartz. That meant the opening odds which turned out to be 16 to 1.

The owner's brother and sister came from Paris to watch the race and were due back the next day, so they had to depart right after the finish.

"Did you get their bags down to the station, so they can leave promptly?" he asked Crabb.

"Yes, sir," he replied, "and I have yours there, too."

Surprised, Mr. Schwartz said,

"Get mine back. I need my evening clothes for the dinner I will be giving tonight."

"What's that?" asked the perfect valet.

"The owner of the winner is the host." So the white tie was retrieved.

A hard-riding north-country boy named Watkinson was steering Jack Horner around this toughest of all courses. He had been instructed to keep him on the inside and not to let him get to the front until the last jump which five horses took together, and then he ran away from the others on the at in the final 544 yards of the four and a half mile course.

"Well, we won," said Mr. Schwartz to Crabb gleefully as he was dressing.

"You did, but I didn't," answered the valet. "I didn't bet any of that money you gave me because I thought he was going to lose, and I would save it for you."

To make a long story longer, by the time he had given the usual contributions to charities, commissions to the jockey and trainer, and paid off his friends at the prevailing odds, the winner turned out to be a loser, in spite of the purse of £13,000. He believed Crabb and kept him, as he, himself, could not have profited by the transaction. The valet never recovered his spirits and gave up the races.

Three years later when Mr. Schwartz was abroad on his honeymoon, Crabb got double pneumonia, before the days of penicillin, and died in Paris. In a battered suitcase were found his will and $11,000 in cash he had squirreled away. It read.

"To my dearly beloved employer, I leave all my worldly possessions." He had tried to make restitution, but the sum was passed along to an old uncle and aunt.

As a tragic footnote, the jockey was killed two weeks after the race in the Scottish Grand National, and Jack Horner later broke his hip and had to be destroyed. Colonel Schwartz is practically the only survivor in the cast of characters.

Minister Retires At 84

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP)—At 84, the Rev. Dr. Frank M. Kerr is going to retire from the pulpit—but only because he thinks "it's time for a younger man to take over."

Dr. Kerr, a Presbyterian minister 57 years, is in good health and could continue his pastorship without difficulty. But, he said today, he feels he has been in the ministry "long enough."

To your list of sacked senators and representatives, who have been given jobs on the federal payroll (ex-Senator Chan Gurney, ex-Senator Frank Graham and ex-Senator Thomas, to mention but a few), now add a lady who lost, Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse . . . Now we're all paying her salary—not just folks in Connecticut.

Count Ghino Roberti, who was at the Italian Embassy before the war, is now an observer at the UN for Italy . . . With him is his chic wife, the former Mary Hammond, whose father was our ambassador to Spain . . . Until Mussolini and Hitler joined forces, the Robertis led the smallest and smartest set in the Capital.

When war came they had some sad, bad days and departed in disgrace as representatives of Mussolini.

After the war, Italy needed diplomats . . . So the Robertis were sent to London where they became exceedingly popular . . . Now Count Sforza, the Italian Foreign Minister, considers the Robertis among the top diplomats Italy has at her disposal.

Speaking of Italy, when butter was selling in New York for 95 cents a pound last February, a ship sailed for Italy carrying over a million pounds of butter, at 15 cents a pound . . . The Department of Agriculture had paid 65 cents a pound for it!

I guess we know which side our bread is buttered on—both sides!

But talk about confusion and waste! . . . Why, a House Committee recently studying propaganda activities of federal employes found that 42,000 people work as federal propagandists! . . . That in one week they sent the New York Times enough publicity material to fill 800 columns.

And the administrator of General Services, Mr. Jess Larson, reported to the Appropriations Committee of the House that one federal agency had enough fluorescent light bulbs to last 95 years . . . Ruled paper for 168 years . . . Loose leaf binders to last 247 years.

• — • — •

Another Congressman, Allan Hunter, a 35-year-old former FBI agent, elected for his first term, says:

"Recently a member of my staff called the Pentagon for a fairly simple bit of information. An hour and 20 minutes later he left the phone in disgust! He had been referred to 28 different authorities. . . . Most of them gave him different answers!"

• — • — •

Representative Sabath complains that the civilians at the Pentagon are having a big holiday at the expense of the taxpayers . . . He says that more than half of the outgoing calls from the Defense Department are personal and last over half an hour!

Retail stores and coffee shoppes do rush business all day . . . And as for supervision over work hours or personal calls made on government time, according to Rep. Sabath, there just ain't no supervision!

• — • — •

So next time some bureaucrat bellows about austerity, sacrifice, tightening our belts and fighting a war, remind him that the departments of government are still on a five-day, 40-hour-week, still have 26 days annual leave and 15 days sick leave . . . Remind him about the passage from "Alice in Wonderland" which runs:

"And how many hours a day did you do lessons?" said Alice.

"Ten hours the first day," said the Mock Turtle; "nine the next, and so on."

"What a curious plan!" exclaimed Alice.

"That's the reason they're called lessons," the Gryphon remarked; "because they lessen from day to day."

Want to make your hands look instantly smoother and younger? Try one of the new cosmetics for the hands!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

THERE is something new under the sun! Cosmetics for the hands and arms, and, as my models and staff have proved in months of tests, their contribution to feminine loveliness is something every woman should know about. They make hands look instantly smoother and younger.

There are several brands from which to choose, so consult your favorte cosmetic counter in making a selection. Choose a color that matches the tone of the under-skin on the inner side of your forearm, steering clear of the pink or red undertones in both skin and cosmetics. Rough weather and rough chores add enough redness to the hands.

As a further check in selecting the just-right shade, cover an area on the back of your hand (the size of a quarter) with a heavy application. Do not rub this patch into the skin. Allow it to stay undisturbed until it drys. After the cosmetic has dried, it should look one shade darker than your skin. You will understand why when you learn the complete method of application, which follows:

How To Use It

Cleanse your hands and dry them gently. Scoop up about one-fourth of a teaspoon of your cosmetic. Dab it over the backs and palms of your hands, and massage it evenly into your skin. The first layer changes the appearance of your hands very little—that is why you must use a shade that is a bit darker than your own skin.

Apply a second layer, using just half as much as in the first application. Spread it evenly, paying particular attention to your knuckles and the skin between your fingers. In order that no sudden line of demarcation shows, smooth the excess over your wrist and up your arm to fade above the elbows.

No one will know you are wearing a hand cosmetic. It will not rub off on clothing. And your hands' complexion will look just as lovely and delecate as that of your face!

Tomorrow: Foundations and figure problems.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

MIAMI (INS)

THE MOB HAS gone legit. The bully boys who ran booze, peddled hop, bumped off the fingered, hijacked the trucks, and persuaded the reluctant by means of the pineapple and the glare, have taken on a thick veneer of respectability by entering discreet businesses.

The Kefauver hearings, silent and open, have produced a new Dun and Bradstreet composed of ex-mobbers. The saintly Wall Street Journal, generally aloof of such sordid goings-on as bemused the Senate committee, felt compelled to cover the proceedings because of the seepage of so many of the principals into big business.

Frank Costello, in the course of telling about his investments in the King Oil Company of Wise, Tex., and jet infra-red cookers, mentioned idly that he once dipped $40,000 into Tele-King Television Corporation and learned, to what he called his surprise, that Meyer Lansky (identified during the Kefauver hearings as, among other things, a fellow who once had shared power of life or death over the proposed victims of Murder, Inc.) also was in.

• — • — •

Chairman of Tele-King's board is Louis Pokrass, pal of Costello and Joe Adonis during the bootlegging days, and a partner of Bugsy Siegel in the building of Las Vegas' Flamingo Hotel. Costello testified that he pulled out of Tele-King but has stock — he didn't say how much — in another television company.

One of Frank Erickson's few responses to the committee brought out the fact that he controls the Park Avenue Corporation which leases, among other things, to such as the swank Park Avenue Theater. Costello swore that he did a little business with a cluster of Wall Street buildings, and sold them last year for a profit of about $150,000. Also, at one time, he was in or controlled the ancient Whiteley distillery in Scotland.

Eddie Berman, Minneapolis racket man who served five years in a federal pen in connection with a kidnaping, heads up the company which owns the land on which Miami Beach's Hotel Martinique stands. Other big real estate wheels in Miami Beach are Isadore Blumenfield, or Kid Cann; his brothers Harry and Yiddy; Cleveland Mobber Al Polizzi and Joe "Scar Face" Bommarito.

Morrie Dalitz (Moe Davis), identified frequently as the Cleveland representative of Lucky Luciano, was a big man in the Detroit Steel Corp., and spread his stock among such distinguished bums as Sam Tucker, Maury Kleiman and Louie Rothkopf — all of whom oddly were missing when the Senate Crime Investigating Committee wished to hear from them.

• — • — •

Joe Adonis wasn't the only gangman in the car-trucking business, nor is an ex-hood from Jersey named Riccardi (five arrests for murder, five for armed robbery and several for narcotic and booze violations) the only bruiser in the laundry industry.

Turns out too, that one of the largest individual stockholders in Western Union is William Molasky, big man in the racing wire business. At last report to the committee, he held 18,000 shares. Mickey Cohen became a Hollywood haberdasher.

The hoodlum struggle for respectability began, it can be said, in Greater Miami. During one of the periods in his life when he wished to escape from heat applications placed on him by authorities he could not corrupt, Al Capone went to Miami and built himself a stucco palace on one of the islands that freckle Biscayne Bay. He settled down as a sun-washed squire. This promptly became the thing to do.

Want to make your hands look instantly smoother and younger? Try one of the new cosmetics for the hands!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

THERE is something new under the sun! Cosmetics for the hands and arms, and, as my models and staff have proved in months of tests, their contribution to feminine loveliness is something every woman should know about. They make hands look instantly smoother and younger.

There are several brands from which to choose, so consult your favorte cosmetic counter in making a selection. Choose a color that matches the tone of the under-skin on the inner side of your forearm, steering clear of the pink or red undertones in both skin and cosmetics. Rough weather and rough chores add enough redness to the hands.

As a further check in selecting the just-right shade, cover an area on the back of your hand (the size of a quarter) with a heavy application. Do not rub this patch into the skin. Allow it to stay undisturbed until it drys. After the cosmetic has dried, it should look one shade darker than your skin. You will understand why when you learn the complete method of application, which follows:

How To Use It

Cleanse your hands and dry them gently. Scoop up about one-fourth of a teaspoon of your cosmetic. Dab it over the backs and palms of your hands, and massage it evenly into your skin. The first layer changes the appearance of your hands very little—that is why you must use a shade that is a bit darker than your own skin.

Apply a second layer, using just half as much as in the first application. Spread it evenly, paying particular attention to your knuckles and the skin between your fingers. In order that no sudden line of demarcation shows, smooth the excess over your wrist and up your arm to fade above the elbows.

No one will know you are wearing a hand cosmetic. It will not rub off on clothing. And your hands' complexion will look just as lovely and delecate as that of your face!

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

MIAMI (INS)

THE MOB HAS gone legit. The bully boys who ran booze, peddled hop, bumped off the fingered, hijacked the trucks, and persuaded the reluctant by means of the pineapple and the glare, have taken on a thick veneer of respectability by entering discreet businesses.

The Kefauver hearings, silent and open, have produced a new Dun and Bradstreet composed of ex-mobbers. The saintly Wall Street Journal, generally aloof of such sordid goings-on as bemused the Senate committee, felt compelled to cover the proceedings because of the seepage of so many of the principals into big business.

Frank Costello, in the course of telling about his investments in the King Oil Company of Wise, Tex., and jet infra-red cookers, mentioned idly that he once dipped $40,000 into Tele-King Television Corporation and learned, to what he called his surprise, that Meyer Lansky (identified during the Kefauver hearings as, among other things, a fellow who once had shared power of life or death over the proposed victims of Murder, Inc.) also was in.

• — • — •

Chairman of Tele-King's board is Louis Pokrass, pal of Costello and Joe Adonis during the bootlegging days, and a partner of Bugsy Siegel in the building of Las Vegas' Flamingo Hotel. Costello testified that he pulled out of Tele-King but has stock — he didn't say how much — in another television company.

One of Frank Erickson's few responses to the committee brought out the fact that he controls the Park Avenue Corporation which leases, among other things, to such as the swank Park Avenue Theater. Costello swore that he did a little business with a cluster of Wall Street buildings, and sold them last year for a profit of about $150,000. Also, at one time, he was in or controlled the ancient Whiteley distillery in Scotland.

Eddie Berman, Minneapolis racket man who served five years in a federal pen in connection with a kidnaping, heads up the company which owns the land on which Miami Beach's Hotel Martinique stands. Other big real estate wheels in Miami Beach are Isadore Blumenfield, or Kid Cann; his brothers Harry and Yiddy; Cleveland Mobber Al Polizzi and Joe "Scar Face" Bommarito.

Morrie Dalitz (Moe Davis), identified frequently as the Cleveland representative of Lucky Luciano, was a big man in the Detroit Steel Corp., and spread his stock among such distinguished bums as Sam Tucker, Maury Kleiman and Louis Rothkopf — all of whom oddly were missing when the Senate Crime Investigating Committee wished to hear from them.

• — • — •

Joe Adonis wasn't the only gangman in the car-trucking business, nor is an ex-hood from Jersey named Riccardi (five arrests for murder, five for armed robbery and several for narcotic and booze violations) the only bruiser in the laundry industry.

Turns out too, that one of the largest individual stockholders in Western Union is William Molasky, big man in the racing wire business. At last report to the committee, he held 18,000 shares. Mickey Cohen became a Hollywood haberdasher.

The hoodlum struggle for respectability began, it can be said, in Greater Miami. During one of the periods in his life when he wished to escape from heat applications placed on him by authorities he could not corrupt, Al Capone went to Miami and built himself a stucco palace on one of the islands that freckle Biscayne Bay. He settled down as a sun-washed squire. This promptly became the thing to do.

Estes Approved By State Senate

The appointment of John L. Estes, 1317 Virginia Avenue, as a member of the Employment Security Board, was confirmed Monday night by the State Senate at Annapolis.

Estes, local labor leader, had been nominated for the six-year position reported paying in the neighborhood of $6,000 a year by Governor McKeldin.

A research worker at the Amcelle plant of Celanese Corporation, Estes is a member of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, and is an officer of the Western Maryland Labor Unity Conference.

Other Allegany county appointments confirmed by the Senate were Dr. W. O. McLane and A. Charles Stewart to the Board of Directors of Miners' Hospital.

Other nominations approved by the Senators were:

Dr. Arthur O. Lovejoy, and B. Herbert Brown, Jr., both of Baltimore, to the Board of Regents of the University of Maryland; John P. Tawes, of Baltimore, Crisfield, to the Tidewater Fisheries Commission

Former Senator A. Earl Shipley, of Westminster, director of parole and probation; Mayor Elmer F Munshower, of Frederick, state police superintendent; Enos Stockbridge, of Baltimore county, director of the Department of Correction.

Dr. Webster Sewell, Silver Spring, and Dr. Kathryn Dice, Baltimore, to the Mental Hygiene Board of Review.

Activities Planned For Rev. T. H. Wood

Rev. T. H. Woods, pastor of Ebenezer Baptist Church, attended a one-day session of the Women's Convention of the Youghiogheny Baptist Association in Mt. Lebanon Baptist Church, Brownsville, Pa.

Mrs. Elmyra Lacey, of Monesson, Pa., president of the convention, will be at Ebenezer Church Monday, April 9.

She will close anniversary services for Rev. Mr. Woods. The program will start at 1:30 p. m. and will include open house. Discussion on the final resting places of the saints will be led by Rev. T. J. McGhee, of Cardale, Pa.

At 5 p. m. a dinner will be held in the church in honor of Rev. Mr. Woods. At 8 p. m. worship services will be conducted by Rev. J. S. Brack, president of the Youghiogheny Association and pastor of Antioch Baptist Church, Edinboro, Pa. He will deliver the anniversary sermon.

Elks Win Memorial Service Honor

Cumberland Lodge No. 63 B. P. O. Elks has won national honors for the second consecutive year in the Grand Lodge Memorial Service contest.

In winning, the lodge is batting 100 per cent in its division. The national contest has been held three years and Lodge No. 63 has entered the last two, winning twice.

The lodge was entered in Group 2 —memberships from 500 to 1,000— and the Elks Magazine, which announced the awards, said the local group "walked away" with top honors in both 1949 and 1950.

For 12 years, the No. 63 Memorial Service has been directed by John H. Mosner and he has consistently given the group impressive services eulogizing departed members. When the program was started, attendance at the public ceremony was small, but in recent years attempts have been made to build attendance through presentation of tableaus. Last year's ceremony at Allegany High attracted 400 in spite of inclement weather.

Other members of the committee for the prize-winning service were Alvin W. Bergeron, J. Douglas Heron, Peter F. Matt and French Sensabaugh.

Col. J D. Caldara, Mt. Savage, of the U. S. Air Forces, delivered the main address at the 1950 memorial. A unique tableau saw Sensabaugh take the part of an aged stage-doorman eulogist for the departed Elks whose names were called out as in the cast of a play. At the finale, a little crippled girl, Beverly Price, entered with flowers for the "actors" as a gesture of thanks for the contribution Elks made for the Allegany County League for Crippled Children.

The Elks quartet, composed of Dr. Royce Hodges, Kenneth Beck, Cletus Hartsock and Robert Moreland sang for the memorial service and played a major part in the success of the tableau.

There are 1,600 Elks lodges in the United States and most of them enter the contest. All lodges hold a local Memorial Service yearly, a mandatory ruling of the Grand Lodge.

Mrs. Elmyra Lacey, of Monesson, Pa., president of the convention, will be at Ebenezer Church Monday, April 9.

She will close anniversary services for Rev. Mr. Woods. The program will start at 1:30 p. m. and will include open house. Discussion on the final resting places of the saints will be led by Rev. T. J. McGhee, of Cardale, Pa.

At 5 p. m. a dinner will be held in the church in honor of Rev. Mr. Woods. At 8 p. m. worship services will be conducted by Rev. J. S. Brack, president of the Youghiogheny Association and pastor of Antioch Baptist Church, Edinboro, Pa. He will deliver the anniversary sermon.

Elks Win Memorial Service Honor

Cumberland Lodge No. 63 B. P. O. Elks has won national honors for the second consecutive year in the Grand Lodge Memorial Service contest.

In winning, the lodge is batting 100 per cent in its division. The national contest has been held three years and Lodge No. 63 has entered the last two, winning twice.

The lodge was entered in Group 2 —memberships from 500 to 1,000— and the Elks Magazine, which announced the awards, said the local group "walked away" with top honors in both 1949 and 1950.

For 12 years, the No. 63 Memorial Service has been directed by John H. Mosner and he has consistently given the group impressive services eulogizing departed members. When the program was started, attendance at the public ceremony was small, but in recent years attempts have been made to build attendance through presentation of tableaus. Last year's ceremony at Allegany High attracted 400 in spite of inclement weather.

Other members of the committee for the prize-winning service were Alvin W. Bergeron, J. Douglas Heron, Peter F. Matt and French Sensabaugh.

Col. J. D. Caldara, Mt. Savage, of the U. S. Air Forces, delivered the main address at the 1950 memorial. A unique tableau saw Sensabaugh take the part of an aged stage-doorman eulogist for the departed Elks whose names were called out as in the cast of a play. At the finale, a little crippled girl, Beverly Price, entered with flowers for the "actors" as a gesture of thanks for the contribution Elks made for the Allegany County League for Crippled Children.

The Elks quartet, composed of Dr. Royce Hodges, Kenneth Beck, Cletus Hartsock and Robert Moreland sang for the memorial service and played a major part in the success of the tableau.

There are 1,600 Elks lodges in the United States and most of them enter the contest. All lodges hold a local Memorial Service yearly, a mandatory ruling of the Grand Lodge.

County Commissioners Retain Auditing Firm

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday renewed the contract with the C. L. Sherman Company of Baltimore to audit the county's books for the next four years.

The firm of certified public accountants will be paid $1,400 annually for the work.

Members of the board also arranged for repairs to Maryland Avenue in McCoole. Mrs. Alvin Pearce appeared before the board to request the work. She said that it has been impossible to drive over the street recently.

Area Soldier Named On Enemy Broadcast

A Petersburg, W. Va., soldier previously reported missing in action in Korea has been mentioned in an enemy propaganda broadcast.

He is Sgt. James A. "Squint" Alt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Alt, who recently received a Department of Defense telegram saying "further information will be forwarded" when available.

Sgt. Alt entered the Army June 15, 1949, at Fort Jackson, S. C., and was sent to Japan five months later. He was reported missing in December.

Exams Will Decide Military Deferment

Cumberland or surrounding area towns have not been mentioned as possible location centers where college students may take aptitude tests to decide military deferment.

An Associated Press release from Washington last night listed Hagerstown Junior College and Davis and Elkins College, Elkins, W. Va. as the nearest centers to Cumberland.

Frostburg State Teachers College was completely ignored as well as Potomac State College, Keyser, W. Va. The Maryland State Teachers College, Towson was cited as were some High Schools in West Virginia.

An estimated 800,000 college students will take the test on May 26, June 16 and June 30. The centers were chosen on the basis of population, college and school location, and proximity to other centers.

Motor Fuel Combustion Process May Increase Gas Mileage By 30%

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — (AP) — A new motor fuel combustion process that may boost automobile gasoline mileage by 30 per cent was described here today.

Delegates to the thirty-ninth annual convention of the Western Petroleum Refiners Association were told the new method eliminates engine knock, regardless of the octane rating of the gasoline used.

Blake Reynolds, Texaco Development Corporation, New York City, said the process also may boost the gasoline yield from crude oil by 15 per cent.

Large scale production of fuels for use in the knock-free process, Reynolds said, would leave refiners free to concentrate on greater yields instead of turning out expensive low-yield high octane fuels.

Reynolds described the process this way:

Air alone is introduced into the cylinder on the suction stroke in such a way that a definite swirl is produced, sometimes at speeds up to 400 miles per hour.

During the compression stroke the air continues to swirl. When the piston is almost at the top of its upward stroke, fuel injection is initiated through a nozzle across the swirling air. The resultant air-fuel mixture travels a very short distance to the spark plug where it is ignited at once.

"Since the mixture is burned continuously as rapidly as it is formed, there is no resident end gas to detonate," he said. "In short, combustion knock has been designed out of the engine."

Natural cattlehide, made into leather soles, retains the resilience it had on the animal's back.

According to mortality records, quarry work is more dangerous than mining in England.

But, as we have pointed out, the aroused decent elements of this invaded paradise did more to start the Kefauver committee, and bolster it with blunt evidence, than many other communities which, though sorely polluted, have never been mentioned as havens of the criminal cream.

City Not Listed As Test Center

Exams Will Decide Military Deferment

Cumberland or surrounding area towns have not been mentioned as possible location centers where college students may take aptitude tests to decide military deferment.

An Associated Press release from Washington last night listed Hagerstown Junior College and Davis and Elkins College, Elkins, W. Va. as the nearest centers to Cumberland.

Frostburg State Teachers College was completely ignored as well as Potomac State College, Keyser, W. Va. The Maryland State Teachers College, Towson was cited as were some High Schools in West Virginia.

An estimated 800,000 college students will take the test on May 26, June 16 and June 30. The centers were chosen on the basis of population, college and school location, and proximity to other centers.

Motor Fuel Combustion Process May Increase Gas Mileage By 30%

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — (AP) — A new motor fuel combustion process that may boost automobile gasoline mileage by 30 per cent was described here today.

Delegates to the thirty-ninth annual convention of the Western Petroleum Refiners Association were told the new method eliminates engine knock, regardless of the octane rating of the gasoline used.

Blake Reynolds, Texaco Development Corporation, New York City, said the process also may boost the gasoline yield from crude oil by 15 per cent.

Large scale production of fuels for use in the knock-free process, Reynolds said, would leave refiners free to concentrate on greater yields instead of turning out expensive low-yield high octane fuels.

Reynolds described the process this way:

Air alone is introduced into the cylinder on the suction stroke in such a way that a definite swirl is produced, sometimes at speeds up to 400 miles per hour.

During the compression stroke the air continues to swirl. When the piston is almost at the top of its upward stroke, fuel injection is initiated through a nozzle across the swirling air. The resultant air-fuel mixture travels a very short distance to the spark plug where it is ignited at once.

"Since the mixture is burned continuously as rapidly as it is formed, there is no resident end gas to detonate," he said. "In short, combustion knock has been designed out of the engine."

Natural, cattlehide, made into leather soles, retains the resilience it had on the animal's back.

According to mortality records, quarry work is more dangerous than mining in England.

New Device Tells Motorists How To Solve Problems In Emergency

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK—(AP)—Wouldn't you like to know what you would do if a big box fell off a truck right in front of your car?

How would keep from smashing it and how you would corkscrew around it safely in a narrow street?

And whether you could stop in time when a pedestrian stepped smack out in front of you from hiding between two cars?

And what you would do in rounding a blind corner to find the road filled because a moron driver is passing another car—both coming your way on that curve?

You can do and learn all these things in three minutes, with perfect safety, on a new device, the roadmeter, sponsored by the Aetna Casualty and Surety Company of Hartford, Conn. The device, a combination of electronic brain recorder and tricky motion pictures, was given its first public showing here.

You sit with a steering wheel in your hands, brakes, horn and accelerator pedal and seem to look through a windshield at a city street down which you are driving. The illusion in the windshield is a motion picture.

But what a picture! It is you and not the picture which seems to move, because whatever you do with the steering wheel or with your accelerator moves the picture or the speed at which you seem to near the things on the road out front.

The electronic brain which watches you is an apparatus of meters to read your reaction times, to record each move you make, how long each takes, and write down exactly where your driving would have landed you in the real situation. It is equipped with the electronic devices which scientists call a memory. They store up electrical energy which meters what you did, and then released it a few seconds later to show how good, or bad, you were.

The brain scores a lot of fine points in addition to whether you saved yourself from going to a hospital or from killing the pedestrian. It shows, for example, the steadiness with which you chose and kept to the proper part of the road. It scores the added risks you took if you were going too fast.

This score is not delayed. The brain hands it out on a still picture as soon as the test is over.

The Aetna company plans to make these meters available in exhibitions and other places where they may be useful to drivers.

Coffee 19 Cents Pound

CHICAGO, April 3 (AP) — Six Wieboldt department store sold coffee for 19 cents a yound yesterday. Nobody was killed in the rush, but police had to be called to control the bedlam at one store.

The sale was part of a stunt to celebrate the founding of the first Wieboldt store in 1883.

More Funds For AEC Requested By Truman

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — President Truman has asked Congress for a quick $51,300,000 more for the Atomic Energy Commission, pushing the annual atomic budget over the two-billion mark for the first time.

Mr. Thuman said the additional money is needed for "certain urgent production and research facilities."

He didn't elaborate, but the AEC recently has announced in rapid-fire order at least nine big new projects.

Firemen Are Called To West Side Home

Considerable water damage was done yesterday to the residence of Harry D. Wagner, 808 Greene Street, after two painters using a blow torch ignited a bird's nest.

West Side firemen, who answered the alarm at 9:45 and spent almost an hour at the scene, said the painters were working near a rooftop ventilator when fire broke out.

Weight from water used to battle flames tore a hole in a second-floor bedroom and caused other damage.

Don't Get Excited If You Suspect Termites In Home

COLLEGE PARK, Md.—(AP)—You shouldn't get excited if you find reason to suspect that termites are at work on your house, University of Maryland specialists suggested today.

Their statement was prompted, they said, by several recent reports that dishonest pest exterminators have swindled home owners.

"It is true," said Dr. T. L. Bissell, extension entomologist at the college of agriculture, "that termites are working in many buildings.

"But they work slowly. There is always time to make a thorough study of the case and investigate the reliability of persons offering to rid you of the termites.

"If you find swarming insects in your home, first make sure what they are. They may be termites, or they may be winged ants or some other insect.

"Take some of them, a dozen or more, to your county agent or send them to the Department of entomology in College Park for identification.

"If you have temites, you will be given printed information that will aid you to determine the seriousness of the situation and show what is necessary to correct it.

"You may be able to treat it yourself, or you may want to employ an exterminator.

"Get an operator who is known among businessmen for his reliability and who will give you references. He can give you a written estimate of the work necessary and the charge, just as a carpenter can estimate the cost of a repair job.

"Be sure to get three estimates before you enter into a contract."

House OKs Pension Bill

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — House passage sent to the Senate yesterday a bill liberalizing service pensions for veterans of the Spanish-American War, the Philippine Insurrection and the Boxer Rebellion.

There are now 15 rates of pension applying to these veterans. The bill would substitute just four standard dates of $60, 078, $90 and $120 a month.

More Funds For AEC Requested By Truman

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — President Truman has asked Congress for a quick $51,300,000 more for the Atomic Energy Commission, pushing the annual atomic budget over the two-billion mark for the first time.

Mr. Thuman said the additional money is needed for "certain urgent production and research facilities."

He didn't elaborate, but the AEC recently has announced in rapid-fire order at least nine big new projects.

Firemen Are Called To West Side Home

Considerable water damage was done yesterday to the residence of Harry D. Wagner, 808 Greene Street, after two painters using a blow torch ignited a bird's nest.

West Side firemen, who answered the alarm at 9:45 and spent almost an hour at the scene, said the painters were working near a roof-top ventilator when fire broke out.

Weight from water used to battle flames tore a hole in a second-floor bedroom and caused other damage.

Don't Get Excited If You Suspect Termites In Home

COLLEGE PARK, Md.—(AP)—You shouldn't get excited if you find reason to suspect that termites are at work on your house, University of Maryland specialists suggested today.

Their statement was prompted, they said, by several recent reports that dishonest pest exterminators have swindled home owners.

"It is true," said Dr. T. L. Bissell, extension entomologist at the college of agriculture, "that termites are working in many buildings.

"But they work slowly. There is always time to make a thorough study of the case and investigate the reliability of persons offering to rid you of the termites.

"If you find swarming insects in your home, first make sure what they are. They may be termites, or they may be winged ants or some other insect.

"Take some of them, a dozen or more, to your county agent or send them to the Department of entomology in College Park for identification.

"If you have temites, you will be given printed information that will aid you to determine the seriousness of the situation and show what is necessary to correct it.

"You may be able to treat it yourself, or you may want to employ an exterminator.

"Get an operator who is known among businessmen for his reliability and who will give you references. He can give you a written estimate of the work necessary and the charge, just as a carpenter can estimate the cost of a repair job.

"Be sure to get three estimates before you enter into a contract."

House OKs Pension Bill

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP) — House passage sent to the Senate yesterday a bill liberalizing service pensions for veterans of the Spanish-American War, the Philippine Insurrection and the Boxer Rebellion.

There are now 15 rates of pension applying to these veterans. The bill would substitute just four standard dates of $60, 078, $90 and $120 a month.

New Device Tells Motorists How To Solve Problems In Emergency

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK—(AP)—Wouldn't you like to know what you would do if a big box fell off a truck right in front of your car?

How would keep from smashing it and how you would corkscrew around it safely in a narrow street?

And whether you could stop in time when a pedestrian stepped smack out in front of you from hiding between two cars?

And what you would do in rounding a blind corner to find the road filled because a moron driver is passing another car—both coming your way on that curve?

You can do and learn all these things in three minutes, with perfect safety, on a new device, the roadmeter, sponsored by the Aetna Casualty and Surety Company of Hartford, Conn. The device, a combination of electronic brain recorder and tricky motion pictures, was given its first public showing here.

You sit with a steering wheel in your hands, brakes, horn and accelerator pedal and seem to look through a windshield at a city street down which you are driving. The illusion in the windshield is a motion picture.

But what a picture! It is you and not the picture which seems to move, because whatever you do with the steering wheel or with your accelerator moves the picture or the speed at which you seem to near the things on the road out front.

The electronic brain which watches you is an apparatus of meters to read your reaction times, to record each move you make, how long each takes, and write down exactly where your driving would have landed you in the real situation. It is equipped with the electronic devices which scientists call a memory. They store up electrical energy which meters what you did, and then released it a few seconds later to show how good, or bad, you were.

The brain scores a lot of fine points in addition to whether you saved yourself from going to a hospital or from killing the pedestrian. It shows, for example, the steadiness with which you chose and kept to the proper part of the road. It scores the added risks you took if you were going too fast.

This score is not delayed. The brain hands it out on a still picture as soon as the test is over.

The Aetna company plans to make these meters available in exhibitions and other places where they may be useful to drivers.

Charles, Maxim Fight May 30; Three Go To YMCA Finals

Heavy Title Contest Set For Chicago

Ezzard Defeated Joe Three Times Before He Became Champion

CHICAGO, April 3 (AP)—As long rumored, heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles will defend his title against light-heavyweight champion Joe Maxim May 30 at the Chicago Stadium.

The 15-round memorial night bout, in the hip-pocket of the promoting International Boxing Club for some time, will be confirmed officially Friday morning when Charles and Maxim submit contracts to the Illinois State Athletic Commission.

The commission is expected to give happy blessings to the year's second Chicago Stadium match between two champions. On Feb. 14, welter king Sugar Ray Robinson dethroned middleweight champion Jake LaMotta.

Only eight days ago, Maxim agreed to defend his light-heavy crown against Bob Satterfield at the Chicago Stadium June 27. Under National Boxing Association rules, if Maxim defeats Charles he must vacate his light-heavy title. In that event, the Maxim-Satterfield bout presumably would be cancelled.

Charles' fourth meeting with Maxim, whom he outpointed three times before becoming heavyweight champion, will mark his fourth defense since he won the undisputed heavyweight crown by soundly belting former champion Joe Louis at New York Sept. 27, 1950. It will be Charles' eighth defense since he won the NBA's version of the title by outpointing Jersey Joe Walcott at Comiskey Park in Chicago June 22, 1949.

Charles met Walcott again last March 7 in Detroit, but in winning a 15-round decision suffered a battered ear which erased a scheduled April 11 meeting with Louis at the Chicago Stadium.

Charles' contract against Maxim is reported to call for 40 per cent of the net gate, while Maxim is down for 20 per cent. Both will get radio-television fees.

Maxim has had seven non-title bouts since winning the light-heavy crown with a 10th-round knockout of England's Freddie Mills at London, Jan. 24, 1950.

In their last meeting, Charles won a 15-round decision from Maxim Feb. 28, 1949, at Cincinnati. Before Charles entered the army, he won two 10-round decisions from Maxim, on Oct. 27, 1942, at Pittsburgh, and Dec. 1 the same year at Cleveland.

TOPS 'EM ALL—Bill Mlkvy, 6-foot-4 player of Temple University, won the major college scoring championship this season and cracked two previous records by averaging 29.2 points in 25 games and ringing up 312 field goals. He pronounces his name Milk-vee.

Mlkvy Annexes Major College Scoring Title

Posts 29.2 Average, Scored 312 Goals

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP)—All-America Bill Mlkvy of Temple closed out a terrific basketbal season by winning the major college scoring championship in record-breaking fashion.

The 6-4, 190-pound Deadeye Dick from Palmerton, Pa., averaged 29.2 points in 25 games during the past season to break Ernie Calverly's 1944 record of 26.7. And the "Owl Without The Vowel" broke another record when he dunked 312 field goals to surpass Chet Giermak's two-year old collegiate mark of 301. He also finished second in assists and second on rebounds.

Two more standards were shattered by Duke's Dick Groat, a junior like Mlkvy. The Blue Devil sixfooter racked up 831 points in 33 games to wipe out another Giermak record (740 in 34 games) and connected on 261 free throws to better the 215 mark held by Yale's Tony Lavelli and Villanova's Paul Arizin.

Calverly played for Rhode Island State and Giermak for William and Mary.

Groat wound up fourth in the average scoring with 25.2. Jay Handlan of Washington and Lee was second with 26.2 and lanky Hand Workman of West Virginia was third on 26.1.

The final official major college statistics released by the NCAA's Service Bureau today also showed that Handlan won the foul shooting title with an average of 85.9 per cent on 158 completions in 184 attempts.

The top bucket shooter was Don (Monk) Meineke of Dayton (O.) University's cinderella team. Meineke sank 240 of his 469 floor shots for a phenomenal 51.2 average.

The New Racing Bill

Tommies Lose In La.

Indians Get Lights

SAA Could Use $200

By C. V. BURNS

If Governor McKeldin affixes his signature to the bill increasing the "take" at the state's half mile race tracks from 10 to 12 per cent, the revised formula applicable to Cumberland and other minor tracks will be as follows:

On the amount bet at each track up to $1,500,000, eleven per cent to the tracks and one per cent to the state.

On the amount bet in excess of $1,500,000, six per cent to the tracks and six per cent to the state.

Breakage is to be divided.

According to the present law, half milers get 10 per cent of the first $50,000 bet; nine per cent of the amount between $500,000 and $1,000,000; eight per cent of the amount between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000; and six per cent on all over $1,500,000.

The state's "take" ranges, according to the various graduations, from zero on the first $500,000 to four per cent on all above $1,500,000.

Last year Fairgo's mutuel handle was $1,904,924. This was the first time the wagering had dropped below the two million mark at the local half mile oval since 1943. The peak year was $3,078,127 in 1946.

Heavy Title Contest Set For Chicago

Ezzard Defeated Joe Three Times Before He Became Champion

CHICAGO, April 3 (AP)—As long rumored, heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles will defend his title against light-heavyweight champion Joe Maxim May 30 at the Chicago Stadium.

The 15-round memorial night bout, in the hip-pocket of the promoting International Boxing Club for some time, will be confirmed officially Friday morning when Charles and Maxim submit contracts to the Illinois State Athletic Commission.

The commission is expected to give happy blessings to the year's second Chicago Stadium match between two champions. On Feb. 14, welter king Sugar Ray Robinson dethroned middleweight champion Jake LaMotta.

Only eight days ago, Maxim agreed to defend his light-heavy crown against Bob Satterfield at the Chicago Stadium June 27. Under National Boxing Association rules, if Maxim defeats Charles he must vacate his light-heavy title. In that event, the Maxim-Satterfield bout presumably would be cancelled.

Charles' fourth meeting with Maxim, whom he outpointed three times before becoming heavyweight champion, will mark his fourth defense since he won the undisputed heavyweight crown by soundly belting former champion Joe Louis at New York Sept. 27, 1950. It will be Charles' eighth defense since he won the NBA's version of the title by outpointing Jersey Joe Walcott at Comiskey Park in Chicago June 12, 1949.

Charles met Walcott again last March 7 in Detroit, but in winning a 15-round decision suffered a battered ear which erased a scheduled April 11 meeting with Louis at the Chicago Stadium.

Charles' contract against Maxim is reported to call for 40 per cent of the net gate, while Maxim is down for 20 per cent. Both will get radio-television fees.

Maxim has had seven non-title bouts since winning the light-heavy crown with a 10th-round knockout of England's Freddie Mills at London, Jan. 24, 1950.

TOPS 'EM ALL—Bill Mlkvy, 6-foot-4 player of Temple University, won the major college scoring championship this season and cracked two previous records by averaging 29.2 points in 25 games and ringing up 312 field goals. He pronounces his name Milk-vee.

Mlkvy Annexes Major College Scoring Title

Posts 29.2 Average, Scored 312 Goals

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP)—All-America Bill Mlkvy of Temple closed out a terrific basketbal season by winning the major college scoring championship in record-breaking fashion.

The 6-4, 190-pound Deadeye Dick from Palmerton, Pa., averaged 29.2 points in 25 games during the past season to break Ernie Calverly's 1944 record of 26.7. And the "Owl Without The Vowel" broke another record when he dunked 312 field goals to surpass Chet Giermak's two-year old collegiate mark of 301. He also finished second in assists and second on rebounds.

Two more standards were shattered by Duke's Dick Groat, a junior like Mlkvy. The Blue Devil six-footer racked up 831 points in 33 games to wipe out another Giermak record (740 in 34 games) and connected on 261 free throws to better the 215 mark held by Yale's Tony Lavelli and Villanova's Paul Arizin.

Calverly played for Rhode Island State and Giermak for William and Mary.

Groat wound up fourth in the average scoring with 25.2. Jay Handlan of Washington and Lee was second with 26.2 and lanky Hand Workman of West Virginia was third on 26.1.

The final official major college statistics released by the NCAA's Service Bureau today also showed that Handlan won the foul shooting title with an average of 85.9 per cent on 158 completions in 184 attempts.

The top bucket shooter was Don (Monk) Meineke of Dayton (O.) University's cinderella team. Meineke sank 240 of his 469 floor shots for a phenomenal 51.2 average.

The New Racing Bill

Tommies Lose In La.

Indians Get Lights

SAA Could Use $200

By C. V. BURNS

If Governor McKeldin affixes his signature to the bill increasing the "take" at the state's half mile race tracks from 10 to 12 per cent, the revised formula applicable to Cumberland and other minor tracks will be as follows:

On the amount bet at each track up to $1,500,000, eleven per cent to the tracks and one per cent to the state.

On the amount bet in excess of $1,500,000, six per cent to the tracks and six per cent to the state.

Breakage is to be divided.

According to the present law, half milers get 10 per cent of the first $50,000 bet; nine per cent of the amount between $500,000 and $1,000,000; eight per cent of the amount between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000; and six per cent on all over $1,500,000.

The state's "take" ranges, according to the various graduations, from zero on the first $500,000 to four per cent on all above $1,500,000.

Last year Fairgo's mutuel handle was $1,904,924. This was the first time the wagering had dropped below the two million mark at the local half mile oval since 1943. The peak year was $3,078,127 in 1946.

The victory was only the second for Cleveland in six games between the American League rivals this spring. The teams do not meet again until the regular schedule begins.

Vic Raschi, ace righthander of the Yans, was mauled for 11 of the dozen Cleveland hits during his seven-inning stint. Big Luke Easter was his chief obstacle, the first baseman getting a single, double and triple and knocking home three runs. The three-bagger travelled 430 feet on the fly.

Yogi Berra, Yankee catcher, hit the game's only homer, a 375-footer over the right field fence after Joe DiMaggio had drawn a base on balls in the fourth inning. DiMag singled in his only other appearance at the plate and now has hit safely in six of his last 13 times at bat. Score:

Three other teams marched to Thursday's finals by winning games last night.

In the 115-pound division, the Spotters knocked off Wiley Ford, 38-30, and earned the right to battle the Tip-Toppers-Joan's Crusaders game which is set for tonight. Ronnie Phillips and Bob Krampf paced the victors with 14 and 10 tallies. C. Detrick topped the losers with 11.

Charles, Maxim Fight May 30; Three Go To YMCA Finals

Heavy Title Contest Set For Chicago

Ezzard Defeated Joe Three Times Before He Became Champion

CHICAGO, April 3 (AP)—As long rumored, heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles will defend his title against light-heavyweight champion Joe Maxim May 30 at the Chicago Stadium.

The 15-round memorial night bout, in the hip-pocket of the promoting International Boxing Club for some time, will be confirmed officially Friday morning when Charles and Maxim submit contracts to the Illinois State Athletic Commission.

The commission is expected to give happy blessings to the year's second Chicago Stadium match between two champions. On Feb. 14, welter king Sugar Ray Robinson dethroned middleweight champion Jake LaMotta.

Only eight days ago, Maxim agreed to defend his light-heavy crown against Bob Satterfield at the Chicago Stadium June 27. Under National Boxing Association rules, if Maxim defeats Charles he must vacate his light-heavy title. In that event, the Maxim-Satterfield bout presumably would be cancelled.

Charles' fourth meeting with Maxim, whom he outpointed three times before becoming heavyweight champion, will mark his fourth defense since he won the undisputed heavyweight crown by soundly belting former champion Joe Louis at New York Sept. 27, 1950. It will be Charles' eighth defense since he won the NBA's version of the title by outpointing Jersey Joe Walcott at Comiskey Park in Chicago June 22, 1949.

Charles met Walcott again last March 7 in Detroit, but in winning a 15-round decision suffered a battered ear which erased a scheduled April 11 meeting with Louis at the Chicago Stadium.

Charles' contract against Maxim is reported to call for 40 per cent of the net gate, while Maxim is down for 20 per cent. Both will get radio-television fees.

Maxim has had seven non-title bouts since winning the light-heavy crown with a 10th-round knockout of England's Freddie Mills at London, Jan. 24, 1950.

In their last meeting, Charles won a 15-round decision from Maxim Feb. 28, 1949, at Cincinnati. Before Charles entered the army, he won two 10-round decisions from Maxim, on Oct. 27, 1942, at Pittsburgh, and Dec. 1 the same year at Cleveland.

TOPS 'EM ALL—Bill Mlkvy, 6-foot-4 player of Temple University, won the major college scoring championship this season and cracked two previous records by averaging 29.2 points in 25 games and ringing up 312 field goals. He pronounces his name Milk-vee.

Mlkvy Annexes Major College Scoring Title

Posts 29.2 Average, Scored 312 Goals

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP)—All-America Bill Mlkvy of Temple closed out a terrific basketbal season by winning the major college scoring championship in record-breaking fashion.

The 6-4, 190-pound Deadeye Dick from Palmerton, Pa., averaged 29.2 points in 25 games during the past season to break Ernie Calverly's 1944 record of 26.7. And the "Owl Without The Vowel" broke another record when he dunked 312 field goals to surpass Chet Giermak's two-year old collegiate mark of 301. He also finished second in assists and second on rebounds.

Two more standards were shattered by Duke's Dick Groat, a junior like Mlkvy. The Blue Devil six-footer racked up 831 points in 33 games to wipe out another Giermak record (740 in 34 games) and connected on 261 free throws to better the 215 mark held by Yale's Tony Lavelli and Villanova's Paul Arizin.

Calverly played for Rhode Island State and Giermak for William and Mary.

Groat wound up fourth in the average scoring with 25.2. Jay Handlan of Washington and Lee was second with 26.2 and lanky Hand Workman of West Virginia was third on 26.1.

The final official major college statistics released by the NCAA's Service Bureau today also showed that Handlan won the foul shooting title with an average of 85.9 per cent on 158 completions in 184 attempts.

The top bucket shooter was Don (Monk) Meineke of Dayton (O.) University's cinderella team. Meineke sank 240 of his 469 floor shots for a phenomenal 51.2 average.

The New Racing Bill • • • Tommies Lose In La. • • • Indians Get Lights • • • SAA Could Use $200

By C. V. BURNS

If Governor McKeldin affixes his signature to the bill increasing the "take" at the state's half mile race tracks from 10 to 12 per cent, the revised formula applicable to Cumberland and other minor tracks will be as follows:

On the amount bet at each track up to $1,500,000, eleven per cent to the tracks and one per cent to the state.

On the amount bet in excess of $1,500,000, six per cent to the tracks and six per cent to the state.

Breakage is to be divided.

According to the present law, half milers get 10 per cent of the first $50,000 bet; nine per cent of the amount between $500,000 and $1,000,000; eight per cent of the amount between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000; and six per cent on all over $1,500,000.

The state's "take" ranges, according to the various graduations, from zero on the first $500,000 to four per cent on all above $1,500,000.

Last year Fairgo's mutuel handle was $1,904,924. This was the first time the wagering had dropped below the two million mark at the local half mile oval since 1943. The peak year was $3,078,127 in 1946.

Bob Usher was the Redlegs' big gun, slamming two homers, one with the bases full, and driving across seven tallies. Grady Hatton and Bob Scheffing also clipped round-trippers for Cincinnati. TRIBE LICKS YANKEES

TUCSON, Ariz., April 3 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians concluded their exhibition schedule here at their training base by knocking off the New York Yankees today, 6-3. Mike Garcia, roly-poly righthander, permitted nine hits as he became the first Tribe hurler to go the route.

The victory was only the second for Cleveland in six games between the American League rivals this spring. The teams do not meet again until the regular schedule begins.

Vic Raschi, ace righthander of the Yans, was mauled for 11 of the dozen Cleveland hits during his seven-inning stint. Big Luke Easter was his chief obstacle, the first baseman getting a single, double and triple and knocking home three runs. The three-bagger travelled 430 feet on the fly.

Yogi Berra, Yankee catcher, hit the game's only homer, a 375-footer over the right field fence after Joe DiMaggio had drawn a base on balls in the fourth inning. DiMag singled in his only other appearance at the plate and now has hit safely in six of his last 13 times at bat. Score:

FRISCH HOPES TO SMOOTH EDGES OF CUBS TO GET TEAM MOVING UP IN PENNANT RACE

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the 16th and last of a series of articles on the 1951 prospects of the major league baseball teams.

By S. D. ROCKWELL
Central Press Correspondent

TUCSON, Ariz. — You ask Frankie Frisch, manager of the Chicago Cubs, how he thinks his club will do in the 1951 National league pennant race and he doesn't give you the business about this being a hustling ball club, one that will surprise a lot of people.

"We're gonna need lotsa help," Frankie says frankly.

He goes on to say that the front office won't have to go out and hire help by the truckloads and haul it into Wrigley Field. It's not a question of having to tear down and rebuild because Cubs finished seventh last year, perilously close to the cellar.

"We got the material," he says. "A lot of it, anyway. All we gotta do is smooth up the rough edges."

Frisch hopes that a few of his young pitchers will show marked improvement. He has the makings of a first class staff—or so he believes. If they benefit from experience last year at all, he thinks he may have little to worry about as far as pitching goes.

He figures that he has a good outfield and adequate catching, but he hopes that a couple of his young infielders — like the pitchers — will develop this season into major league stars. Maybe it isn't done overnight, but even thes lightest improvement will help.

"If one or two of these kids come through this year," Frisch says, "we'll have a much better ball club."

* * *

The Cubs had power last year — plenty of it. They walloped 161 homers, only 10 short of a club record. But there weren't enough singles and doubles sprinkled between the four-base blows, so the Cubs finished last in team batting with a pallid .248 mark.

A better balanced attack, naturally, would lend greater support to the mound staff. And it needs support, for the Cubs last year lost 22 games by one run and considerably more by two and three. Only one Chicago pitcher was able to hurl 10 complete games.

That pitcher was Bob Rush, whose 13-20 record was a great disappointment to Chicago rooters. For years this huge righthander has been expected to crash the high society of National league pitching. It has been predicted that he would someday be the best in the circuit.

"He may still be," Frisch says. "After all, he's only 25 years old. At times last year he looked great. Other times he looked terrible. I have an idea he'll find himself soon. Maybe this year."

Another youngster who may be far more valuable this year than he was last is that talented southpaw Paul Minner. A Brooklyn Dodger castoff, Minner won eight and lost 13 for the Cubs in 1950. Frisch feels that he should greatly improve that mediocre record.

Still another hopeful is Frank Hiller, although he's no youngster. This 30-year-old graduate of the New York Yankee chain won 12 and lost five for the Cubs last season and fashioned an impressive 3.53 earned run average. He could even become the Cubs' ace.

Then there's that slick southpaw, Johnny Schmitz, whose 10-16 mark was far below his par for the course; and Walt Dubiel, who had a 6-10 mark; Doyle Lade, with 5-6, and then there's that real oldtimer, Dutch Leonard, the knuckler artist who is now assigned to a relief role.

Among the newcomers, Cal McLish, formerly with the Pittsburgh Pirates and Brooklyn, seems to have the best chance. McLish was purchased from the Los Angeles Angels. He had a 20-11 record last year with that weak, seventh-place Pacific Coast league club.

* * *

Frisch has three catchers, but he doesn't quite know how to combine the talents of them all. Forrest Burgess, a rookie from Springfield can hit but he can't throw. He had a .327 mark last year. Al Walker can throw but he can't his. He batted .230 with the Cubs. Shrewdest of the lot is Mickey Owen, but he's too old to catch every day.

"There must be an answer somewheres," Frisch grins.

Like last year, the Cubs' outfield will supply the power. Andy Pafko, one of the best center fielders in baseball, and Hank Sauer, the left fielder, hit 68 four-baggers between them to provide the best one-two home run punch in the National league. Pafko clouted 36 and Sauer 32.

"Center field is the only spot I don't worry about," Frisch says. "I wish I had nine guys like Pafko. He gives you 100 per cent all the time."

Chances are, the right field job will be filled by Frankie Baumholtz, the former Cincinnati outfielder and ex-Ohio university basketball star, who last year led the Pacific Coast league with a whopping .379 average. He also hit 15 homers for the Angels, from whom the Cubs purchased him.

* * *

The Cubs got little hitting last year from the infield. So little, in fact, that Frisch figures such players as Wayne Terwilliger, the second baseman, and Roy Smalley, the shortstop, are bound to improve. Terwilliger hit .242 and Smalley .230.

Smalley, once cited as the greatest shortstop prospect in the majors was something of a bust last year. Although he hit 21 home runs and knocked in 85, he set a new Cub record in strikeouts with 114. And he was not as solid in the field as expected.

This spring his job is being challenged by Jack Cusick, who was drafted from the Beaumont Texas league club, where he played under the immortal Rogers Hornsby, a great Club second baseman in years past. Cusick may not outhit Smalley, however. His mark last year was a mere .234.

The smooth operating Terwilliger, who is only 25, appears set at second base, but there's a scramble at third between Bill Serena, who hit 17 homers for the Cubs last

FRISCH HOPES TO SMOOTH EDGES OF CUBS TO GET TEAM MOVING UP IN PENNANT RACE

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the 16th and last of a series of articles on the 1951 prospects of the major league baseball teams.

By S. D. ROCKWELL
Central Press Correspondent

TUCSON, Ariz. — You ask Frankie Frisch, manager of the Chicago Cubs, how he thinks his club will do in the 1951 National league pennant race and he doesn't give you the business about this being a hustling ball club, one that will surprise a lot of people.

"We're gonna need lotsa help," Frankie says frankly.

He goes on to say that the front office won't have to go out and hire help by the truckloads and haul it into Wrigley Field. It's not a question of having to tear down and rebuild because Cubs finished seventh last year, perilously close to the cellar.

"We got the material," he says. "A lot of it, anyway. All we gotta do is smooth up the rough edges."

Frisch hopes that a few of his young pitchers will show marked improvement. He has the makings of a first class staff—or so he believes. If they benefit from experience last year at all, he thinks he may have little to worry about as far as pitching goes.

CHICAGO CUBS
Finish in '50: Seventh
Last pennant: 1945
Leading pitcher:
Frank Hiller (12-5)
Leading hitter:
Andy Pafko (.304)
(Averages are for 1950)

He figures that he has a good outfield and adequate catching, but he hopes that a couple of his young infielders—like the pitchers—will develop this season into major league stars. Maybe it isn't done overnight, but even thes lightest improvement will help.

"If one or two of these kids come through this year," Frisch says, "we'll have a much better ball club."

* * *

The Cubs had power last year—plenty of it. They walloped 161 homers, only 10 short of a club record. But there weren't enough singles and doubles sprinkled between the four-base blows, so the Cubs finished last in team batting with a pallid .248 mark.

A better balanced attack, naturally, would lend greater support to the mound staff. And it needs support, for the Cubs last year lost 22 games by one run and considerably more by two and three. Only one Chicago pitcher was able to hurl 10 complete games.

That pitcher was Bob Rush, whose 13-20 record was a great disappointment to Chicago rooters. For years this huge righthander has been expected to crash the high society of National league pitching. It has been predicted that he would someday be the best in the circuit.

"He may still be," Frisch says. "After all, he's only 25 years old. At times last year he looked great. Other times he looked terrible. I have an idea he'll find himself soon. Maybe this year."

Another youngster who may be far more valuable this year than he was last is that talented southpaw Paul Minner. A Brooklyn Dodger castoff, Minner won eight and lost 13 for the Cubs in 1950. Frisch feels that he should greatly improve that mediocre record.

Still another hopeful is Frank Hiller, although he's no youngster. This 30-year-old graduate of the New York Yankee chain won 12 and lost five for the Cubs last season and fashioned an impressive 3.53 earned run average. He could even become the Cubs' ace.

Then there's that slick southpaw, Johnny Schmitz, whose 10-16 mark was far below his par for the course; and Walt Dubiel, who had a 6-10 mark; Doyle Lade, with 5-6, and then there's that real oldtimer, Dutch Leonard, the knuckler artist who is now assigned to a relief role.

Among the newcomers, Cal McLish, formerly with the Pittsburgh Pirates and Brooklyn, seems to have the best chance. McLish was purchased from the Los Angeles Angels. He had a 20-11 record last year with that weak, seventh-place Pacific Coast league club.

* * *

Frisch has three catchers, but he doesn't quite know how to combine the talents of them all. Forrest Burgess, a rookie from Springfield can hit but he can't throw. He had a .327 mark last year. Al Walker can throw but he can't his. He batted .230 with the Cubs. Shrewdest of the lot is Mickey Owen, but he's too old to catch every day.

"There must be an answer somewheres," Frisch grins.

Like last year, the Cubs' outfield will supply the power. Andy Pafko, one of the best center fielders in baseball, and Hank Sauer, the left fielder, hit 68 four-baggers between them to provide the best one-two home run punch in the National league. Pafko clouted 36 and Sauer 32.

"Center field is the only spot I don't worry about," Frisch says. "I wish I had nine guys like Pafko. He gives you 100 per cent all the time."

Chances are, the right field job will be filled by Frankie Baumholtz, the former Cincinnati outfielder and ex-Ohio university basketball star, who last year led the Pacific Coast league with a whopping .379 average. He also hit 15 homers for the Angels, from whom the Cubs purchased him.

* * *

The Cubs got little hitting last year from the infield. So little, in fact, that Frisch figures such players as Wayne Terwilliger, the second baseman, and Roy Smalley, the shortstop, are bound to improve. Terwilliger hit .242 and Smalley .230.

Smalley, once cited as the greatest shortstop prospect in the majors was something of a bust last year. Although he hit 21 home runs and knocked in 85, he set a new Cub record in strikeouts with 114. And he was not as solid in the field as expected.

This spring his job is being challenged by Jack Cusick, who was drafted from the Beaumont Texas league club, where he played under the immortal Rogers Hornsby, a great Club second baseman in years past. Cusick may not outhit Smalley, however. His mark last year was a mere .234.

The smooth operating Terwilliger, who is only 25, appears set at second base, but there's a scramble at third between Bill Serena, who hit 17 homers for the Cubs last

Class Is Planned For Food Handlers

Instruction for food handlers will be offered by the Health Department later this month so that all restaurants in the city may be able to qualify for permits, it was announced yesterday.

The city ordinance establishing regulations for eating and drinking establishments requires that each food handler must have a permit from the City Health Officer showing he has received instruction in good sanitation.

In cases where the employe has not had an opportunity to receive such instruction, the Health Department will issue permits valid until such classes are held.

The classes have been offered by the Health Department at least once a year in Cumberland.

Rev. T. J. Liggett, a member of the United Christian Missionary Society, will be guest speaker on Sunday at 10:40 a. m. at the First Christian Church, Rev. E. W. Gearhart, pastor, announced yesterday.

Rev. Liggett, a missionary to Argentina, is home for furlough after completing a first term of mission work. A native of Florida, he attended Transylvania College and the College of the Bible, Lexington, Ky.

During student days he held pastorates in nearby churches and when transportation to the field was no longer possible during the war, he took the pastorate of First Christian Church, Danville, Ky. While in Kentucky he was active in young people's summer conference programs.

Rev. Liggett and his wife were first assigned to the work in Resistencia in the northern part of Argentina, where a new work had been established by the mission only a few years before. He has also done evangelistic work in outlying villages.

During the last year, he has served in Buenos Aires. He has been pastor of Collegiales Christian Church and has also been teaching in Union Theological Seminary. At the close of the furlough he will return to Argentina.

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, April 3 (INS)—Rumors that the Army is clamping down on Columbia and refusing to co-operate in filming the best-selling novel, "From Here To Eternity," are not true.

What has actually happened is that S. Sylvan Simon, the producer, went to Washington and outlined the plans Columbia has for changing the story. The Department of Defense found nothing objectionable in the Columbia script.

Naturally, all the profanity will be cut out and the enlisted man will not be played up.

It would really have been something if the $100,000 Columbia paid for this book had gone down the sink.

• — • — •

Last September when "Wildfire" was being filmed near Missoula, Montana, you'll remember Victor Mature fell off a motorcycle and injured the ligaments in his leg. One accident after another happened so the picture was called off.

Now Sam Engel, the producer, is having a whole rewrite job done and getting "Wildfire" ready to go in June or July when the forests in Montana are green.

Vic will not be in the new version, but Glenn Ford will be given the top role and a whole new cast chosen. In fact, the picture will be made from scratch.

• — • — •

Raoul Walsh, directing Gary Cooper in "Drums Of Destiny," writes that the location in Florida is the worst he's ever encountered. The snakes and alligators in the swamps are so bad all the members of the cast have to have special boots made to protest them.

Before Gary went to Florida he spent a few days in Havana deep sea fishing with Ernest Hemingway. Hemingway is working on a new novel and his hero is a sort of Gary Cooper type aren't they all?

Hemingway promised Gary he'd visit him in Florida and they'd try to get in a little more fishing. Bet Hemingway won't go while they're in the swamps!

Chatter in Hollywood:

Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor quietly had dinner the other night but — for Heaven's sake — before making a big production of it and shouting "reconciliation!" —let's give these two a chance. I mean, a chance to work out their problem as good friends again after the bitterness of their parting.

Their friends are hoping and keeping their fingers crossed that Bob and Barbara will eventually get back together — but this dinner date by no means signifies that.

Bob left for Utah Monday night for about three weeks of location work on "Westward The Women." When he returns — well, we'll see what we shall see.

Snapshots of Hollyood collected at random:

The Mischa Auers cable from London they are expecting a baby in September.

Feliza Vanderbilt, who tell me she was very sick with pneumonia in New York, was at Ciro's with Robert Merrill. Feliza as also at the Buddy Adler party.

What a great party Anita Louise and Buddy gave honoring Molly and Charlie Berns of 21 Club fame — the last party at this Romanoff location. I stopped in briefly and it was just wonderful to see so many old friends.

Jeanne Crain is having Charles Le Maire design her a special ribbon dress to wear to the ribbon cabaret at the Beverly Hills Hotel May 19. The proceeds go to the Minnie Barton Bidawee Home.

At the Cafe Gala Howard Duff and Marta Toren were obsorbed in each other.

Shirley Temple and Charles Black are about to buy a house in Laguna. What a wonderful place to spend the summer.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Should you feel hurt if your children leave home?

Answer: No, You would be much more justified in worrying if they did not wish to do so, once they reach mature years. A young person who prefers his parents' company to that of people of his own age, who cannot make decisions without asking their advice, or who does not want to be self-supporting has failed to grow up emotionally. And the more parents oppose or discourage his becoming independent, the more a normal young person will feel that he simply must "get out on his own" — and ought to do so if he (or she) possibly can.

Is the "wolf" an enviable figure?

Answer: Quite the opposite, says Dr. Edmund Bergler in his latest book, "Neurotic Counterfeit-Sex." The wolf is a "palpable sexual impostor," trying by the number of his conquests to conceal his inner and well-founded doubt of his own manhood—which is almost certain in the end to fail him. He will ultimately make the mistake of attaching himself to a normal woman who will see through his pretenses and "reject him with scorn," or else he will give up from what he tries to think is boredom. "People who admire wolves should see a 'fallen wolf' on the analytic couch."

Can you hate someone "impersonally"?

Answer: No. Every situation that you face today awakens associations with former experiences and if it did not, would have no meaning for you. The hatred of tyrants which most of us feel gets its intensity from the resentment that we felt as children when our "dictatorial" parents frustrated our wishes. The unconscious mind, which is the source of all emotion, knows nothing of abstract principles—you cannot hate anyone or anything except as you unconsciously identify him or it with some once-hated person or some hateful aspect of a person whom you otherwise loved.

May a minor blemish ruin your life?

Answer: It may seem to. I've known men and women who honestly believed that a large nose, a birthmark, or a barely noticeable lameness made it impossible for them to feel at ease with others or to be accepted by them. But the fact the correction of the defect rarely solves their problem permanently, and that others have lived normal lives in spite of being disfigured, proves that the real source of the "inferiority feelings" is a deeper, probably forgotten wound to self-esteem which traces back to childhood.

Can you "rise above" pain and discomfort?

Answer: Relatively, yes. One part of your mind over which you have considerable, though not absolute control is your attention, and you can learn to direct this away from yourself and your discomforts more effectively than you are apt to realize until you try. You would forget an ordinary toothache if you saw a million dollars coming your way, and becoming interested in a task or problem may have much the same effect if you will give it a chance. Anyhow, you need not make your troubles worse by dwelling on them.

May you teach your child to be rude?

Answer: Yes, says Tina Principato in an article reprinted in Child-Family Digest. Your child's manners, good or bad, are mostly an unconscious imitation of yours. You cannot expect him to say, "Thank you" if you do not say it to the grocery boy, or to be considerate of other people if you push your way up to the counter out of your turn. Your child automatically takes you as the model of how a grown-up should behave and, compared with the way in which you behave toward him and other people, nothing that you say has much effect upon him.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, April 3 (INS)—Rumors that the Army is clamping down on Columbia and refusing to co-operate in filming the best-selling novel, "From Here To Eternity," are not true.

What has actually happened is that S. Sylvan Simon, the producer, went to Washington and outlined the plans Columbia has for changing the story. The Department of Defense found nothing objectionable in the Columbia script.

Naturally, all the profanity will be cut out and the enlisted man will not be played up.

It would really have been something if the $100,000 Columbia paid for this book had gone down the sink.

Last September when "Wildfire" was being filmed near Missoula, Montana, you'll remember Victor Mature fell off a motorcycle and injured the ligaments in his leg. One accident after another happened so the picture was called off.

Now Sam Engel, the producer, is having a whole rewrite job done and getting "Wildfire" ready to go in June or July when the forests in Montana are green.

Vic will not be in the new version, but Glenn Ford will be given the top role and a whole new cast chosen. In fact, the picture will be made from scratch.

Raoul Walsh, directing Gary Cooper in "Drums Of Destiny," writes that the location in Florida is the worst he's ever encountered. The snakes and alligators in the swamps are so bad all the members of the cast have to have special boots made to protest them.

Before Gary went to Florida he spent a few days in Havana deep sea fishing with Ernest Hemingway. Hemingway is working on a new novel and his hero is a sort of Gary Cooper type aren't they all?

Hemingway promised Gary he'd visit him in Florida and they'd try to get in a little more fishing. Bet Hemingway won't go while they're in the swamps!

Chatter in Hollywood:

Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor quietly had dinner the other night but — for Heaven's sake — before making a big production of it and shouting "reconciliation!" —let's give these two a chance. I mean, a chance to work out their problem as good friends again after the bitterness of their parting.

Their friends are hoping and keeping their fingers crossed that Bob and Barbara will eventually get back together — but this dinner date by no means signifies that.

Bob left for Utah Monday night for about three weeks of location work on "Westward The Women." When he returns — well, we'll see what we shall see.

Snapshots of Hollyood collected at random:

The Mischa Auers cable from London they are expecting a baby in September.

Feliza Vanderbilt, who tell me she was very sick with pneumonia in New York, was at Ciro's with Robert Merrill. Feliza as also at the Buddy Adler party.

What a great party Anita Louise and Buddy gave honoring Molly and Charlie Berns of 21 Club fame — the last party at this Romanoff location, I stopped in briefly and it was just wonderful to see so many old friends.

Jeanne Crain is having Charles Le Maire design her a special ribbon dress to wear to the ribbon cabaret at the Beverly Hills Hotel May 19. The proceeds go to the Minnie Barton Bidawee Home.

At the Cafe Gala Howard Duff and Marta Toren were obsorbed in each other.

Shirley Temple and Charles Black are about to buy a house in Laguna. What a wonderful place to spend the summer.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Should you feel hurt if your children leave home?

Answer: No. You would be much more justified in worrying if they did not wish to do so, once they reach mature years. A young person who prefers his parents' company to that of people of his own age, who cannot make decisions without asking their advice, or who does not want to be self-supporting has failed to grow up emotionally. And the more parents oppose or discourage his becoming independent, the more a normal young person will feel that he simply must "get out on his own" — and ought to do so if he (or she) possibly can.

Is the "wolf" an enviable figure?

Answer: Quite the opposite, says Dr. Edmund Bergler in his latest book, "Neurotic Counterfeit-Sex." The wolf is a "palpable sexual impostor," trying by the number of his conquests to conceal his inner and well-founded doubt of his own manhood—which is almost certain in the end to fail him. He will ultimately make the mistake of attaching himself to a normal woman who will see through his pretenses and "reject him with scorn," or else he will give up from what he tries to think is boredom. "People who admire wolves should see a 'fallen wolf' on the analytic couch."

Can you hate someone "impersonally"?

Answer: No. Every situation that you face today awakens associations with former experiences and if it did not, would have no meaning for you. The hatred of tyrants which most of us feel gets its intensity from the resentment that we felt as children when our "dictatorial" parents frustrated our wishes. The unconscious mind, which is the source of all emotion, knows nothing of abstract principles—you cannot hate anyone or anything except as you unconsciously identify him or it with some once-hated person or some hateful aspect of a person whom you otherwise loved.

May a minor blemish ruin your life?

Answer: It may seem to. I've known men and women who honestly believed that a large nose, a birthmark, or a barely noticeable lameness made it impossible for them to feel at ease with others or to be accepted by them. But the fact the correction of the defect rarely solves their problem permanently, and that others have lived normal lives in spite of being disfigured, proves that the real source of the "inferiority feelings" is a deeper, probably forgotten wound to self-esteem which traces back to childhood.

Can you "rise above" pain and discomfort?

Answer: Relatively, yes. One part of your mind over which you have considerable, though not absolute control is your attention, and you can learn to direct this away from yourself and your discomforts more effectively than you are apt to realize until you try. You would forget an ordinary toothache if you saw a million dollars coming your way, and becoming interested in a task or problem may have much the same effect if you will give it a chance. Anyhow, you need not make your troubles worse by dwelling on them.

May you teach your child to be rude?

Answer: Yes, says Tina Principato in an article reprinted in Child-Family Digest. Your child's manners, good or bad, are mostly an unconscious imitation of yours. You cannot expect him to say, "Thank you" if you do not say it to the grocery boy, or to be considerate of other people if you push your way up to the counter out of your turn. Your child automatically takes you as the model of how a grown-up should behave and, compared with the way in which you behave toward him and other people, nothing that you say has much effect upon him.

PIN-WORMS MAY BE A FAMILY AFFAIR
Fidgeting, nose-picking and a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms . . . ugly parasites that medical experts say infest one out of every three persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.
To get rid of Pin-Worms, these pests must not only be killed, but killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:
First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily.
Don't take chances with this dangerous, highly contagious condition. At the first sign of Pin-Worms, ask your druggist for genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge . . . the small, easy-to-take tablets perfected by famous Dr. D. Jayne & Son, specialists in worm remedies for over 100 years.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

The Nature Of Television

A GOOD deal of the criticism and comment concerning television's role in the Kefauver hearings, it seems to me, overlooks or misrepresents the fundamental nature of television. As a conspicuous example of this misunderstanding, take Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz's statement to Yale law students.

John Crosby

While praising TV for "informing and moulding public opinion" during the hearings, the famed Brooklyn judge went on to warn that the hearings had also shown "what a sinister weapon of slander, what a Frankenstein monster that television camera can become if proper safeguards are not set up to control its use."

Judge Leibowitz, astute as he is, is ignoring the fact that the television camera, far from being a Frankenstein monster, is simply an instrument, a method of communication, a recording device. As "Broadcasting" magazine wisely points out: "Television has an absolutely impartial eye and ear. It does not edit nor interpret. It simply sees and hears. It cannot turn a hearing into a carnival unless the hearing itself is so conducted. It cannot make a man a bum unless he is one."

The magazine states further: "To a large extent the evolution of government from the monarchical authoritarianism of feudal times to the parliamentary democracy of today has depended upon the opening of government activity not only to public participation but also to public scrutiny. The Star Chamber courts, whose dark secrecy protected the most unjust verdict, gave way to public trials and the jury system. . . The evolution has been slow and at times painful (The U. S. Senate met behind closed doors until 1792 when forced by editorial pressure to admit the public) but it has been made inevitable by the very nature of democratic progress."

Television just carries that evolution to almost the ultimate point in public scrutiny. Judge Leibowitz quite properly points out that, while the Kefauver investigation was a dignified one, there might come a time "when some inquiring body will go off into a smear campaign." And, if the cameras were on the witness, the smear, of course, would be spread to an audience of millions. That would hardly be the fault of television but of the people who were conducting the hearings. People have been smeared before in Washington without any help from the cameras and they probably will be again.

And I'm not at all sure that television will abet the evil; my feeling is that it will lessen it. I have too much faith in the common sense of the American people and, more importantly, in their deep respect for fair play. Unfair and prosecutory methods, I'm convinced, will be detected and condemned very easily by the people. With television, the examiner is under scrutiny as well as the witness. I have grave doubts whether Senator McCarthy, for example, could stand up long under the merciless honesty of a television camera.

Another point has been raised by eminent legal brains—that of sponsorship. It has been darkley hinted that Mr. Costello and his friends could, if they chose, have a lively legal case against "Time" for sponsoring a program, on which they were the reluctant entertainers. One columnist has offered the opinion that hoodlums ought to be paid the going rate for their appearance like actors. This sort of opinion unfairly narrows the value of television. According to this point of view, TV is nothing more than a means to bring Milton Berle into as many homes as possible, an entertainment medium and nothing more.

But TV is essentially, I repeat, a method of communication far more than it is sort of a home movie. Advertising pays its bills. Advertising also pays the bills of this newspaper and of the news magazines. And believe me, kid, the Kefauver hearings didn't hurt circulation. If "Time" is guilty of sponsorship, then any advertiser in newspapers during the hearings were just as culpable of commercializing on the woes of Mr. Costello and his friends.

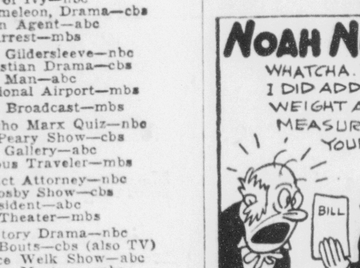
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

GIVE LUCK A CHANCE

YOU'LL never know whether you are lucky or not unless you give your luck a chance. If everything is hopeless unless you can get a string of good breaks, it is only sound common sense to seek them. Some contracts seem impossible to make. But the sound declarer will inspect the various situations in the several suits, in both his own hand and the dummy, and be pretty likely to find the only opportunity to try his luck. The lazy fellow, who wants things made to his order, may just give up in the same set of circumstances.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
2 ♣	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 NT	Pass
4 ♣	Pass	5 ♣	Pass

Nobody but a fine player, with full confidence in a good partner, would have bid as South did, making less-than-game bids of 3-Clubs and 4-Clubs which a bad player in the North might have passed, or even a good player who lacked confidence in South. They were splendid bids, as giving North a chance to stick in a bid of some very weak suit that might prove the best declaration. When North finally showed a fit with the clubs, after fearing to encourage South with such a bid raising the 3-Clubs, South was ready for big stuff and decided to chance the slam.

A quitter of a declarer would have folded up when West led the heart K and he saw that dummy. But study indicated a tiny ray of hope. Preserving his slight chance, he ruffed the second high heart with the club A, carefully preserving the 5. Then he tried for his first lucky break by laying down two club honors, and got it. Next he sought the second streak of fortune by scoring the diamond tops, which cleared the suit to set up dummy's 5. Now he led the club 5 to the 6, used the diamond 5 to discard the spade J and then sought lucky piece number 3. It was the spade Q finesse. When it worked, he was home. Odds were against all this, but it was the sole chance, so sound to try.

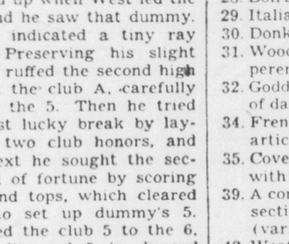
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

If West had opened with 1-Spade, what is the soundest defense against North's 3-No Trumps?

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

The Nature Of Television

A GOOD deal of the criticism and comment concerning television's role in the Kefauver hearings, it seems to me, overlooks or misrepresents the fundamental nature of television. As a conspicuous example of this misunderstanding, take Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz's statement to Yale law students.

John Crosby

While praising TV for "informing and moulding public opinion" during the hearings, the famed Brooklyn judge went on to warn that the hearings had also shown "what a sinister weapon of slander, what a Frankenstein monster that television camera can become if proper safeguards are not set up to control its use."

Judge Leibowitz, astute as he is, is ignoring the fact that the television camera, far from being a Frankenstein monster, is simply an instrument, a method of communication, a recording device. As "Broadcasting" magazine wisely points out: "Television has an absolutely impartial eye and ear. It does not edit nor interpret. It simply sees and hears. It cannot turn a hearing into a carnival unless the hearing itself is so conducted. It cannot make a man a bum unless he is one."

The magazine states further: "To a large extent the evolution of government from the monarchical authoritarianism of feudal times to the parliamentary democracy of today has depended upon the opening of government activity not only to public participation but also to public scrutiny. The Star Chamber courts, whose dark secrecy protected the most unjust verdict, gave way to public trials and the jury system. . . The evolution has been slow and at times painful (The U. S. Senate met behind closed doors until 1792 when forced by editorial pressure to admit the public) but it has been made inevitable by the very nature of democratic progress."

Television just carries that evolution to almost the ultimate point in public scrutiny. Judge Leibowitz quite properly points out that, while the Kefauver investigation was a dignified one, there might come a time "when some inquiring body will go off into a smear campaign." And, if the cameras were on the witness, the smear, of course, would be spread to an audience of millions. That would hardly be the fault of television but of the people who were conducting the hearings. People have been smeared before in Washington without any help from the cameras and they probably will be again.

And I'm not at all sure that television will abet the evil; my feeling is that it will lessen it. I have too much faith in the common sense of the American people and, more importantly, in their deep respect for fair play. Unfair and prosecutory methods, I'm convinced, will be detected and condemned very easily by the people. With television, the examiner is under scrutiny as well as the witness. I have grave doubts whether Senator McCarthy, for example, could stand up long under the merciless honesty of a television camera.

Another point has been raised by eminent legal brains—that of sponsorship. It has been darkley hinted that Mr. Costello and his friends could, if they chose, have a lively legal case against "Time" for sponsoring a program, on which they were the reluctant entertainers. One columnist has offered the opinion that hoodlums ought to be paid the going rate for their appearance like actors. This sort of opinion unfairly narrows the value of television. According to this point of view, TV is nothing more than a means to bring Milton Berle into as many homes as possible, an entertainment medium and nothing more.

But TV is essentially, I repeat, a method of communication far more than it is sort of a home movie. Advertising pays its bills. Advertising also pays the bills of this newspaper and of the news magazines. And believe me, kid, the Kefauver hearings didn't hurt circulation. If "Time" is guilty of sponsorship, then any advertiser in newspapers during the hearings were just as culpable of commercializing on the woes of Mr. Costello and his friends.

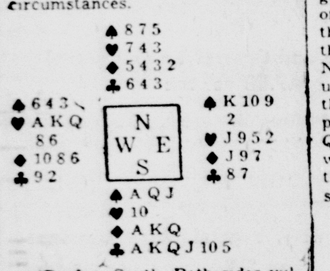
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

GIVE LUCK A CHANCE

YOU'LL never know whether you are lucky or not unless you give your luck a chance. If everything is hopeless unless you can get a string of good breaks, it is only sound common sense to seek them. Some contracts seem impossible to make. But the sound declarer will inspect the various situations in the several suits, in both his own hand and the dummy, and be pretty likely to find the only opportunity to try his luck. The lazy fellow, who wants things made to his order, may just give up in the same set of circumstances.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
2♣	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3♣	Pass	3 NT	Pass

Nobody but a fine player, with full confidence in a good partner, would have bid as South did, making less-than-game bids of 3-Clubs and 4-Clubs which a bad player in the North might have passed, or even a good player who lacked confidence in South. They were splendid bids, as giving North a chance to stick in a bid of some very weak suit that might prove the best declaration. When North finally showed a fit with the clubs, after fearing to encourage South with such a bid raising the 3-Clubs, South was ready for big stuff and decided to chance the slam.

A quitter of a declarer would have folded up when West led the heart K and he saw that dummy. But study indicated a tiny ray of hope. Preserving his slight chance, he ruffed the second high heart with the club A, carefully preserving the 5. Then he tried for his first lucky break by laying down two club honors, and got it. Next he sought the second streak of fortune by scoring the diamond tops, which cleared the suit to set up dummy's 5. Now he led the club 5 to the 6, used the diamond 5 to discard the spade J and then sought lucky piece number 3. It was the spade Q finesse. When it worked, he was home. Odds were against all this, but it was the sole chance, so sound to try.

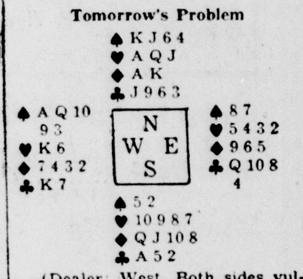
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

If West had opened with 1-Spade, what is the soundest defense against North's 3-No Trumps?

The Nature Of Television

A GOOD deal of the criticism and comment concerning television's role in the Kefauver hearings, it seems to me, overlooks or misrepresents the fundamental nature of television. As a conspicuous example of this misunderstanding, take Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz's statement to Yale law students.

John Crosby

While praising TV for "informing and moulding public opinion" during the hearings, the famed Brooklyn judge went on to warn that the hearings had also shown "what a sinister weapon of slander, what a Frankenstein monster that television camera can become if proper safeguards are not set up to control its use."

Judge Leibowitz, astute as he is, is ignoring the fact that the television camera, far from being a Frankenstein monster, is simply an instrument, a method of communication, a recording device. As "Broadcasting" magazine wisely points out: "Television has an absolutely impartial eye and ear. It does not edit nor interpret. It simply sees and hears. It cannot turn a hearing into a carnival unless the hearing itself is so conducted. It cannot make a man a bum unless he is one."

The magazine states further: "To a large extent the evolution of government from the monarchical authoritarianism of feudal times to the parliamentary democracy of today has depended upon the opening of government activity not only to public participation but also to public scrutiny. The Star Chamber courts, whose dark secrecy protected the most unjust verdict, gave way to public trials and the jury system. . . The evolution has been slow and at times painful (The U. S. Senate met behind closed doors until 1792 when forced by editorial pressure to admit the public) but it has been made inevitable by the very nature of democratic progress."

Television just carries that evolution to almost the ultimate point in public scrutiny. Judge Leibowitz quite properly points out that, while the Kefauver investigation was a dignified one, there might come a time "when some inquiring body will go off into a smear campaign." And, if the cameras were on the witness, the smear, of course, would be spread to an audience of millions. That would hardly be the fault of television but of the people who were conducting the hearings. People have been smeared before in Washington without any help from the cameras and they probably will be again.

And I'm not at all sure that television will abet the evil; my feeling is that it will lessen it. I have too much faith in the common sense of the American people and, more importantly, in their deep respect for fair play. Unfair and prosecutory methods, I'm convinced, will be detected and condemned very easily by the people. With television, the examiner is under scrutiny as well as the witness. I have grave doubts whether Senator McCarthy, for example, could stand up long under the merciless honesty of a television camera.

Another point has been raised by eminent legal brains—that of sponsorship. It has been darkley hinted that Mr. Costello and his friends could, if they chose, have a lively legal case against "Time" for sponsoring a program, on which they were the reluctant entertainers. One columnist has offered the opinion that hoodlums ought to be paid the going rate for their appearance like actors. This sort of opinion unfairly narrows the value of television. According to this point of view, TV is nothing more than a means to bring Milton Berle into as many homes as possible, an entertainment medium and nothing more.

But TV is essentially, I repeat, a method of communication far more than it is sort of a home movie. Advertising pays its bills. Advertising also pays the bills of this newspaper and of the news magazines. And believe me, kid, the Kefauver hearings didn't hurt circulation. If "Time" is guilty of sponsorship, then any advertiser in newspapers during the hearings were just as culpable of commercializing on the woes of Mr. Costello and his friends.

Dubrovnik, town of 18,000 on Yugoslavia's Adriatic Sea coast, was long known by its Italian name, Ragusa. Waxing rich as a maritime power in the Middle Ages, Ragusa launched countless ships in sea trade, notes the National Geographic Society. A Ragusan vessel was called a ragusy—from which nickname came the word argosy.

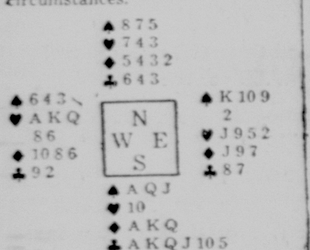
"The Authority on Authorities"

GIVE LUCK A CHANCE

YOU'LL never know whether you are lucky or not unless you give your luck a chance. If everything is hopeless unless you can get a string of good breaks, it is only sound common sense to seek them. Some contracts seem impossible to make. But the sound declarer will inspect the various situations in the several suits, in both his own hand and the dummy, and be pretty likely to find the only opportunity to try his luck. The lazy fellow, who wants things made to his order, may just give up in the same set of circumstances.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
2 ♣	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 NT	Pass

Nobody but a fine player, with full confidence in a good partner, would have bid as South did, making less-than-game bids of 3-Clubs and 4-Clubs which a bad player in the North might have passed, or even a good player who lacked confidence in South. They were splendid bids, as giving North a chance to stick in a bid of some very weak suit that might prove the best declaration. When North finally showed a fit with the clubs, after fearing to encourage South with such a bid raising the 3-Clubs, South was ready for big stuff and decided to chance the slam.

A quitter of a declarer would have folded up when West led the heart K and he saw that dummy. But study indicated a tiny ray of hope. Preserving his slight chance, he ruffed the second high heart with the club A, carefully preserving the 5. Then he tried for his first lucky break by laying down two club honors, and got it. Next he sought the second streak of fortune by scoring the diamond tops, which cleared the suit to set up dummy's 5. Now he led the club 5 to the 6, used the diamond 5 to discard the spade J and then sought lucky piece number 3. It was the spade Q finesse. When it worked, he was home. Odds were against all this, but it was the sole chance, so sound to try.

Tomorrow's Problem

If West had opened with 1-Spade, what is the soundest defense against North's 3-No Trumps?

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

The city will ask the State Road Commission to strengthen the bridge leading to the city dump.

Art Mooney And Orchestra To Play At Maple Festival

MEYERSDALE, Pa.—Art Mooney, "That genial Irish gentleman," will bring his great entertaining band to Meyersdale April 13, for the Maple Queen's Ball of the fourth annual Somerset County Maple Festival. The ball will be held in the Meyersdale High School auditorium.

Few band leaders on the American musical scene have created such a fervor of excitement as Mooney. His waxing of "I'm Looking Over A Four Leaf Clover" became a national institution which won for him top position of the band world.

Novelty tunes have long been one of the fortes of the Mooney band. Realizing that the discriminating public demands more than eight rhythmic bars in patterned sequence, Art has skillfully combined entertainment with dance music. Adding further to his versatility, Mooney has done much in the way of choral and vocal presentations. His band is unlimited in the upper bracket entertainment.

Mooney is currently injecting some of the old Glenn Miller trademarks into his music; the clarinet leading the sax section; the trumpets muted and then, lending to dreamy dancing, easy listening. He also stresses showmanship and production as well as danceable music.

The Irish gentleman makes no pretentions about his goal in the music business. His aim is to play what the public wants. Sensing the national nostalgia for music in the Glen Miller mood, Art began to restock his book with arrangements by men like Jerry Gray and Norm Leyden, both of whom at one time did arrangeing for Miller.

Some of Art Mooney's outstanding engagements have been at the Capitol Theatre in New York, Meadowbrook in New Jersey, the Click in Philadelphia, Statler Hotel in Detroit, Palladium Ballroom in Hollywood, Aragon Ballroom in Chicago, Steel Pier in Atlantic City, and over Dumont's Cavalcade of Bands on television.

Art Mooney And Orchestra To Play At Maple Festival

MEYERSDALE, Pa.—Art Mooney, "That genial Irish gentleman," will bring his great entertaining band to Meyersdale April 13, for the Maple Queen's Ball of the fourth annual Somerset County Maple Festival. The ball will be held in the Meyersdale High School auditorium.

Few band leaders on the American musical scene have created such a fervor of excitement as Mooney. His waxing of "I'm Looking Over A Four Leaf Clover" became a national institution which won for him top position of the band world.

Novelty tunes have long been one of the fortes of the Mooney band. Realizing that the discriminating public demands more than eight rhythmic bars in patterned sequence, Art has skillfully combined entertainment with dance music. Adding further to his versatility, Mooney has done much in the way of choral and vocal presentations. His band is unlimited in the upper bracket entertainment.

Mooney is currently injecting some of the old Glenn Miller trademarks into his music; the clarinet leading the sax section; the trumpets muted and then, lending to dreamy dancing, easy listening. He also stresses showmanship and production as well as danceable music.

The Irish gentleman makes no pretentions about his goal in the music business. His aim is to play what the public wants. Sensing the national nostalgia for music in the Glen Miller mood, Art began to restock his book with arrangements by men like Jerry Gray and Norm Leyden, both of whom at one time did arrangeing for Miller.

Some of Art Mooney's outstanding engagements have been at the Capitol Theatre in New York, Meadowbrook in New Jersey, the Click in Philadelphia, Statler Hotel in Detroit, Palladium Ballroom in Hollywood, Aragon Ballroom in Chicago, Steel Pier in Atlantic City, and over Dumont's Cavalcade of Bands on television.

Keyser Plans Summer Work At Stone Quarry

Stone To Be Needed For Street Repairs

KEYSER, W. Va. — Plans for the operation of the city stone quarry during the summer months, were discussed at a meeting of council yesterday.

Consideration of the amount of work necessary to put the streets and alleys of Keyser into good condition following the hard winter was given and it was the opinion of the mayor and councilmen that a large amount of crushed stone will be necessary.

A tentative plan was made to start work soon at the quarry building a stockpile of crushed stone.

The city will ask the State Road Commission to strengthen the bridge leading to the city dump.

Dakin Morehouse told the council he will provide a bulldozer at the West End Playground when weather permits to scrape the playing field and spread dirt evenly. The offer was made by the operator of the Keyser Cement Products Company, so the city can use its grader on the surface in preparing for the opening of the playground season.

The city scale was declared out of line yesterday by a state inspector and sealed to prevent use of it until repairs are made. The inspector discovered the scales were showing light weight, butu nknown to city officials. A telephone call was made to the scale installers to send a man to Keyser at once to make adjustments.

WESTERNPORT—Mrs. Katherine Dailey was reappointed city clerk of Westernport for two years at the regular meeting of Mayor George P. Kight and City Commissioners Monday night.

Burza Hanlin was reappointed bailiff for one year. Hanlin is the chief of police but is known, according to the charter, as bailiff.

Persons illegally dumping garbage within the corporate limits of the town will be prosecuted by the law the council noted. The penalty for conviction is $5 for each disturbance.

Westernport will not participate in the four community garbage plan for a proposed land fill between Piedmont and Keyser, the council added.

It was ordered that the city clerk advise William Waller, Keyser, W. Va., state sanitary officer, Westernport would be unable to take part as the town was not financially able to do so.

The other three communities proposed in the unit are Keyser, Piedmont and Luke.

Art Mooney And Orchestra To Play At Maple Festival

MEYERSDALE, Pa.—Art Mooney, "That genial Irish gentleman," will bring his great entertaining band to Meyersdale April 13, for the Maple Queen's Ball of the fourth annual Somerset County Maple Festival. The ball will be held in the Meyersdale High School auditorium.

Few band leaders on the American musical scene have created such a fervor of excitement as Mooney. His waxing of "I'm Looking Over A Four Leaf Clover" became a national institution which won for him top position of the band world.

Novelty tunes have long been one of the fortes of the Mooney band. Realizing that the discriminating public demands more than eight rhythmic bars in patterned sequence, Art has skillfully combined entertainment with dance music. Adding further to his versatility, Mooney has done much in the way of choral and vocal presentations. His band is unlimited in the upper bracket entertainment.

Mooney is currently injecting some of the old Glenn Miller trademarks into his music; the clarinet leading the sax section; the trumpets muted and then, lending to dreamy dancing, easy listening. He also stresses showmanship and production as well as danceable music.

The Irish gentleman makes no pretentions about his goal in the music business. His aim is to play what the public wants. Sensing the national nostalgia for music in the Glen Miller mood, Art began to restock his book with arrangements by men like Jerry Gray and Norm Leyden, both of whom at one time did arrangeing for Miller.

Some of Art Mooney's outstanding engagements have been at the Capitol Theatre in New York, Meadowbrook in New Jersey, the Click in Philadelphia, Statler Hotel in Detroit, Palladium Ballroom in Hollywood, Aragon Ballroom in Chicago, Steel Pier in Atlantic City, and over Dumont's Cavalcade of Bands on television.

Mineral County May Name Dog Catcher

KEYSER, W. Va.—War has been declared on dogs in the areas of Mineral County outside the city of Keyser. At a meeting of the County Court yesterday, it was decided to call a special meeting Saturday, at which time a dog catcher for the county may be named.

At a meeting of City Council yesterday, further steps were taken toward carrying out the city's plans to rid the city of dogs running loose within the city. A dog catcher was recently named, and at yesterday's meeting, plans were made to obtain an enclosed truck to be used in picking up stray dogs in the city and removing them to the dog pound.

At the county court meeting, Kirk K. Mawhinney was named successor to Charles H. Vossler as Mineral County justice of the peace. Vossler, who was elected last fall, resigned several days ago due to being recalled to active duty in the Navy.

Sorority Will Hold Rush Party

KEYSER, W. Va. — Miss Betty Judy was guest speaker at the meeting of the Iota Pi Chapter, Tau Phi Lambda Sorority of the Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle held at the home of Adrian Clise, 307 North Main Street, Monday. She showed slides of a trip to Germany last summer.

The slides showed young people from many nations working together to help construct buildings and promote goodwill among the refugees and displaced persons. Most of Miss Judy's work was at Kassel, Germany, and she said that the first question asked by the refugees is: "How can I get to America?" Her visit was sponsored by the Keyser Church of the Brethren.

At the business meeting, plans were made for a Rush party April 16 at the home of Juanita Rotruck, 162 E Street. The committee includes Luetta Dantzic, chairman; Mary Rotruck and Kathleen Harrison.

Lotowhite Wins Jamaica Feature

JAMAICA, L. I., April 3 (AP)—Taking the lead at the top of the stretch, Lotowhite splashed home a winner by four lengths in the Fighting Fox, a mile and sixteenth allowance affair, before 20,473 fans here today.

Joe W. Brown's Riverlane cut out a fast pace and held the lead until the turn for home when Eddie Arcaro, aboard Lotowhite, 4-year-old son of Devil Diver-Lotopoise, cut his mount loose. The colt, going good in the muddy going, moved quickly to a commanding lead and was in hand at the finish.

King Ranch's Flying Missel took the small end of the purse from A. Leveinson's Gold Heel, the only other starter. The time of 146 1/5 was good for the muddy going.

Dukes Is Too Tall

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., April 3 (AP) — Walt Dukes, star sophomore center of the Seton Hall University basketball team, was turned down at his selective service physical exam today — he's too tall.

The lanky negro from Rochester, N. Y., is 6-11, which is five inches over the army maximum.

Stocks Lose In Final Hour As Recovery Attempt Fails

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP) — Stocks tilted lower in the final hour of today's market after a recovery attempt failed to make the grade.

The whole see-saw performance occurred in one of the lowest trading sessions of the year, with only 1,220,000 shares changing hands. This compared with sales of 1,280,000 on Monday.

Final losses outnumbered gains by the moderate margin of 467 to 321, out of 1,076 issues traded. Of these 89 touched new lows for the year; eight reached new highs.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped 30 cents at $91.80.

Industrials were down 40 cents, rails 30 cents and utilities were unchanged.

Eight of the 16 most active stocks were unchanged, among them the three leaders in activity — Packard, Radio Corp. and Benguet Mining.

Today's transactions were well distributed. Even the most active issue — Packard — sold only 19,200 shares.

Two rail stocks — New York Central and Pennsylvania—each with a decline of ⅜ of a point, attained the sixth and seventh most active spots with sales of 11,600 and 10,400 shares respectively.

Down 1½ was Santa Fe at 157¾. Fractionally lower were Allied Chemical at 60⅛, du Pont 87¾, Union Carbide 54½, Zenith 63¼, American Smelting 71, Standard Oil (N.J.) 102, Eastern Air Lines 21⅜ (despite a favorable earnings statement), Illinois Central 60½, Canadian Pacific 24¼, American Cyanamid 89¼ and Air Reduction 26¼.

Baltimore Livestock

BALTIMORE, April 3 (AP) — (USDA)—

CATTLE—150—not enough any class sold to establish a trading basis, quotations nominally unchanged, commercial cows 29.00-50, odd head canner to low utility grade tranged 18.00-27.00, small lot medium and good around 300-750 lb. stockers and steers and calves 35.00-38.00.

CALVES—100—top 1.00 lower but otherwise nominally unchanged, odd head choice and prime vealers 39.00-40.00, the top, commercial and good 34.00-37.00.

HOGS — 700 — fairly active, but generally 25 cents lower, good and choice 170-230 lb. barrows and gilts 22.00-25, the top, 240-260 lbs. 21.25-75, 260-300 lbs. 20.00-21.25, heavier weights 19.00 down according to weight and condition, 120-140 lbs. 17.75-18.25, 140-160 lbs. 19.25-75, sows under 400 lbs. largely 18.25-50, good 400-450 lbs. 17.00-50, heavier weights 16.50 down depending on weight and condition.

SHEEP—none—individual wooled ewe brought 20.00, the top quotation.

Mineral County May Name Dog Catcher

KEYSER, W. Va.—War has been declared on dogs in the areas of Mineral County outside the city of Keyser. At a meeting of the County Court yesterday, it was decided to call a special meeting Saturday, at which time a dog catcher for the county may be named.

At a meeting of City Council yesterday, further steps were taken toward carrying out the city's plans to rid the city of dogs running loose within the city. A dog catcher was recently named, and at yesterday's meeting, plans were made to obtain an enclosed truck to be used in picking up stray dogs in the city and removing them to the dog pound.

At the county court meeting, Kirk K. Mawhinney was named successor to Charles H. Vossler as Mineral County justice of the peace. Vossler, who was elected last fall, resigned several days ago due to being recalled to active duty in the Navy.

Sorority Will Hold Rush Party

KEYSER, W. Va. — Miss Betty Judy was guest speaker at the meeting of the Iota Pi Chapter, Tau Phi Lambda Sorority of the Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle held at the home of Adrian Clise, 307 North Main Street, Monday. She showed slides of a trip to Germany last summer.

The slides showed young people from many nations working together to help construct buildings and promote goodwill among the refugees and displaced persons. Most of Miss Judy's work was at Kassel, Germany, and she said that the first question asked by the refugees is: "How can I get to America?" Her visit was sponsored by the Keyser Church of the Brethren.

At the business meeting, plans were made for a Rush party April 16 at the home of Juanita Rotruck, 162 E Street. The committee includes Luetta Dantzic, chairman; Mary Rotruck and Kathleen Harrison.

Lotowhite Wins Jamaica Feature

JAMAICA, L. I., April 3 (AP)—Taking the lead at the top of the stretch, Lotowhite splashed home a winner by four lengths in the Fighting Fox, a mile and sixteenth allowance affair, before 20,473 fans here today.

Joe W. Brown's Riverlane cut out a fast pace and held the lead until the turn for home when Eddie Arcaro, aboard Lotowhite, 4-year-old son of Devil Diver-Lotopoise, cut his mount loose. The colt, going good in the muddy going, moved quickly to a commanding lead and was in hand at the finish.

King Ranch's Flying Missel took the small end of the purse from A. Leveinson's Gold Heel, the only other starter. The time of 146 1/5 was good for the muddy going.

Mineral County May Name Dog Catcher

KEYSER, W. Va.—War has been declared on dogs in the areas of Mineral County outside the city of Keyser. At a meeting of the County Court yesterday, it was decided to call a special meeting Saturday, at which time a dog catcher for the county may be named.

At a meeting of City Council yesterday, further steps were taken toward carrying out the city's plans to rid the city of dogs running loose within the city. A dog catcher was recently named, and at yesterday's meeting, plans were made to obtain an enclosed truck to be used in picking up stray dogs in the city and removing them to the dog pound.

At the county court meeting, Kirk K. Mawhinney was named successor to Charles H. Vossler as Mineral County justice of the peace. Vossler, who was elected last fall, resigned several days ago due to being recalled to active duty in the Navy.

LONACONING—Clean-Up Week is progressing here with the city truck hauling away rubbish gathered during the special Clean-Up, Fix-Up, Paint-Up, Week.

Anyone who has rubbish to be picked up may contact the Mayor Alex A. Burt, and city councilmen, who will in turn have the truck sent to collect it. The city policeman will also help any person notify the trucks to come to haul away their rubbish.

Sorority Will Hold Rush Party

KEYSER, W. Va. — Miss Betty Judy was guest speaker at the meeting of the Iota Pi Chapter, Tau Phi Lambda Sorority of the Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle held at the home of Adrian Clise, 307 North Main Street, Monday. She showed slides of a trip to Germany last summer.

The slides showed young people from many nations working together to help construct buildings and promote goodwill among the refugees and displaced persons. Most of Miss Judy's work was at Kassel, Germany, and she said that the first question asked by the refugees is: "How can I get to America?" Her visit was sponsored by the Keyser Church of the Brethren.

At the business meeting, plans were made for a Rush party April 16 at the home of Juanita Rotruck, 162 E Street. The committee includes Luetta Dantzic, chairman; Mary Rotruck and Kathleen Harrison.

Lotowhite Wins Jamaica Feature

JAMAICA, L. I., April 3 (AP)—Taking the lead at the top of the stretch, Lotowhite splashed home a winner by four lengths in the Fighting Fox, a mile and sixteenth allowance affair, before 20,473 fans here today.

Joe W. Brown's Riverlane cut out a fast pace and held the lead until the turn for home when Eddie Arcaro, aboard Lotowhite, 4-year-old son of Devil Diver-Lotopoise, cut his mount loose. The colt, going good in the muddy going, moved quickly to a commanding lead and was in hand at the finish.

King Ranch's Flying Missel took the small end of the purse from A. Leveinson's Gold Heel, the only other starter. The time of 146 1/5 was good for the muddy going.

Dukes Is Too Tall

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., April 3 (AP) — Walt Dukes, star sophomore center of the Seton Hall University basketball team, was turned down at his selective service physical exam today — he's too tall.

The lanky negro from Rochester, N. Y., is 6-11, which is five inches over the army maximum.

Stocks Lose In Final Hour As Recovery Attempt Fails

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP) — Stocks tilted lower in the final hour of today's market after a recovery attempt failed to make the grade.

The whole see-saw performance occurred in one of the lowest trading sessions of the year, with only 1,220,000 shares changing hands. This compared with sales of 1,280,000 on Monday.

Final losses outnumbered gains by the moderate margin of 467 to 321, out of 1,076 issues traded. Of these 89 touched new lows for the year; eight reached new highs.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped 30 cents at $91.80.

Industrials were down 40 cents, rails 30 cents and utilities were unchanged.

Eight of the 16 most active stocks were unchanged, among them the three leaders in activity — Packard, Radio Corp. and Benguet Mining.

Today's transactions were well distributed. Even the most active issue — Packard — sold only 19,200 shares.

Two rail stocks — New York Central and Pennsylvania—each with a decline of ⅜ of a point, attained the sixth and seventh most active spots with sales of 11,600 and 10,400 shares respectively.

Down 1½ was Santa Fe at 157¾. Fractionally lower were Allied Chemical at 60⅛, du Pont 87¾, Union Carbide 54½, Zenith 63¼, American Smelting 71, Standard Oil (N.J.) 102, Eastern Air Lines 21⅝ (despite a favorable earnings statement), Illinois Central 60½, Canadian Pacific 24¼, American Cyanamid 89¼ and Air Reduction 26¼.

Baltimore Livestock

BALTIMORE, April 3 (AP) — (USDA)—

CATTLE—150—not enough any class sold to establish a trading basis, quotations nominally unchanged, commercial cows 29.00-50, odd head canner to low utility grade tranged 18.00-27.00, small lot medium and good around 300-750 lb. stockers and steers and calves 35.00-38.00.

CALVES—100—top 1.00 lower but otherwise nominally unchanged, odd head choice and prime vealers 39.00-40.00, the top, commercial and good 34.00-37.00.

HOGS — 700 — fairly active, but generally 25 cents lower, good and choice 170-230 lb. barrows and gilts 22.00-25, the top, 240-260 lbs. 21.25-75, 260-300 lbs. 20.00-21.25, heavier weights 19.00 down according to weight and condition, 120-140 lbs. 17.75-18.25, 140-160 lbs. 19.25-75, sows under 400 lbs. largely 18.25-50, good 400-450 lbs. 17.00-50, heavier weights 16.50 down depending on weight and condition.

SHEEP—none—individual wooled ewe brought 20.00, the top quotation.

Rebekahs Close Assembly Today With Elections

Degrees Conferred At Session Yesterday

The 41st annual session of the Rebekah Assembly of Maryland, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, will close this afternoon with the final business meeting and election of officers at the Elks Home, South Centre Street.

More than 300 delegates from Maryland lodges and bordering states attended the three-day convention. Also attending was Mrs. Ethel Smith, national president of the Association of Rebekah Assemblies of the United States and Canada.

Assembly Degree Conferred

Yesterday's meeting was highlighted by the conferring of the Assembly Degree to Past Grands of the Subordinate Lodge and Past Noble Grands of the Rebekah Lodge, two memorial services, the dedication of a Bible to the assembly and the initiation of a class of candidates to the Rebekah Degree.

Roll call of representatives, reports to the president for the year from the Special District Deputies and other officers and committees marked the routine business meeting yesterday morning.

The Assembly Degree was conferred at the close of the morning session and Mrs. Smith spoke to the group. Luncheon was held for the assembly at the IOOF Temple, South Mechanic Street, and Colfax Lodge No. 1, Cumberland, the host organization, held its regular meeting yesterday afternoon.

At the memorial services in the afternoon honoring deceased members of the Maryland Assembly in 1950 Mrs. Laura Wittekindt, Baltimore, honored deceased past presidents in a special service, aided by a group of past presidents attending the convention. Altogether, 13 of the 25 living past presidents in the state attended the session.

Memorial Service Held

The regular memorial service, conducted by Mrs. Anna Diehl, Special District Deputy of Zone 1, included a trellis in the form of an archway with a flowered fence behind which the reader, Mrs. Emma Bramble stood. Mrs. Bramble read names of deceased members as a group of eight women dropped lilies in the form of a pillow at the gateway.

Assisting Mrs. Diehl and Mrs. Bramble were Mesdames Audrey Callis, Lake Lynn Rebekah Lodge, and Idella Hartsock and Martha Weller of Colfax Lodge.

The dedication of the Bible was made last night by the daughters of Mrs. Carolyn Walsh, past president of the assembly who died last year.

The degree team of Colfax Lodge performed the ceremony on the 11 candidates receiving the Rebekah Degree. Mrs. Ruby Turney, Oakland, Mrs. Margaret Sisler, Fort Ashby, Mrs. Effie Dolly, Flintstone and Mrs. Emma Bramble gave the principal charges. Members of the degree team are Mesdames Alice Scott, Carrie Poling, Estella Zihlman, Lacy Welsh, Marcella House, Verna Hicks, Ada Keady, Idella Hartsock, Viola Hudson, Ruby Leasure, Hilda Burke, Martha Weller, Olive Witt, Laura Woodyard, Betty Irons and Hilda Shrout. Mrs. Bertie M. Ranck was pianist and director.

The Independent Order of Odd Fellows group also is being honored by the presence of Mrs. Ethel Smith, Salt Lake City, Utah, national president of the Association of Rebekah Assemblies of the United States and Canada. The lower picture shows Mrs. Catherine M. Couter, Cumberland, state president, (left) welcoming the national head to the assembly while above the thirteen past state heads and Mrs. Smith are grouped together. Standing are Mesdames Bessie Kessler, Edna Jones, Ethel Smith, national president, Fern Osborn, Celeste Thomas, Madeline Houseman, Nettie Coloins, Elsie James and Lillian Bailey. The session will end today with election of state officers for the ensuing year.

Grand Jury Begins Check Of Institutions

Group Returns Six Indictments

Members of the April grand jury in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday began the regular inspection of county-owned buildings after returning six more indictments, bringing to 10 the number acted upon during the first two days of the body's activities.

The entire grand jury inspected the County Jail yesterday. Later, committees from the jury visited the County Home, the County Infirmary and Sylvan Retreat for inspections. Another committee checked records kept by Mrs. Wilbur D. Sills, county auditor.

Today the entire grand jury is scheduled to check the Court House to determine what repairs and other corrective measures may be needed there.

A report prepared by the Corinthian Engineering Service for the Allegany County Board of Commissioners pertaining to repairs, maintenance and new construction and remodeling of county buildings was submitted to the April grand jury yesterday afternoon.

The report, requested by the commissioners several months ago, follows the recommendations of the Circuit Court for a check at each session of the grand jury on what has been done or is proposed on the jurors suggestions on renovating county buildings.

A four-year program is included with the total cost estimated at $172,237 for repairs and maintenance and $120,200 for new construction or remodeling of existing buildings.

For the coming fiscal year starting July 1 the county commissioners expected to spend $56,305 for repairs and maintenance, in 1952 the expenditure will be $70,725; in 1953 the cost will drop to $18,770 and in 1954 the outlay will be $26,437.

The capital outlay will extend only three years with $71,600 for the year starting next July 1 and $41,600 in 1952. The final year the expenditure will total only $7,000 under current plans.

Members of the board said that repairs and maintenance in 1949 totaled $62,000 while last year $25,000 was spent.

Largest single item in capital outlay will be about $60,000 for a new central laundry for the three institutions at the county farm here. This building and equipment will handle the laundry for the County Home, County Infirmary and Sylvan Retreat (the county mental institution).

The report listed item by item the proposed repairs to the Court House, county jail, Union Street County Building, county garage, and the three institutions at the county farm.

City Authorizes Settlement Of Conway Claims

Collector's Estate Will Get $2,491.16

The Mayor and Council yesterday authorized the issuance of a check for $2,491.16 to the estate of the late James M. Conway in full settlement of unpaid commissions due the former city tax collector.

The order, passed by action of Mayor Thomas S. Post, and Commissioners Roeder, Tederick and Buchholtz, directed the city auditor to issue the payment in full settlement of unpaid commissions due John J. Conway, executor for the late Mr. Conway.

The order stated the sum is the full amount due and payable by the city to the estate of James M. Conway on account of taxes and water rent collections resulting from his appointment as tax collector from April 3, 1948, and in accordance with an agreement of settlement of all unpaid commissions as approved by the city on December 26, 1950.

The order also authorized the Mayor and Council to release the bond of Conway for the tax collector's post.

The negotiated settlement includes unpaid commissions on taxes and water rent collections during Mr. Conway's term of office, and from January 3, 1949, date of his death, to August 29, 1949, when the office was in charge of his daughter, Mrs. Lucien Radcliffe.

Local Schools Enter Teams In Press Contest

Delegation Goes To College Park Friday

Teams from Fort Hill, Allegany and LaSalle High Schools will be entered in the annual writing tournament sponsored by the Maryland Scholastic Press Association Saturday at the University of Maryland.

The three local high schools will be represented along with student editors and advisers of publications in junior and senior high schools of the Baltimore and Washington areas.

Three issues each from the schools' student newspapers also will be placed in contention with other newspapers to be judged for over-all excellence and rated by advisers from other states at the convention. The school papers are "The Torch," LaSalle, "The Alcohi Mirror," Allegany, and "The Sentinel," Fort Hill.

The teams entered in the writing contest will be composed of four students, each eligible to enter one phase of the contest, either news, features, editorials or sports.

Entering from Fort Hill will be Patty Close, news editor, JoAnn Bopp, feature editor, Joyce Shanski, editorial staff and Jack Rice, sports editor. Allegany's entries include Joyce Often, Ann Riggleman, Mary Dee Rice and Charles Smith. Brother Edmund, advisor for the LaSalle group, said last night the Centre Street school team had not not been fully chosen as yet.

Newspapers and yearbooks will be judged for over-all excellence and trophies and certificates will be awarded to individual and team winners in the tournament and also to winning publications.

A Times-News trophy goes to the winning school in the writing tournament. No school has repeated a victory in the five year history of the association, and the trophy must be won three times for permanent possession. Last season Western High of Washington, D. C., and Bethesda Chevy Chase tied for top honors.

Delegations from the schools will hear men and women of national preminence speak on newspaper, magazine, radio and television at the morning and afternoon sessions. Sectional meetings for delegates not entered in the contests will be held.

Miss Mary E. Murray, advisor of the Allegany High publication and director of the tournament and convention, will accompany the local teams to the convention. The three groups will leave by automobile Friday after school hours for the trip, Miss Murray said last night.

Every Fourth Auto Bears Outside Tags

37 Out-Of-State Vehicles Checked

By ALBERT A. DARBY
News Staff Writer

Virtually one of every four motor vehicles checked along two chief North End streets during a 30-minute informal survey Monday afternoon, bore out-of-state license plates.

That was a secondary finding of the survey which was conducted primarily to determine what percentage of Maryland automobiles in Cumberland still were using the old license tags. Deadline for use of these tags has been extended indefinitely beyond Saturday, March 31, by Governor Theodore R. McKeldin.

During the survey 159 motor vehicles were counted on North Centre Street and North Mechanic Street. Of these 120, or 75.5 per cent, carried Maryland tags. Thirty-seven others, or 23.3 per cent, bore out-of-state plates and two others, 1.2 per cent, had United States Government licenses.

Although nearby Pennsylvania and West Virginia were best represented among the out-of-state vehicles, there were others from six other states.

Twenty-five, or 67.6 per cent, of the out-of-state vehicles were equipped with Pennsylvania plates and five, or 13.5 per cent, bore West Virginia tags. Also enumerated were two, 5.4 per cent, from Virginia, and one each from New York, Connecticut, Michigan, South Carolina and Arkansas.

1,125 Register For First Grade In Schools Here

Cresaptown Reports Largest Group

Some 1,125 youngsters have been registered to enter the first grade in the Allegany County Public School System in September, Homer E. Higgins, director of pupil personnel in the county schools, said yesterday.

Included among children registered by their parents March 15 and 16 were 582 boys and 543 girls, Higgins stated. The total of 1,125 represented 76.4 per cent of the 1,472 potential first-graders enumerated in the school census last October.

Those not registered, who were counted in last fall's census, the official added include those who will enroll in parochial schools, those 6-year-old children whose parents have decided to wait until they reach their seventh birthday before starting them to school and those who have moved away since the census was compiled.

Higgins explained that between 15 and 17 per cent of the 1,472 prefirst graders enumerated last October probably will enroll in parochial schools. That would leave between 6.6 per cent and 8.6 per cent who will delay their start in school or have moved from the county.

Many parents already have made preparations for the start of their children's education by having them vaccinated, Higgins said. About 100 boys and a like number of girls already had been vaccinated before they were registered last month.

Heaviest registration was at Cresaptown, where 98 enrollments were received. Nine other schools reported 50 or more first-grade registrants for next fall. These included Johnson Heights, 84; Pennsylvania Avenue, 83; East Side, 69; LaVale, 62; Beall Elementary, Frostburg, 61; West Side, 54; Columbia Street, 53; Hammond Street, Westernport, and Mt. Royal, 50 each. There are 36 elementary schools in the county.

Habeas Corpus Hearing Set

Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris has ordered the issuance of a writ of habeas corpus in Allegany County Circuit Court for a man, convicted in Baltimore Criminal Court, and now serving a five-year term in the Maryland House of Correction for forgery.

Oliver Minter petitioned Judge Harris for the writ. The judge has made the writ returnable at 10 a. m. Saturday, April 14.

In his petition, Minter contends that evidence was obtained unlawfully against him by police officers who, he says, entered his residence without a search warrant and arrested him without a warrant. He further alleges that he was held in custody several days before any charges was brought and was denied the aid of legal counsel.

Minter was found guilty January 22, 1948, by Judge E. J. Dickerson in Baltimore Criminal Court and sentenced to five years in the House of Correction. The man contends he was convicted on evidence taken from his room through an illegal search.

Directors Installed

Four directors of the Cresaptown Civic Improvement Association, elected Monday, were installed last night by Merwin R. Hast, chief deputy clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court.

Installed were Joseph Wenrich, Phillip Bowman, Charles Bird and Frank Ferrone. President James C. Skidmore was not a candidate in Monday's election as he is only midway through his current two-year term.

1269 Measures Handled By '51 State Assembly

778 Bills Sent To Gov. McKeldin

The 1951 General Assembly handled 1,269 pieces of legislation and sent along 778 of them—61 per cent—to the governor with its approval.

So far, Governor McKeldin has signed more than 250 into law.

As usual, the majority of the bills, 775, were introduced in the House. Only 494 were sponsored by senators. But 67 per cent of the Senate measures cleared the Legislature while only 57 per cent of the House Bills gained final approval.

Home Rule Passes

During the closing hours of the Assembly, several measures of vital importance to Cumberland were passed.

Chief among the local bills were the measures providing for statutory home rule here and the sewage disposal plant bond issue.

A new governmental life is set for Cumberland with the passage of statutory home rule by the assembly.

This law when signed by the governor will give the city the right to amend its own charter. Hagerstown has similar home rule.

The Maryland Municipal League pointed out that Hagerstown, in its first year of home rule, did not have a single piece of local legislation in the General Assembly this session.

Approve Sewage Bill

House Bill 218, introduced by request by the Allegany county delegation, authorizes the city to borrow $1,500,000 from the state for use in construction of a sewage treatment and disposal plant.

The measure passed the Senate Monday night. Previously, the county delegation turned down the Mayor and Council's request to introduce this bill.

Charles M. See, chairman of the delegation, stated he wanted to see all of the municipalities in the Potomac River Basin participate in a cleaning up program.

City Tax Bill Passes

Also passed before the Senate adjourned at 2:53 a. m. was a House bill raising the maximum tax levy in Cumberland for operating expenses from 90 to 95 cents per $100 of assessable property.

The House, however, refused to pass a bill introduced by Senator Robert B. Kimble giving special taxing powers to the City of Cumberland.

Delegate Charles M. See said the bill which would allow a tax on non residential gas, electric and telephone bills, would have erected "trade barriers" in Allegany County through its taxing power.

Armed Forces Day Planned

60 Representatives Will Participate

More 60 representatives of 31 business, civic, fraternal and military organizations have evidenced willingness to participate in the second annual Armed Forces Day observance to be held here May 19.

Thomas F. Conlon, civilian director of the observance here, said yesterday he had received replies to most of the cards he has sent out to various groups requesting their presence at the organizational meeting to be held in the post office April 11, at 8 p. m.

Response has been good, Conlon said, with a wide variety of organizations expressing interest.

Lt. General James A. Van Fleet, commander of the Second Army, has been given responsibility for celebrations in Area V, which includes Pennsylvania, Virginia, Maryland, Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, and Delaware. He has appointed Lt. Col. Louis W. Shropshire, local National Guard instructor, senior project officer for the Cumberland area.

Orders from General Van Fleet are that insofar as possible, the observance is to be on community levels.

Col. Shropshire has requested jet aircraft, a giant C119 Packet troop carrier like those being used in Korea, armored cars, tanks, field artillery, anti-aircraft artillery, and a blimp for the local celebration.

Baptist Revival Ends This Week

Evangelistic services are continuing this week at the Second Baptist Church, Grand Avenue and Oldtown Road. Rev. Hale A. Dixon, pastor of First Baptist Church, Paul's Valley, Okla., is guest speaker.

Services are being held nightly at 7:30 p. m. A morning service at 10 o'clock is being held through Friday for members unable to attend at night.

The revival services are being held on conjunction with about 18,000 other Baptist Churches east of the Mississippi River under direction of the Southern Baptist Convention.

This evening members of the Sunday School will hear Rev. Dixon speak. Baptismal services will also be conducted.

Family Night will be observed at the revival Thursday night. Friday the Training Union will attend in a body. On Saturday evening Youth Night will be held.

The revival, which has been part of the Simultaneous Evangelistic Crusade, will come to a close on Sunday.

Civil Service To Meet Friday

Decision On Police Case Is Expected

The Cumberland Civil Service has tentatively scheduled a meeting at City Hall Friday at 7 p. m. to review testimony and give a decision on an appeal filed by three city police probationers.

The commission held a hearing March 21 to hear testimony of Karl W. Frankfort, Vernon E. Browning and Lewis A. Miller, who were dismissed on counts of "conduct unbecoming an officer."

The Civil Service Commission will hold an examination here April 30.

Officials said the principal openings at present are for chief and assistant chief posts in the fire department.

The annual examinations will also give members of police and fire departments an opportunity to qualify on eligibility lists for promotion.

$429.08 Spent To Remove Snow

March generally is considered a Spring month, but J. Walker Chapman, supervisor of the County Roads Department, reported yesterday to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners that his department spent $429.08 during the first 15 days of March for removal of snow.

Chapman's report listed expenditures for repair and maintenance of county roads, bridges and other costs totaling $8,897.42 for the first 15 days of March.

His recapitulation showed $5,686.21 for roads, $429.08 for snow, $50.99 for bridges, $11.89 for signs, $2,016.30 for shop, $16.35 for remodeling, $593.40 for stockpiling, and $93.20 for sick leave payments.

In another classification Chapman listed expenses as $5,403.67 for labor, $1,576.45 for materials and $1,824.10 for equipment.

Grand Jury Begins Check Of Institutions

Group Returns Six Indictments

Members of the April grand jury in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday began the regular inspection of county-owned buildings after returning six more indictments, bringing to 10 the number acted upon during the first two days of the body's activities.

The entire grand jury inspected the County Jail yesterday. Later, committees from the jury visited the County Home, the County Infirmary and Sylvan Retreat for inspections. Another committee checked records kept by Mrs. Wilbur D. Sills, county auditor.

Today the entire grand jury is scheduled to check the Court House to determine what repairs and other corrective measures may be needed there.

A report prepared by the Corinthian Engineering Service for the Allegany County Board of Commissioners pertaining to repairs, maintenance and new construction and remodeling of county buildings was submitted to the April grand jury yesterday afternoon.

The report, requested by the commissioners several months ago, follows the recommendations of the Circuit Court for a check at each session of the grand jury on what has been done or is proposed on the jurors suggestions on renovating county buildings.

A four-year program is included with the total cost estimated at $172,237 for repairs and maintenance and $120,200 for new construction or remodeling of existing buildings.

For the coming fiscal year starting July 1 the county commissioners expected to spend $56,305 for repairs and maintenance, in 1952 the expenditure will be $70,725; in 1953 the cost will drop to $18,770 and in 1954 the outlay will be $26,437.

The capital outlay will extend only three years with $71,600 for the year starting next July 1 and $41,600 in 1952. The final year the expenditure will total only $7,000 under current plans.

Members of the board said that repairs and maintenance in 1949 totaled $62,000 while last year $25,000 was spent.

Largest single item in capital outlay will be about $60,000 for a new central laundry for the three institutions at the county farm here. This building and equipment will handle the laundry for the County Home, County Infirmary and Sylvan Retreat (the county mental institution).

The report listed item by item the proposed repairs to the Court House, county jail, Union Street County Building, county garage, and the three institutions at the county farm.

City Authorizes Settlement Of Conway Claims

Collector's Estate Will Get $2,491.16

The Mayor and Council yesterday authorized the issuance of a check for $2,491.16 to the estate of the late James M. Conway in full settlement of unpaid commissions due the former city tax collector.

The order, passed by action of Mayor Thomas S. Post, and Commissioners Roeder, Tederick and Buchholtz, directed the city auditor to issue the payment in full settlement of unpaid commissions due John J. Conway, executor for the late Mr. Conway.

The order stated the sum is the full amount due and payable by the city to the estate of James M. Conway on account of taxes and water rent collections resulting from his appointment as tax collector from April 3, 1948, and in accordance with an agreement of settlement of all unpaid commissions as approved by the city on December 26, 1950.

The order also authorized the Mayor and Council to release the bond of Conway for the tax collector's post.

The negotiated settlement includes unpaid commissions on taxes and water rent collections during Mr. Conway's term of office, and from January 3, 1949, date of his death, to August 29, 1949, when the office was in charge of his daughter, Mrs. Lucien Radcliffe.

Local Schools Enter Teams In Press Contest

Delegation Goes To College Park Friday

Teams from Fort Hill, Allegany and LaSalle High Schools will be entered in the annual writing tournament sponsored by the Maryland Scholastic Press Association Saturday at the University of Maryland.

The three local high schools will be represented along with student editors and advisers of publications in junior and senior high schools of the Baltimore and Washington areas.

Three issues each from the schools' student newspapers also will be placed in contention with other newspapers to be judged for over-all excellence and rated by advisers from other states at the convention. The school papers are "The Torch," LaSalle, "The Alcohi Mirror," Allegany, and "The Sentinel," Fort Hill.

The teams entered in the writing contest will be composed of four students, each eligible to enter one phase of the contest, either news, features, editorials or sports.

Entering from Fort Hill will be Patty Close, news editor, JoAnn Bopp, feature editor, Joyce Shanski, editorial staff and Jack Rice, sports editor. Allegany's entries include Joyce Often, Ann Riggleman, Mary Dee Rice and Charles Smith. Brother Edmund, advisor for the LaSalle group, said last night the Centre Street school team had not not been fully chosen as yet.

Newspapers and yearbooks will be judged for over-all excellence and trophies and certificates will be awarded to individual and team winners in the tournament and also to winning publications.

A Times-News trophy goes to the winning school in the writing tournament. No school has repeated a victory in the five year history of the association, and the trophy must be won three times for permanent possession. Last season Western High of Washington, D. C., and Bethesda Chevy Chase tied for top honors.

Delegations from the schools will hear men and women of national preminence speak on newspaper, magazine, radio and television at the morning and afternoon sessions. Sectional meetings for delegates not entered in the contests will be held.

Miss Mary E. Murray, advisor of the Allegany High publication and director of the tournament and convention, will accompany the local teams to the convention. The three groups will leave by automobile Friday after school hours for the trip, Miss Murray said last night.

Every Fourth Auto Bears Outside Tags

37 Out-Of-State Vehicles Checked

By ALBERT A. DARBY
News Staff Writer

Virtually one of every four motor vehicles checked along two chief North End streets during a 30-minute informal survey Monday afternoon, bore out-of-state license plates.

That was a secondary finding of the survey which was conducted primarily to determine what percentage of Maryland automobiles in Cumberland still were using the old license tags. Deadline for use of these tags has been extended indefinitely beyond Saturday, March 31, by Governor Theodore R. McKeldin.

During the survey 159 motor vehicles were counted on North Centre Street and North Mechanic Street. Of these 120, or 75.5 per cent, carried Maryland tags. Thirty-seven others, or 23.3 per cent, bore out-of-state plates and two others, 1.2 per cent, had United States Government licenses.

Although nearby Pennsylvania and West Virginia were best represented among the out-of-state vehicles, there were others from six other states.

Twenty-five, or 67.6 per cent, of the out-of-state vehicles were equipped with Pennsylvania plates and five, or 13.5 per cent, bore West Virginia tags. Also enumerated were two, 5.4 per cent, from Virginia, and one each from New York, Connecticut, Michigan, South Carolina and Arkansas.

1,125 Register For First Grade In Schools Here

Cresaptown Reports Largest Group

Some 1,125 youngsters have been registered to enter the first grade in the Allegany County Public School System in September, Homer E. Higgins, director of pupil personnel in the county schools, said yesterday.

Included among children registered by their parents March 15 and 16 were 582 boys and 543 girls, Higgins stated. The total of 1,125 represented 76.4 per cent of the 1,472 potential first-graders enumerated in the school census last October.

Those not registered, who were counted in last fall's census, the official added include those who will enroll in parochial schools, those 6-year-old children whose parents have decided to wait until they reach their seventh birthday before starting them to school and those who have moved away since the census was compiled.

Higgins explained that between 15 and 17 per cent of the 1,472 prefirst graders enumerated last October probably will enroll in parochial schools. That would leave between 6.6 per cent and 8.6 per cent who will delay their start in school or have moved from the county.

Many parents already have made preparations for the start of their children's education by having them vaccinated, Higgins said. About 100 boys and a like number of girls already had been vaccinated before they were registered last month.

Heaviest registration was at Cresaptown, where 98 enrollments were received. Nine other schools reported 50 or more first-grade registrants for next fall. These included Johnson Heights, 84; Pennsylvania Avenue, 83; East Side, 69; LaVale, 62; Beall Elementary, Frostburg, 61; West Side, 54; Columbia Street, 53; Hammond Street, Westernport, and Mt. Royal, 50 each. There are 36 elementary schools in the county.

Habeas Corpus Hearing Set

Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris has ordered the issuance of a writ of habeas corpus in Allegany County Circuit Court for a man, convicted in Baltimore Criminal Court, and now serving a five-year term in the Maryland House of Correction for forgery.

Oliver Minter petitioned Judge Harris for the writ. The judge has made the writ returnable at 10 a. m. Saturday, April 14.

In his petition, Minter contends that evidence was obtained unlawfully against him by police officers who, he says, entered his residence without a search warrant and arrested him without a warrant. He further alleges that he was held in custody several days before any charges was brought and was denied the aid of legal counsel.

Minter was found guilty January 22, 1948, by Judge E. J. Dickerson in Baltimore Criminal Court and sentenced to five years in the House of Correction. The man contends he was convicted on evidence taken from his room through an illegal search.

Directors Installed

Four directors of the Cresaptown Civic Improvement Association, elected Monday, were installed last night by Merwin R. Hast, chief deputy clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court.

Installed were Joseph Wenrich, Phillip Bowman, Charles Bird and Frank Ferrone. President James C. Skidmore was not a candidate in Monday's election as he is only midway through his current two-year term.

1269 Measures Handled By '51 State Assembly

778 Bills Sent To Gov. McKeldin

The 1951 General Assembly handled 1,269 pieces of legislation and sent along 778 of them—61 per cent—to the governor with its approval.

So far, Governor McKeldin has signed more than 250 into law.

As usual, the majority of the bills, 775, were introduced in the House. Only 494 were sponsored by senators. But 67 per cent of the Senate measures cleared the Legislature while only 57 per cent of the House Bills gained final approval.

Home Rule Passes

During the closing hours of the Assembly, several measures of vital importance to Cumberland were passed.

Chief among the local bills were the measures providing for statutory home rule here and the sewage disposal plant bond issue.

A new governmental life is set for Cumberland with the passage of statutory home rule by the assembly.

This law when signed by the governor will give the city the right to amend its own charter. Hagerstown has similar home rule.

The Maryland Municipal League pointed out that Hagerstown, in its first year of home rule, did not have a single piece of local legislation in the General Assembly this session.

Approve Sewage Bill

House Bill 218, introduced by request by the Allegany county delegation, authorizes the city to borrow $1,500,000 from the state for use in construction of a sewage treatment and disposal plant.

The measure passed the Senate Monday night. Previously, the county delegation turned down the Mayor and Council's request to introduce this bill.

Charles M. See, chairman of the delegation, stated he wanted to see all of the municipalities in the Potomac River Basin participate in a cleaning up program.

City Tax Bill Passes

Also passed before the Senate adjourned at 2:53 a. m. was a House bill raising the maximum tax levy in Cumberland for operating expenses from 90 to 95 cents per $100 of assessable property.

The House, however, refused to pass a bill introduced by Senator Robert B. Kimble giving special taxing powers to the City of Cumberland.

Delegate Charles M. See said the bill which would allow a tax on non residential gas, electric and telephone bills, would have erected "trade barriers" in Allegany County through its taxing power.

Armed Forces Day Planned

60 Representatives Will Participate

More 60 representatives of 31 business, civic, fraternal and military organizations have evidenced willingness to participate in the second annual Armed Forces Day observance to be held here May 19.

Thomas F. Conlon, civilian director of the observance here, said yesterday he had received replies to most of the cards he has sent out to various groups requesting their presence at the organizational meeting to be held in the post office April 11, at 8 p. m.

Response has been good, Conlon said, with a wide variety of organizations expressing interest.

Lt. General James A. Van Fleet, commander of the Second Army, has been given responsibility for celebrations in Area V, which includes Pennsylvania, Virginia, Maryland, Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, and Delaware. He has appointed Lt. Col. Louis W. Shropshire, local National Guard instructor, senior project officer for the Cumberland area.

Orders from General Van Fleet are that insofar as possible, the observance is to be on community levels.

Col. Shropshire has requested jet aircraft, a giant C119 Packet troop carrier like those being used in Korea, armored cars, tanks, field artillery, anti-aircraft artillery, and a blimp for the local celebration.

Grand Jury Begins Check Of Institutions

Group Returns Six Indictments

Members of the April grand jury in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday began the regular inspection of county-owned buildings after returning six more indictments, bringing to 10 the number acted upon during the first two days of the body's activities.

The entire grand jury inspected the County Jail yesterday. Later, committees from the jury visited the County Home, the County Infirmary and Sylvan Retreat for inspections. Another committee checked records kept by Mrs. Wilbur D. Sills, county auditor.

Today the entire grand jury is scheduled to check the Court House to determine what repairs and other corrective measures may be needed there.

A report prepared by the Corinthian Engineering Service for the Allegany County Board of Commissioners pertaining to repairs, maintenance and new construction and remodeling of county buildings was submitted to the April grand jury yesterday afternoon.

The report, requested by the commissioners several months ago, follows the recommendations of the Circuit Court for a check at each session of the grand jury on what has been done or is proposed on the jurors suggestions on renovating county buildings.

A four-year program is included with the total cost estimated at $172,237 for repairs and maintenance and $120,200 for new construction or remodeling of existing buildings.

For the coming fiscal year starting July 1 the county commissioners expected to spend $56,305 for repairs and maintenance, in 1952 the expenditure will be $70,725; in 1953 the cost will drop to $18,770 and in 1954 the outlay will be $26,437.

The capital outlay will extend only three years with $71,600 for the year starting next July 1 and $41,600 in 1952. The final year the expenditure will total only $7,000 under current plans.

Members of the board said that repairs and maintenance in 1949 totaled $62,000 while last year $25,000 was spent.

Largest single item in capital outlay will be about $60,000 for a new central laundry for the three institutions at the county farm here. This building and equipment will handle the laundry for the County Home, County Infirmary and Sylvan Retreat (the county mental institution).

The report listed item by item the proposed repairs to the Court House, county jail, Union Street County Building, county garage, and the three institutions at the county farm.

City Authorizes Settlement Of Conway Claims

Collector's Estate Will Get $2,491.16

The Mayor and Council yesterday authorized the issuance of a check for $2,491.16 to the estate of the late James M. Conway in full settlement of unpaid commissions due the former city tax collector.

The order, passed by action of Mayor Thomas S. Post, and Commissioners Roeder, Tederick and Buchholtz, directed the city auditor to issue the payment in full settlement of unpaid commissions due John J. Conway, executor for the late Mr. Conway.

The order stated the sum is the full amount due and payable by the city to the estate of James M. Conway on account of taxes and water rent collections resulting from his appointment as tax collector from April 3, 1948, and in accordance with an agreement of settlement of all unpaid commissions as approved by the city on December 26, 1950.

The order also authorized the Mayor and Council to release the bond of Conway for the tax collector's post.

The negotiated settlement includes unpaid commissions on taxes and water rent collections during Mr. Conway's term of office, and from January 3, 1949, date of his death, to August 29, 1949, when the office was in charge of his daughter, Mrs. Lucien Radcliffe.

Local Schools Enter Teams In Press Contest

Delegation Goes To College Park Friday

Teams from Fort Hill, Allegany and LaSalle High Schools will be entered in the annual writing tournament sponsored by the Maryland Scholastic Press Association Saturday at the University of Maryland.

The three local high schools will be represented along with student editors and advisers of publications in junior and senior high schools of the Baltimore and Washington areas.

Three issues each from the schools' student newspapers also will be placed in contention with other newspapers to be judged for over-all excellence and rated by advisers from other states at the convention. The school papers are "The Torch," LaSalle, "The Alcohi Mirror," Allegany, and "The Sentinel," Fort Hill.

The teams entered in the writing contest will be composed of four students, each eligible to enter one phase of the contest, either news, features, editorials or sports.

Entering from Fort Hill will be Patty Close, news editor, JoAnn Bopp, feature editor, Joyce Shanski, editorial staff and Jack Rice, sports editor. Allegany's entries include Joyce Often, Ann Riggleman, Mary Dee Rice and Charles Smith. Brother Edmund, advisor for the LaSalle group, said last night the Centre Street school team had not not been fully chosen as yet.

Newspapers and yearbooks will be judged for over-all excellence and trophies and certificates will be awarded to individual and team winners in the tournament and also to winning publications.

A Times-News trophy goes to the winning school in the writing tournament. No school has repeated a victory in the five year history of the association, and the trophy must be won three times for permanent possession. Last season Western High of Washington, D. C., and Bethesda Chevy Chase tied for top honors.

Delegations from the schools will hear men and women of national preminence speak on newspaper, magazine, radio and television at the morning and afternoon sessions. Sectional meetings for delegates not entered in the contests will be held.

Miss Mary E. Murray, advisor of the Allegany High publication and director of the tournament and convention, will accompany the local teams to the convention. The three groups will leave by automobile Friday after school hours for the trip, Miss Murray said last night.

Every Fourth Auto Bears Outside Tags

37 Out-Of-State Vehicles Checked

By ALBERT A. DARBY
News Staff Writer

Virtually one of every four motor vehicles checked along two chief North End streets during a 30-minute informal survey Monday afternoon, bore out-of-state license plates.

That was a secondary finding of the survey which was conducted primarily to determine what percentage of Maryland automobiles in Cumberland still were using the old license tags. Deadline for use of these tags has been extended indefinitely beyond Saturday, March 31, by Governor Theodore R. McKeldin.

During the survey 159 motor vehicles were counted on North Centre Street and North Mechanic Street. Of these 120, or 75.5 per cent, carried Maryland tags. Thirty-seven others, or 23.3 per cent, bore out-of-state plates and two others, 1.2 per cent, had United States Government licenses.

Although nearby Pennsylvania and West Virginia were best represented among the out-of-state vehicles, there were others from six other states.

Twenty-five, or 67.6 per cent, of the out-of-state vehicles were equipped with Pennsylvania plates and five, or 13.5 per cent, bore West Virginia tags. Also enumerated were two, 5.4 per cent, from Virginia, and one each from New York, Connecticut, Michigan, South Carolina and Arkansas.

1,125 Register For First Grade In Schools Here

Cresaptown Reports Largest Group

Some 1,125 youngsters have been registered to enter the first grade in the Allegany County Public School System in September, Homer E. Higgins, director of pupil personnel in the county schools, said yesterday.

Included among children registered by their parents March 15 and 16 were 582 boys and 543 girls, Higgins stated. The total of 1,125 represented 76.4 per cent of the 1,472 potential first-graders enumerated in the school census last October.

Those not registered, who were counted in last fall's census, the official added include those who will enroll in parochial schools, those 6-year-old children whose parents have decided to wait until they reach their seventh birthday before starting them to school and those who have moved away since the census was compiled.

Higgins explained that between 15 and 17 per cent of the 1,472 pre-first graders enumerated last October probably will enroll in parochial schools. That would leave between 6.6 per cent and 8.6 per cent who will delay their start in school or have moved from the county.

Many parents already have made preparations for the start of their children's education by having them vaccinated, Higgins said. About 100 boys and a like number of girls already had been vaccinated before they were registered last month.

Heaviest registration was at Cresaptown, where 98 enrollments were received. Nine other schools reported 50 or more first-grade registrants for next fall. These included Johnson Heights, 84; Pennsylvania Avenue, 83; East Side, 69; LaVale, 62; Beall Elementary, Frostburg, 61; West Side, 54; Columbia Street, 53; Hammond Street, Westernport, and Mt. Royal, 50 each. There are 36 elementary schools in the county.

Habeas Corpus Hearing Set

Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris has ordered the issuance of a writ of habeas corpus in Allegany County Circuit Court for a man, convicted in Baltimore Criminal Court, and now serving a five-year term in the Maryland House of Correction for forgery.

Oliver Minter petitioned Judge Harris for the writ. The judge has made the writ returnable at 10 a. m. Saturday, April 14.

In his petition, Minter contends that evidence was obtained unlawfully against him by police officers who, he says, entered his residence without a search warrant and arrested him without a warrant. He further alleges that he was held in custody several days before any charges was brought and was denied the aid of legal counsel.

Minter was found guilty January 22, 1948, by Judge E. J. Dickerson in Baltimore Criminal Court and sentenced to five years in the House of Correction. The man contends he was convicted on evidence taken from his room through an illegal search.

Directors Installed

Four directors of the Cresaptown Civic Improvement Association, elected Monday, were installed last night by Merwin R. Hast, chief deputy clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court.

Installed were Joseph Wenrich, Phillip Bowman, Charles Bird and Frank Ferrone. President James C. Skidmore was not a candidate in Monday's election as he is only midway through his current two-year term.

1269 Measures Handled By '51 State Assembly

778 Bills Sent To Gov. McKeldin

The 1951 General Assembly handled 1,269 pieces of legislation and sent along 778 of them—61 per cent—to the governor with its approval.

So far, Governor McKeldin has signed more than 250 into law.

As usual, the majority of the bills, 775, were introduced in the House. Only 494 were sponsored by senators. But 67 per cent of the Senate measures cleared the Legislature while only 57 per cent of the House Bills gained final approval.

Home Rule Passes

During the closing hours of the Assembly, several measures of vital importance to Cumberland were passed.

Chief among the local bills were the measures providing for statutory home rule here and the sewage disposal plant bond issue.

A new governmental life is set for Cumberland with the passage of statutory home rule by the assembly.

This law when signed by the governor will give the city the right to amend its own charter. Hagerstown has similar home rule.

The Maryland Municipal League pointed out that Hagerstown, in its first year of home rule, did not have a single piece of local legislation in the General Assembly this session.

Approve Sewage Bill

House Bill 218, introduced by request by the Allegany county delegation, authorizes the city to borrow $1,500,000 from the state for use in construction of a sewage treatment and disposal plant.

The measure passed the Senate Monday night. Previously, the county delegation turned down the Mayor and Council's request to introduce this bill.

Charles M. See, chairman of the delegation, stated he wanted to see all of the municipalities in the Potomac River Basin participate in a cleaning up program.

City Tax Bill Passes

Also passed before the Senate adjourned at 2:53 a. m. was a House bill raising the maximum tax levy in Cumberland for operating expenses from 90 to 95 cents per $100 of assessable property.

The House, however, refused to pass a bill introduced by Senator Robert B. Kimble giving special taxing powers to the City of Cumberland.

Delegate Charles M. See said the bill which would allow a tax on non residential gas, electric and telephone bills, would have erected "trade barriers" in Allegany County through its taxing power.

Armed Forces Day Planned

60 Representatives Will Participate

More 60 representatives of 31 business, civic, fraternal and military organizations have evidenced willingness to participate in the second annual Armed Forces Day observance to be held here May 19.

Thomas F. Conlon, civilian director of the observance here, said yesterday he had received replies to most of the cards he has sent out to various groups requesting their presence at the organizational meeting to be held in the post office April 11, at 8 p. m.

Response has been good, Conlon said, with a wide variety of organizations expressing interest.

Lt. General James A. Van Fleet, commander of the Second Army, has been given responsibility for celebrations in Area V, which includes Pennsylvania, Virginia, Maryland, Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, and Delaware. He has appointed Lt. Col. Louis W. Shropshire, local National Guard instructor, senior project officer for the Cumberland area.

Orders from General Van Fleet are that insofar as possible, the observance is to be on community levels.

Col. Shropshire has requested jet aircraft, a giant C119 Packet troop carrier like those being used in Korea, armored cars, tanks, field artillery, anti-aircraft artillery, and a blimp for the local celebration.
